Myers heads county in reorganization meet

Stuart--Dr. William G. Myers was elected chairman of the Martin County Commission in a reorganizational meeting Tuesday. Commissioner Frank Wacha was elected vice-chairman, and the county engineer - administrator, Tom Slider, resigned in a suburise move.

Myers, on his election, pointed to the progress made in the past in tightening of zoning and its enforcement, clarification of administrative procedures, the "harder look at the effect of commission inction on the environment," and the completion of planning and beginning of construction on the new jail complex.

He also directed his plans for the coming year, calling it "opportune time". "It's as much as money we get, but how we go from here."

He cited the growth, the master plan and its implementation, the 48 home Indian and Cove bond bridge, and the hope that the Florida legislature would reapportion the platforms of having in small counties.

Myers also expressed hope that a sewage and water feasibility study could be started in the year, and said the county should look at the establishment of a governmental study commission to seek answers to the needs of government of the people.

"If ethics are the people elect with many disqualified cities in it, or they might want a big county with few cities," Myers said.

Outgoing chairman Bill Owens said his most important decision of 1971 was the law enforcement committee, "which needed coordination, something more than a sheriff, with establishment of a fifteen unit per cent growth annual limit for the coming year. He also wished to the Mr. Lucie Inlet as the "greatest thing in Martin County" and expressed the commissioners to "start considering this now, not when the Corps of Engineers brings in the plans."

Owens praised the work of retiring Commissioner Bill Hussey, saying, "He's going to miss you. You have served the county well and we wish you God speed."

Report delayed

City study will go to board for views

JB-- The completed report of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce forms of government com. This will go to the Chamber board of directors for approval before being considered by submission to the people, according to action taken Monday night by the Chamber board.

David Deel, chairman of the government study group, reported that the period of information was under way, and the information collected over six months of study was being compiled by the committee and would be submitted to the board for consideration that it be taken to the people in public hearings.

Dean Tinker asked that the report be made at a public meeting. He that people "might be aware of what the committee is doing". Ira Wilkie, president, said that the meeting be for members of the Chamber, "since our membership should approve the actions of the government study group before we take it to the people".

"I want to know if the Chamber of Commerce is interested enough to approve this or take it. The Chamber of Commerce has got to take a position on this," Wilkie said.

Deel reminded the Chamber directors that they had authorized the study, that the directors had thus far approved each step taken, and said, "the question is that the report should go to the board first, and then if approved, it should go to the people."

The directors agreed to hear the report first, for approval.

Wilkie's request for a time when it would be read was declined by the study committee, but he was given assurances that the members of the board would receive copies of the report for study "several days before the meeting."

In other business, the directors:

APPROVED the actions of the executive committee in supporting a zoning change that would have a shopping center established on Commercial Street, west of the Florida East Coast Railroad tracks, and took no action on another executive board meeting in which the executive board supported two-way traffic for Commercial Drive.

HEARD that the sheriff's department has two deputies in the community now, as reported by Walter Redil, chairman of the police protection committee.

A photographic essay on parking in Jensen Beach... by Alice Hickey

Editorial

Solve your problems

Arnold Ramos stepped in the middle of an argument between various local groups, and refused to take part in it. The problem of one-way traffic was dumped right back in the laps of the people as Ramos told them to solve their own problems.

"I will make a recommendation to the county commission, with a copy of those recommendations sent to the Chamber of Commerce," Ramos said, "but you people must get together and decide what you want to do."

Ramos, district engineer of the Florida Department of Transportation, came to Jensen Beach with years of experience, with solutions of other cities, and shared those experiences and solutions with the people. There are many ways to do it, he said, but something must be done.

Ramos refused to deal in the emotional issues of the day. He listened to the many complaints of the people against the drivers, against the merchants who park on the street, taking customer parking places, against one-way traffic in cities from 100,000 to one million population, against two-way traffic in town and elsewhere, against the abolishment of angle parking, against...well, against about everything.

He listened, and quietly told the people that they must get together and get their ducks in a row. Then he threw in the clincher.

"When we do one dollar's worth of work on Commercial Street, we are going to remove all parking from the street. You must begin to acquire off-street parking now," Ramos said.

Merchants had been talking about losing forty to fifty percent of the number of spaces, up to fifteen or twenty of the thirty-five parking spaces on the street with the removal of angle parking.

"You'll not only have to replace those thirty-five spaces," Ramos said, "but also you'll need many more to that time."

We agree with the engineer. We agree that it is time for people to stop the emotional fighting against, and begin using that time and energy to plan for the future.

There should be a merchant's association formed, a division of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, but separate so that the group can plan and work as a unit, interested in making this area a better place in which to shop.

Those who say that we need no progress need only look around, see what is happening, and learn that that progress is here, and that in five years Jensen Beach could be paved with condominiums and homes all the way to U.S. 1. That progress and growth will present problems that have never been imagined, and the problems are not going to go away. They are not going to lessen.

The demand for services by the people who live here, and the people who will be moving here, can only get greater, and this is the time to plan those services, or we will see the most belter skelter growth, and the disorganized commercial development that any Florida city south of Jensen Beach can indicate right now.

Ramos told the merchants in the crowd that in one city the merchants put off a $25,000 parking project, and a year later were hit with a $50,000 parking project that just had to be done. He used Lake Worth as an example, and asked those who bet vacant areas be developed into stores, rather that off-street parking, and told how new there is no place for customers to park, and added that all parking was being pulled off the state roads in the Lake Worth area.

A committee of the merchant's association should go to Lake Worth and see the problems of the commercial area, reported back to the Chamber.

Merchants angrily critical of other merchants is not solve problems, they just speed up sands and anger between the merchants. The time it takes to angrily criticize fellow merchants could be spent boosting the area, its stores, and planning solutions to our problems.

We hope that Jensen Beach merchants, faced with both prosperity and responsibility, meet the challenge offered by the quiet-spoken road department district engineer.

Ramos said, "You people must get together and decide what you want to do."

We believe that it is time for the merchants to take at least the first steps...get together.

Grow up and go home

The following editorial was forwarded to The Mirror by County Judge Malcolm Johnson, who said that Judge Gilliam "is an outstanding judge". We agree with his sentiments, and the sentiments of this fine advice.

Some mighty practical advice to teenagers was voiced recently by Judge Phillip G. Gilliam of Denver, and what he said might help a lot of us adults in a better job of living, too...here it is:

Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teenager: What can I do?...Where can we go?...the answer is, GO HOME!...hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork, rake the leaves, mow the lawn, shovel the walk, wash the car, learn to cook, scrub some floors, repair the sink, build a boat, get a job...help the minister, bishop, priest or rabbi, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, visit the sick, study your lessons...and, when you are through - and not too tired - read a book...

Your parents do not owe you entertainment...your city or village does not owe you a living...you owe the world something...you owe it your time and energy and talent. Do not be afraid to be at war, in poverty, or lonely again... in plain simple words - GROW UP, quit being a rebel...get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wishbone, and start acting like a man or lady...

You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some of the responsibilities your parents have carried for years... they have loved, protected, helped, appealed, begged, entreated, tolerated, and bolstered themselves needed comforts so that you could have every benefit...IN HEAVEN'S NAME - - GROW UP AND GO HOME!

The move to Australia

It may come as something of a shock but the eyes of many Americans are on Australia, and the number who are making the move is on the increase.

Even in Washington, many people say that the one country in the world they would like to go to is Australia. They have no particular reason for saying that, except that Australia is still a new land, thinly populated and that the opportunities are about what they were in this country a century or two ago.

A report from Australia a few days ago indicated that the country has had more than a million and a half immigrants since Europe. The number of American immigrants this year is estimated at 3,600, which is less than two per cent of the total, but inquiries from Americans about conditions in Australia show a sharp increase. Two years ago there were 74,000 such inquiries. Last year the number jumped to 100,000, and for the first six months this year there were 61,664.

An interesting thing about this is that the information Americans are seeking about Australia is not primarily economic. They are not seeking higher pay, better job opportunities, or more adequate housing. Salaries in Australia are lower than they are in this country. Bank managers can expect about $6,000 a year; design draftsman, about $5,000; and brick layers, plumbers, and truck drivers, about $4,000 a year.

But an investigation showed that the Americans who have moved in that way are quite satisfied with their lot and are not complaining. They figure the lower salaries have just as much buying power as here. Some of the things they considered just as important were the climate, the relaxed way of life, and the physical environment.

The main reason given by most of the Americans who have left the United States was the tension in this country. An immigration official said, "They just wanted to get away."

Of the number of Americans interviewed in Australia, 53 were married with children, 29 were married with no children, and 37 were single. The family people said they wanted to escape the tension and pressure of life in the United States. Some of the other reasons they gave were race problems, smog, pollution, overcrowding, and traffic jams.

Some reasons also were mentioned by the married people with no children, and the singles, but their overriding reason was a wish to travel, and find out what life was like in a new country.

What all this seems to amount to is that the few Americans who have decided to move to Australia and other new countries have about the same reasons our forebears had for coming to the new world a century or two ago. They also lived under a system of tensions, frustrations and overcrowding in many instances, but their one main reason was to come to a land of freedom and greater economic opportunities.

LIVE ....and love it

A bunch of babies

Tears streamed down my face as I sat on the bench. I was crying, and didn't care who saw it, and, just didn't care.

The cold that numbed my fingers on that tragic afternoon didn't matter any more, and the hot flash of warm blood through the veins and tingling sensation of the warming process was just a part of the many aches and pains that would work their way through the decreasing adrenalin in my system.

My hair, sweaty under the helmet, plastered to my head in a crazy-quilt pattern, stayed in place as I pulled off the headgear, dropping it to the floor with the soft, soundless plop of sorrow.

When you lose a game by one point, it tears the guts right out of you.

I looked around. The benches in the locker room were filled with men with tears streaming down their faces. Some lockers were open, but most had not yet been touched.

Wet hatband walked into the room. What deep silence there had been became deeper. No one looked up, but he was there, we could tell.

"What are you, a bunch of babies?" he said, angrily. "Get in the shower!" He stomped out of the locker room.

Pulling off the shirt over the pads was always a slow, tedious process, but that day it was much more slow and tedious. But the shock of losing were away with the hot, steaming water in the shower. No one spoke, but we communicated.

No one blamed anyone else. It was just one of those long bomb and the extra point that had beat us. We just got beat, that's all. Another day it might have been different. If it hadn't rained. If our scattback rusher had been able to get loose. If...

These memories from Washington University came back to me when I watched the Miami Dolphins, our Cinderella team, go down in defeat before the Oakland Raiders. I imagined the same thing going on in the locker room in Oakland, and the brilliant, tough Don Shula saying about the same thing.

I remember it took several days to get over the loss. It was a frustrating thing, thinking over each and every play as it happened, thinking what might have been done, rather than what was done; thinking of each play as it happened, and plays that might have worked in place of what hadn't worked. But it was over, and that was that.

I've lost a game by one point, it tears the guts out of you.

But, you know, I can't even remember who we played.

Next year, the Dolphins will have a year to remember, and the Oakland game will be fresh in their minds, and things will be different.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Is it so wrong to live and to let live? I raise this question because of my concern over the proposed shopping center and the incorporation which is certain to come of Jensen Beach.

When I was a kid my parents and I moved to Jensen; it was small compared to my past home, but I liked it just the way it was...small and friendly.

My father owned and managed the local Drug Store which was run down and previously headed for bankruptcy. He put his heart and soul into that store and gave up everything, even his family, to make a success out of Sun and Surf Drugs.

My family has practically lived in that store since I was twelve years old. It was a tough grind for all of the merchants of Jensen Beach. It has only been recently that in our particular case, my father even had a day off from work.

Harper Quinn is another such case. He stands up day after day cutting meat, trying his best to satisfy the needs of the community. He does not reap any startling profit from the community, his reward is a few hours of fishing each week.

Many of the businesses have come and gone from their Commercial Street location, it has only been the stronger ones who have survived.

Certainly our local stores are not competitive with the big chains. They can't be for they are locally owned and operated with the fruit of their labor passing on to the community in the form of other services, which is not true of the chains.

I am not against the building of a shopping center in Jensen, only that it be placed farther to the West, nearer the site of future growth. The present site, next door to all the small businesses is certain to drive the small guys out of operation. However, if the shopping center builds, even a mile to the West of the proposed residential site, then there would still be room enough for the little guys.

Cities have little use for the common man, but Jensen Beach is different. Jensen offers the individual, not just a number but a place in the community. I don't have to dwell upon this for most of you have experienced the mass culture of the city. People live and winter in Jensen because they like the benefits which a community such as ours has to offer. If they wanted a commercialised city, they would move to Miami Beach.

If a certain few individuals with dollar bills glaring in their eyes, manage to transform this quaint "COMMUNITY" into just another "CITY", it will be a disadvantage to us all, for we will be sanctioning this "MASS CULTURE."

Sincerely yours,
Glenn "Porky" Bryan, Jr.

To the Editor:

At the last meeting of the Board of Directors, note was taken of your outstanding mail-away edition of Nov. 28, 1970 and of the excellent advertisement character as prepared by your staff in behalf of the Chamber.

I was instructed to convey to you the appreciation of the Board for The MIRROR'S unswerving devotion to the welfare of the community and careful reporting of all that transpires including the Chamber's own activities in this era of transition and of decision.

It is a pleasure to remark the increasing success of your enterprise and to wish you a great New Year!

By direction of the Board,
Sincerely yours,
John Power
Executive Secretary.

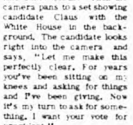
The Claude Claus Clause



Isn't this a great time of the year? I mean, here it is the first week in January and there you are waiting for the mailing to come back to your Christmas wallet, and the swelling to go away from your New Year's head. And here I am about to hit you with a Deep Thought. Something to start the New Year off right. Something to Think About.

Santa Claus for President. Is that a grabber?

But before you roll all over the rug laughing, let me assure you that this is entirely within the realm of possibility. Santa Claus is being seriously considered as a presidential candidate in 1972.

"To our knowledge, no one likes pollution, but many of those who speak out against it do not hesitate to create it, like the students of professional protesters who drive to an antipollution meeting in a 15-year-old jalopy burning cheap gasoline and clouding the landscape with a blue haze. Or the candidates who promise full employment but at the same time demand the closure of any industrial plant that is causing smoke or dust."

Independent-News, Hawthorne, Nev.

"It business as most of it is constituted today, a man becomes valuable only as he recognizes the relation of his work to that of all his associates. One worker more or less makes little difference to most big organizations, and any man may be replaced. It is the cumulative effort that counts."

Grand Rapids, Mich., News

Last week, according to reports in the trade publication, "Advertising Age", three ad agencies made the announcement in a special presentation to the National Communications Club, in the presentation, they showed roughs for newspaper ads and samples of radio and TV spots for their candidate.

They said there probably would be a few problems which would have to be overcome.

The image, for instance. They might have to change that a bit.

For although a candidate may be well-known and popular, with good visibility, high name recognition, a spotless image and solid financial backing from toy manufacturers and retailers, they did express a few reservations about some things the voters might not like.

His long hair and beard, for instance. In this day and age, that might be a problem to some of the older voters. Like those over 30, say.

And some key backers of the campaign feel that no one ever sees Mrs. Claus. But they think that can be overcome by a lot of candid shots of babies of her in all the newspapers and magazines, and possibly the publication of her favorite recipe for popcorn balls in "Woman's Day."

Or...something.

But let's carry the agencies' ideas a little further.

The candidate's name doesn't present too much of a problem. Research shows that he has a long list of aliases, and other names will be supplied to please just about every minority segment of the electorate. Suggested names include Sir Claus, Cisco Claus, Vito Claus, and Santa Fong. It was also suggested that the name Claude Claus be used to appease the outgoing governor of Florida.

Sort of a Claude Claus clause.

Some of the rough stuff in the political campaign will be saved for last. This will include an ad which shows a Christmas morning scene with no presents under the tree. Little children will be shown crying and pointing accusingly at parents, who are hanging their heads in shame. Through the window, top will see the neighbor's house with smiles and presents, and everyone having a wonderful time. A bold caption on the ad will read, "Christmas morning, your children will KNOW how you voted."

Sorta gets to you, doesn't it?

Political slogans will probably be, "A Man For All Seasons," and perhaps, "Candidate for the Little People."

One commercial being discussed will show the Wacha Sleigh Works trying to turn out some kind of a sleigh (not what Santa ordered) by December 28th, after a walkout by the sleighmakers union. The commercial will have the tag line, "Vote for a president who really cares ... Santa ... he KNOWS the problems." The commercial ends with Santa's voice crying, Ho-Ho-Ho.

For one of the color TV spots, the commercial opens with a chorus singing, "Everybody doesn't like something ... but nobody doesn't like Santa Claus." Then the camera pans to a set showing candidate Claus with the White House in the background. The candidate looks right into the camera and says, "Let me make this perfectly clear. For years you've been sitting on my knees and asking for things and I've been giving. Now it's my turn to ask for something. I want your vote for president."

There's a moment's pause while Santa blinks into the camera. They he continues, "As your good, kind and generous President, I'll be able to send gifts, goodies and lots and lots of money to countries all over the world. And I'll even pass legislation so you can pay for it. But..."

"...I need your vote. So, for the very first time I'll be releasing my great big list of Good Boys and Bad Boys to the press, complete with names, dates and places. Don't take a chance of finding your name in the wrong column! Don't let YOUR children wake up Christmas morning with no presents under the tree, and the realization that momma and daddy voted the wrong way! Remember Santa, and he'll remember you!" The commercial ends with the camera panning past Santa to the top of the White House upon which can be seen eight tiny reindeer.

You know something?

It's going to be a rough year....

WELCOME--What was termed a "fantastic show" by the water skiers of Cypress Gardens was opened with a welcome to the new St. Lucie Hilton Inn by the skiers, holding lettered signs on their skis. A large contingent of boaters came for the show, watching it from their craft on the outer fringes of the show area in the North Fork of the St. Lucie River.

Hatcher-Harris vows exchanged

Stuart--The wedding of Miss Judith Elaine Harris to Wirt Hargrove Hatcher, III, took place Dec. 27 at United Presbyterian Church in Stuart. The Rev. David King, associate pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Robert O. Yost of North River Shores and the late Rev. Malcolm A. Harris. Mr. and Mrs. Wirt Hargrove Hatcher, Jr. are parents of the groom. Their residence is in Richmond, Va.

Given in marriage by her brother, James T. Harris, the bride wore a gown of candlelight tissue faille trimmed with champagne lace and seed pearls. It had an empire waist, victorian sleeves and neckline, and a short train. She wore an illusion veil headdress.

The bride's flowers were a cascade bouquet of red and white rosebuds, ivy and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Daniel Kilkarnie served as matron of honor. Her gown followed the style of the bride's, was of emerald velvet trimmed with pearls. Her headband was of matching velvet and pearls, and she and the bridesmaids carried nosegays of red and yellow carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Julia Allen, Washington, D. C.; Miss Vicki Verdrill of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Ellen Hatcher, Richmond, Va.

Wirt Hatcher, Jr. served as best man. Ushers were Joe Long, Lauriburg, N.C.; Robert Nigro and Edwin Godberry, both of Richmond, Va.

The bride's mother wore a blue textured satin gown with silver accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The groom's mother chose a gown of gold and tangerine brocade and wore an orchid in her hair.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Kenneth Mauger, organist, played a medley of wedding music. Mrs. Robert Koster played "I Love You Truly" and "Lohengrin's Wedding March" on the harp, playing softly during the ceremony.

The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yost. The bride's table was covered with white linen overlaid with a lace cloth. The three-tier wedding cake was decorated with white and yellow rosebuds and was flanked with silver punch bowls and silver individual vases arrangements of white, yellow and bronze mums and red carnations decorated the home.

Serving at the reception were Mrs. Joe Long, Miss Annette Lee, Mrs. Donald Ardelle, Miss Rachel Fenton, Miss Jane Zercher, Mrs. Joe Cress and Mrs. Kenneth Knowles.

Following a wedding trip to a ski resort in North Carolina, the newlyweds will reside in Lauriburg, N.C. For her wedding trip the bride chose a gold wool knit three-piece suit with leopard trim. Her accessories were black and she wore an orchid corsage.

The new Mrs. Hatcher is a 1966 graduate of Martin County High School, a 1970 graduate of St. Andrew's Presbyterian College, and teaches at Mt. Gall, S.C.

The groom is a graduate of collegiate schools, attended the University of Virginia and is now attending St. Andrew's Presbyterian College.

Mans on Bridge

By JAY H. MANS

Smart—Really the smaller phase of the bidding process is no trump bidding. Repeating quickly the basic premises. We open the bidding with one no trump with 16, 17 or 18 points, a balanced hand, stoppers in at least three suits, and insist that the fourth suit contain either three small cards or two, to be honor headed by the Queen, the perfectly balanced hand would consist of a 4-3-3-3 distribution, but 4-4-3-2 or even 5-3-3-2 if the five card suit is a minor.

I suggest that hands containing a five card major suit, even tho they include 18 points generally work out better if the major is bid.

Responders do not have much difficulty, or should not, with 8 or 9 points, two no trump should be bid, with from 10 to 14 points, three no trump is proper, with 15, over no trump slam invitational Hortginal bidder holds 19 points, with 17 aus no trump, etc. Seven points or less are generally passed because the forseeable total bidding would not come up with the usually required 26 points for game.

The Stayman Convention is a good tool which helps getting to game when the partners hold a 4-4 fit in either major, and we will discuss this subject in detail in a later column.

When responder holds 8 or 10 points, including a 5 card major, bidding either 3 spades or 3 hearts indicates willingness to play at game level in the major suit and the original bidder usually accedes to this suggestion. However, a 3 on trump redid should be final.

One special note. A bid of 2 in a suit by a responder should indicate to original bidder that chances of making one no trump are considered slim by the responder and suggests that playing in 2 of the bid suit has a better chance of either making or keeping the losses to a lower level.

This bid should be used when holding a 3 or 4 card suit and less than 5 points in the hand. Original bidder should go along with the judgment of the partner making the bid of 2 in a suit. For Stayman bidders, 2 clubs would have a different connotation.

Believe it or not the above resume covers all there is to bidding no trump in Standard American bidding. Easy? Yes, I suggest that shading 1 no trump openers to 15 points is not good general practice. Once to a while a hand with 15 points and 2 or more 10's along side your honors might work out. At times a responder with 9 high card points and a couple of 10's could stretch his bid to 3 no trump safely. I will conclude with some sample hands:

1. S- A 4 3; H- K J 8; D- J 7 2; C- A K 8 3.
2. S- 3 4 3; H- K Q 6 2; D- J 10 7; C- A K Q J.
3. S- A 8 4 2; H- K 10 9; D- A J 5 4; C- Q 2.
4. S- Q 2; H- A Q 9; D- A J 3; C- K J 10 8 2.

1. S- K 9 4 2; H- J 8 6; D- K 4 2; C- J 4 2.

Two no trump.

2. S- A 5 4; H- K 4 2, D- J 10 4 3; C- Q 4 3.

Three no trump.

3. S- K J 8 5 2; H- 4 2; D- J 8 4 2; C- 8 6.

Three spades.

4. S- 10 8 5 4 2; H- 3; D- Q 10 4 2; C- 9 2.

Two spades.

By DICK CAMPBELL

JB—The loss of $283,000 in state education funds was classed as "a crushing blow" by James Navitsky, school superintendent of Martin County, as he spoke on the past, present and future of the county's school system Monday before the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club.

The funds were lost when a new Florida law became effective, penalizing counties that did not assess full and valorum taxes at 100% of value.

The loss reduced available funds for the school system from the budgeted $4,870,000 to $4,317,000.

"With eight percent of our outlay in salaries, and fixed expenses taking a major part of the rest, we have to come up with 'no cut' in the funding formula. The superintendent pointed out that this will mean we are going to have a rough time making up for the loss."

Navitsky said, adding that, "I feel that this will happen not as a flat, all inclusive little thing," he indicated that there was a possibility that the school system could have to borrow money in the latter part of the fiscal year.

Navitsky said that the state was stated to pay between 44% and 48% of the budget funds, but the kids weren't sure that the county pays ad valorum taxes, and there is added to the Martin County system due to residences to deal with the rest of the counties and deal quickly with potential problem areas.

He praised the handling of integration by the school system, and said that the proof of the value of the system was shown in the fact that test scores in senior placement for college indicated that the high school students were becoming better students.

"We went from 0% to 3.6% on students having over 430 score on their placement tests, and, for the first time, we had the state data getting over 400 on their placement tests. Two of our students are now competing for national merit scholarships, a high average for our size system," he said proudly.

But the crush of students was another problem aggravated by the loss of funds. There are 529 more students in school this year than there were last year, Jensen Elementary School is occupying with over 600 students in classes.

Navitsky said that the 33 portables now in use were not the answer, but had to be used. He indicated that there was a possibility of double sessions and an extended school year in the offing for fall, 1971.

He did say that the school was researching the dollar cost of the courses now being offered, with "accountability" being the basis for the cost. He added that the people "should know what it costs to produce what kind of student". He also said the administration was working on the improvement of student records to benefit people who are looking to the future for information on students.

The teachers of the county school system came in for high praise from Navitsky, who said they are "dedicated and operating on a high level". He said that millionary was avoided among teachers "because we allowed them to take part in deciding what would be taught".

For the future, Navitsky said the school system was going to have to look to the federal government for funding.

"Ad valorum taxes are no longer the proper measure of taxation," he said. "We've got to have sufficient funds with which to operate."

Navitsky was introduced by Bob Thomas, program director of Kiwanis, and administrator of St. Joseph College.

CONDOMINIUM CONCEPT—The units join in common relationship in this concept of the condominium by Bill Dean, called Seaside Condominium just south of the Jensen public beaches. More units are planned across the highway, As-i-a from this section.

ANGLER CLUB TOPS—The annual election of officers and directors of Martin County Anglers Club produced this group of directors of the con-

Over-65's respond

Stuart—The response to an appeal for those over 65 years of age to register for jury duty was "overwhelming," according to County Commissioner Bill Owens Tuesday.

"The clerk was typing all day long, and the names were still coming in," Owens said.

Outgoing Commissioner Bill Hussey made the appeal in local news media last week, citing Florida law that removes the names of persons over 65 from jury lists. He said there were many who would like to serve, and asked them to call the county clerk to have their names put on the jury lists.

Owens reported that 1,860 names had been entered, but asked that other commissioners complete their lists.

Friends fly to Conovers

JB—Mr. and Mrs. George Conover of Wells Drive received a surprise visit from friends in Italy, but not seen for about three years recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shank of White Bear Lake, Minnesota, arrived in their private plane at Witham Field in Stuart, after flying south and reach the Conovers to telephone, the bureau of it ran from a good samaritan at the field and drove to Jensen Beach. "We couldn't believe our eyes when we opened the door," Mrs. Conover told The Mirror reporter. The Shanks were entertained at the Crow's Nest and at a cocktail party at the Conover's home during their two-night visit.

2,369,925 taxpayers to receive 1040's

Jacksonville — Treasury-revenue Service (IRS) agents in their way to 2,369,925 filers this taxpayers, according to S. J. (Mitchell, Jr., of the Internal Revenue Service.

Changes made by the tax reform act of 1969 include a new zero-bracket allowance, increased personal exemptions from $600 to $650, returns no longer required from single persons with incomes under $1,700, more generally non-itemized persons filing jointly with incomes under $3,300, forgiving that several million people no longer need file Form 1040.

Optional tax tables have been extended from $5,000 to $10,000. The tax surcharge, which was 10 percent last year, was reduced to five percent for the first half of 1970 and eliminated for the last half. Surcharge will be figured at the average rate of 2.5 percent.

Many more Florida taxpayers can now choose to have the Chamber Service Center or Internal Revenue Service figure their tax for them, if desired, said.

30 feet lost

Erosion crumbling causeway, endangering picnic paradise

By DICK CAMPBELL

JB--Tall, skeletal trees, their branches withering from a diet of air and water, stand starkly above the sand, perched on their own roots. Victims of the relentless current and tidal changes of the Indian River, they are mute testimony of the power of nature.

The once proud Jensen Beach fishing pier invites waders to its wide, planked walkway, where once the sightseer and fisherman could walk there is water, and a gap of ten feet separates the pedestrian from the pier.

Steps that led up to the pier, put in place when water washed away the approach, are now awash with the river's tides, causing those who would walk on, or fish from, the pier to wade to the edge of the pier, or try to balance precariously on the dead log that someone used to bridge the gap.

The giant Jensen pavilion, site of so many social picnicking functions of the people of Jensen Beach, is endangered by the erosion of the causeway. The river edge of the slab, reinforced 10 years past with fill, has given up, and fallen a foot below the level of the rest of the pavilion.

But it is the trees that show the damage of erosion the greatest. Some have tired of balancing on their roots and have fallen into the river. One tree clings to life by wrapping its roots against and around an electric utility pole, and stretching life-seeking tentacles into the bank of the causeway, which has already receded past the tree.

Over thirty feet of shoreline have washed into the Indian River from the causeway, measurable by the original line of land, and by the bulkheaded section of the north side of the recreation area.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha, asked to comment on the danger to the causeway park, said, "We're taking action on that at the county commission meeting tomorrow. Please let me have the pictures of the damages."

Tuesday, the county commission agreed to make emergency repairs to the park shoreline. Bids are being taken to provide 275 feet of seawall to protect the developed area of the park. The seawall will extend from the north boat ramp to a point 25 feet west of the fishing pier, reinforcing the land area.

The seawall will be six feet in height, to put four feet into the ground and two above so that the step down to the water for bathers will not be too high.

Wacha's report was boosted by County Engineer Tom Slider, who said, "If we don't do something soon, we're going to be in real trouble."

Commissioner Bill Owens said he couldn't imagine as much damage as the photographs showed, and was a strong supporter of the move, as were all other commissioners. The bids will be returned on February 8. Construction will begin as soon as possible, according to Wacha.

WADING AREA--Fishermen and sightseers have to wade to the Jensen Beach fishing pier on the causeway. The Indian River has eroded much of the bank away, and a ten foot stretch of water faces the pedestrian. A log of a tree that was killed by the erosion is a slippery footwalk. Martin County plans to save the causeway beach with emergency bulkheading in the area.

Tom who?

Stuart--County Commissioner Bill Owens walked into the commission office with a slip of paper in his hand.

"I've got to call the governor," said the former Democratic state legislator.

"What does Tom Adams want?" asked Republican County Commissioner Bill Owens, newly elected state vice-chairman of the Republican Executive Committee.

Dunning will get hearing

JB--The battle between St. Lucie Marine and residents of Alice Avenue continued on a collision course this week as the Martin County commission deferred action on a warrant for two separate zoning violations.

Attorney Richard Dunning, representing St. Lucie Marine, will be asked to state his views before the board at the next meeting of the county commission. He has been ruled in violation of the zoning by setting docks from the marina basin.

Also, Lawrence Tilton, one of the residents of Alice Avenue, which seems to be the center of the fight over zoning violation, will be asked to come before the board to explain his side of the charge that he is keeping boats at his property, also in violation of the zoning.

The violation was charged with the administration by Dunning.

Zoning Director Tom Higgins, abiding by his policy in cases of zoning violations, asked for legal advice, but the county commission was more concerned with hearing the side of the zoning. At the last meeting they passed a "cease and desist" resolution asking Dunning stop violating the zoning, but received a letter from the marina owner asking to be heard.

Rally to draw 200 Airstreams

JB--Over 200 Airstream trailers are expected to flock to Hutchinson Island this weekend for a Red Carpet Rally, sponsored by Windsong Village By-The-Sea, Outdoor Resorts of America, Nettles Island, officials of both companies, Martin County officials, and the Nashville entertainment. Bobby Lord are expected to be on hand for the gala social affair.

Randall Henderson, president of Outdoor Resorts of America; Charles B. McClatchey, executive vice president and Arthur G. Fort, vice president and director of resort company, will be introduced at a dinner Friday night. Lord and his troupe will entertain on Saturday night with a "Grand Ole Opry"-style show which will feature such famous Nashville entertainers.

The show will be open to invited guests only, according to Edward Eggers, director of club services for Outdoor Resorts. Eggers is a past president of the Airstream Caravan Club, South Florida Unit, and is in charge of this weekend's rally, which was conceived to promote this area's beauty.

Airstream trailers from all over the country are expected to register at the official opening this Friday. The rally will break up on Sunday afternoon, after church services.

Landscape ordinance effective in 90 days

Stuart--Determined conservationists and persons interested in future development of the county pressed for a hearing and won in the matter of Martin County's pioneering landscaping ordinance. There was no one to object to the ordinance, despite its universal appeal at the commission meeting room, county commissioners asked that the ordinance be read, section by section, and in two hours Zoning Director Tom Higgins read the many pages of the ordinance, stopping at each section for comment by the board members and the public.

The landscape ordinance will go into effect in 90 days after it is approved by the office of the attorney general. That approval is expected in 4 weeks.

In pressing for the reading, one observer said, "We had time to read it. We don't know why the commission didn't have time to read it..." to the obvious embarrassment of the commissioners.

In closing comments, Attorney Robert Gibbs, president of the Martin County Men's Garden Club, said, "I realize that the owners of present shopping centers in the county will improve their areas to make our county more beautiful and meet the requirements of the ordinance."

In other business, the commission:

HEARD an explanation of the reasons for frankly painted "no trespassing" signs on Jupiter Island, as Jupiter Island town manager Richard G. Shenkir told them that fishermen were passing over private property to get to the beach, explained that there were many access routes for fishermen on the north and south ends of the island, as well as the county beach at Bridge Road, but are not, and asked the county to look at two unimproved road ends off the highway to the north for park areas.

TABLED the beach buggy regulations to the next meeting.

ACCEPTED a report that Jim Foster had resigned from the planning and zoning board. New commissioner Paul Bryant will announce a new appointment at the next meeting.

BROKEN SLAB--The heavy slab of the major Jensen Beach Causeway pavilion broke under its own weight on the north side of the pavilion, the fill beneath it washed out by the Indian River tides.

JB--A bronze plaque, bearing the names of donors to the building fund for the Jensen Beach Women's Association clubhouse will be unveiled on Monday, Jan. 18.

Basketball games will be Saturday

Jensen Beach Little Leaguers have basketball games scheduled for this Saturday, the 16th, at the Jensen Kiwanis and Rotary will meet the Jensen 13-U at 9:15 a.m. at Murray Hall.

In the Pony league, games will start at 10:45 a.m. at Murray Hall. Jensen Tire & Electric will meet Hart Electric, at 11:45 a.m. The 3rd Real Estate will take on the Jensen Beach Bank.

Last week's games saw Jensen Kiwanis beat Jensen VFW in a close 22-21 score, Randy Steel bowled, not too low, to Mosley Construction in a 28-27 loss.

Rick Carroll ins. rolled over Jensen Bank 34-18 in one of the Pony League games, Jensen First Federal took Tilton Real Estate 35-31.

Firemen begin annual appeal

JB--Letters went out last weekend to open the 1971 fund drive for the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department.

In an appeal for funds, Chief Randolph Spinney urged that the people donate to their fire department, citing it as "one of the best equipped and most efficient fire departments in Martin County."

Spinney wrote that the "general-city" of the residents, "combined with the efforts of the volunteer firemen" resulted in "an excellent insurance rating, and many...pay a lower premium."

"We now have personnel on duty from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday."

Spinney wrote as he invited the public to visit the fire house and see the investment of time and money in the facility. The fire house is located on Palmetto Road, two blocks north of Commercial Street on the F.E.C. Railroad tracks.

Spinney also informed the citizens that burning permits could be obtained "on the day you plan to burn" by calling the business phone at the fire house, 287-2220. He also urged all residents to put the Jensen Fire Department telephone number for emergency calls, 287-2221, on their telephone so that it would be available. It is not in the local telephone book in a place readily accessible in an emergency.

Jensen is forgotten city

JB--About six thousand people who live in Jensen Beach became non-persons last weekend with the release of the final figures on the United States Census. Jensen Beach doesn't even exist, according to the district office of the census bureau in Atlanta.

Quite a few other places in the area were mentioned, and some St. Lucie county residents of Fort St. Lucie were included in the Martin County figures, but there was no Jensen Beach.

The census listed incorporated communities in the area, such as the Town of Ocean Breeze Park, Sewall's Point, Jupiter Island and Stuart, and the unincorporated communities of Hobe Sound, Indiantown, Fort Salonga, but no Jensen Beach.

Indications of the quality of the census were shown in the report that the City of Stuart had increased its population by only 2% persons, defying staff recommendations from the city manager, Ed Glassco's wife quickly named the many subdivisions in the city that had been established and filled in the city over the past few years.

The public is invited to visit the artwork view the two-bedroom villas.

Island now $750 a foot

JB--Hutchinson Island, a few years ago selling for $350 a front foot, is going up in price. The latest place of land sold for $750 a front foot.

In an exchange of property titles filed at the Martin County Courthouse, a 200 foot strip of land on the island, just north of Elliott Museum, sold for $150,000, ocean to river. The property was sold by Maurice Clemmons and Maxine G. Clemmons to Francis Roach of Lake Forest, Ill.

COOKS--Norris Tilton and Bob Smith, above, were kept busy Sunday serving fried chicken, baked beans and coleslaw to the 375 persons who attended the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club fund-raising chicken dinner Sunday at Langford Park field house.

Where are the 18's?

The eighteen year old citizen has a right to vote in national elections. They can elect their congressmen, their senators, their president.

They can vote, if they will only register.

There has been no mass registration of voters in the eighteen through twenty age group. It is as if they are not interested in government.

We believe that the young people must earn the right to vote by showing their responsible voting nature. They have been given that right by the United States Supreme Court.

The Mirror disagrees with the ruling of the court, which we feel further dilutes state rights to determine the qualification of voters, transferring more power to the central government. But we believe that, once the decision has been made, and the ruling is law, we must obey that ruling.

For this reason, we urge the young people to begin registering to vote. By their interest and their activity, especially in voting during national elections, the young people may earn the support of the rest of the Nation in their quest of the right to vote in state and local elections.

But, where are the eighteens?

Martin County Supervisor of Elections Isabelle Smith reports that only ten young people from eighteen to twenty have registered to vote. Six are Republicans and four are Democrats. Five males and one female are Republicans and three male and one female are Democrats.

Recently, St. Lucie County reported only fifteen young people registering. Twelve are Democrats, three Republicans, and six are women and nine are men.

More than 2,500 persons in the age group are eligible to vote.

We believe that the young people will become more interested as time brings them closer to a national election, but we cannot imagine the apathy that would keep thousands of potential voters from the polls.

It might be the inaction of the two major political parties. No effort has been made to recruit the voters. It might be that the young people just don't care about the responsibilities of government. If the latter is the case, this newspaper must have been wrong in supporting the passage of a constitutional amendment allowing the young people to vote at eighteen.

Salute the Jaycees

One of the greatest losses to any man happens on the day he passes his thirty-fifth year. He can no longer be an active member of the Jaycees.

But those who are in the 21 to 35 age group can belong to this great, leadership training group of doers. Many do, and many get the satisfaction of being an important part of the community through their efforts in the Jaycees.

The Stuart Jaycees, and the Fort Pierce Jaycees are two of the most active young men's groups in the state, and the people know it. So, during Jaycee Week, the annual time of recognition and evaluation of our young men, we offer our salute and best wishes to the Jaycees of our communities.

The Jaycees believe that community service is the best work the young men can do, and their efforts in the past heap the rich reward that accomplishment bestows upon them.

Post office backs up

For the first time in history, the post office closed for Christmas and New Year's, limiting itself to lobby service for postage stamps through stamp machines.

The central collecting division in Palm Beach didn't run a truck to Jensen Beach on either holiday. Postal employees went home.

Wouldn't it be strange if buses from town to town stopped running on holidays, if air lines stopped flying from city to city on holidays, and everybody went home and stayed there on holidays?

Wouldn't it be dangerous if firemen refused to fight fires, and policemen went home on holidays, refusing to protect the citizens of each community?

What would happen if Florida Power and Light Company didn't have a crew on duty to serve the people in case of power failures?

What, also, would happen if the telephone rang on Christmas Eve, and a voice said, "There will be no telephone service on Christmas, sorry about that,..."?

We believe that the reduction of service in the postal service is a tragic end of a proud history of service to the nation. The famed phrase, carved on the Nation's Post Office building, "Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds" must have an addition...it should read, "except on holidays, or if it rains tomorrow."

The local post office in Jensen Beach has no control over the actions and directives of its superior central offices. And, this is a trying time for the postal service, entering a period of reevaluation under a new format, changing from a Cabinet division to a separate agency, directed by a board.

But those in power must realize that, like the many service institutions in America, the postal service is a service institution, and must provide service to its customers 52 weeks out of each year, and 365 days of those weeks.

If anything, we feel that service should be expanded, rather than be withdrawn. We believe that the pride of a national office that has a history of achievement (however bureaucratic) must not be replaced with the attitude of "just another job".

Too many people depend on the post office for too many things. The entire commercial system of the Nation is endangered by a post office system that slowly withdraws its services while increasing prices for those services.

It is time for the people to write in service to a halt and recognize that the post office is named Postal Service, and service is vitally served.

Clear the air

It takes a grand jury investigation to find that a person distributing information on criminal cases in Martin County, then the investigation should be held.

To learn that 35 of 211 cases were dropped due to lack of evidence, that only two were found guilty out of ten tried, and that 40 pleaded guilty in a shock to the people of this county who have believed that we had a pretty good system of justice here.

The information related to the county commission by Frank Wacha certainly does, as he commented, make this "a real fine place to be picked up for anything."

Wacha said that several cases he knew of had not even been put on the "books", and that no one had been arrested and tried in the cases.

A careful man, Wacha didn't try to pinpoint responsibility for the lack of conviction in the arrests. He did say that someone should find out about it, and suggested that the county attorney help by advising the county commission what it could do with the information.

Attorney Bill Scott said that the county should go to the grand jury with the information, and further suggested that a meeting with circuit judges might enable the commissioners to gain advice that might be valuable. States attorney Jim Littman also supported a grand jury investigation, as did Sheriff Roy Baker.

In a time of concentration on law and order, this might be the perfect time to analyze the conduct of our investigations and prosecution of law breakers. The preliminary evidence shows the need for a look, and everyone supports such a project.

She had problems

The tenth grade history teacher at Seneca High School got sort of peeved the other day after asking one cute young thing to go to the wall map and trace the boundary of Hungary with her finger.

The mini-skirted young lady went to the map and jabbed her index finger at the country and back down again, quickly... Asked to trace the entire boundary, she covered the southern portion all right, but just jabbed again quickly at the northern portion.

The teacher got sort of mad and sent her to sit down... What he didn't know and understand was that, ever on tiptoe, she just couldn't reach up to the "Northern" section without the mini-skirt flying up way past the bounds of decency. And with the eyes of the entire class aroused in!

LIVE ....and love it

by Dick Campbell

I got a license

As I walked into the room, I saw several people of various ages sitting on the chairs, intently studying the Florida Drivers' Guide, I was worried.

I was about to take the driver's license exam for the first time in twelve years. I had to, with my birthday in January and being born in an odd year.

Should I fake it, or just walk up, get a book, and woodshed a little? I decided to woodshed.

I picked up a guide and went out, joining the others in the county courthouse hallway. I sat down and began reading through the many laws that affect the driver, the informative paragraphs on this and that situation, and found that I had forgotten a lot.

I'm a good driver, I think, and I was jolted by the many items lost in the back of my memory.

About half way through the book, a person I knew walked out of the office with a big smile on her face.

"Hi, Dick," she said. "What are you doing?"

"Trying to wade through all these laws," I said dejectedly.

"Why?" she asked.

"I have to take my test, and I want to pass the first time."

If you fail the test and have to come back it takes three bucks extra, so I didn't want to fail.

"Oh, don't bother about that, it's the easiest test you have ever seen. All they ask is to recognize some road signs," she said. She waved a slip in front of my nose, and said, "See, I passed. It was a snap."

I flopped the book closed and walked into the room. There was a line of people as the courteous highway patrol officer and a helper tested and questioned the people applying for a license and going for renewal.

I filled out the form he handed me, gave him the three dollars for the test, and had the three dollars for the license handed back to me.

"Now 'till you pass," he said. I had strange feelings about it, and could see my three bucks going down the drain for my not knowing how many feet it takes to stop a car going sixty miles an hour.

"First the eye test," he said.

I walked over to the machine, looked into it and saw three lines of letters. I read the left, the right, and the one in the middle. He scribbled something on a sheet and said, "You pass."

He then handed me a form. It was the test. My blood rushed as I took it over to a table to write. What a test.

It was multiple choice. It was simple, so simple I wondered why I was there.

There was a picture of a stop sign. It had "STOP" on the sign. The question was, "What do you do when you see this?" The multiple choices included something like, "Come to a complete stop", "Roll through, looking to the right and left", and several other wild things.

In about thirty seconds, I handed the paper over, he took my three bucks, and I was on my way.

The testing, I can see, is more a formality than anything. What the patrol is looking for is people with damaged sight and hearing who should not be driving.

In a few weeks I will have a new license, spit out by a computer in Tallahassee, and I'll be legal again. Until then I am driving on a temporary permit.

But I passed.

Notes and Comments

More soap in your eye

A few weeks back, you and I discussed the soap pollution problem. Like how we can phosphate ourselves out of existance by using a lot of the current commercial washday products. And how the problem is even more acute in areas abounding in septic tanks.

Like ours.

Meanwhile, the big soap manufacturers are still trying to find ways of making products that will clean clothes without eliminating the people wearing them, and our city and county fathers are "discussing" ways of eliminating the septic tank problem and installing the sewage plants we should have had years ago.

While all this frenzied activity is taking place, let me get your mind off the fact that your coffee is starting to taste soapy by telling you a true story.

It's been around for a while, and it's a funny story. The kind ad-men love to tell on each other. I've heard it many times before, but I read it again recently in Terry Galanoy's new book, "Down the Tube," so I thought I'd pass it along.

It started several years ago, when a writer at an expensive advertising agency came up with an idea for a commercial for a new washday product. The script called for a huge five-story tall mock-up of the soap powder box to be built out on the open plains. It said that hundreds of people would come from the villages and farms for miles around to worship at its feet and say what a miracle it was, and how it had been sent to release them all from washday bondage.

"Hundreds of people?" the film studio assigned to shoot the commercial asked.

"Maybe a hundred?" asked the agency writer who had dreamed it all up.

"You'll have to pay them all a talent fee every time the commercial's shown. It could break the soap company about the fourth time it played," the studio said.

"Whatever shall we do?" the writer said, pointing to a map of Europe on his desk.

"I would suggest," said the studio man who was not above taking a hint to get a job, "that we shoot this commercial in Europe where we do not have the same expensive problems with extras and talent fees?"

"Splendid," said the writer. "I just happen to be packed."

So it came to pass that the entire film crew and half the advertising agency, all complete with large expense accounts, went to a small country in the Balkans. They arrived in the native villages with gaily colored trinkets called money and lined up an army of locals who had always wanted to be in the movies.

They picked a huge plain outside the village, and workmen set to with native tools and craftsmanship to build the world's largest box of soap powder. But there was one thing they hadn't counted on...

The job was almost finished when the rains came.

"Say, it's raining," the director complained to a local chief who was also the construction foreman.

"It'll go away," the local said.

"Coming down hard and steadily," the director said, and didn't want any talent fees. The commercial was finished, and it was great. But you'll never see it.

Because it was about that The Word came.

The last all the soap company had discovered that its great new product had to be taken off the market.

It seems that while it did clean clothes brighter than bright and newer than new, it had one small flaw that they didn't think people would appreciate.

It ate holes in clothing.

In a panic, the director was on the telephone to ad agency headquarters in New York.

"Well, you've been there for four days and you've spent a lot of money, and you can't come back with NOTHING," New York screamed.

"Well, find us a place where it's not raining," the director said.

There was a brief consultation. Then they had it. "Say," they said, "the Israel. It's not far from you. Across the Mediterranean is all. And a little bit down on the map. There's a place out on the Negev Desert where it never rains. Never. I'll go where you get there."

So the crew squeezed and wrung out, packed up, said goodbye to the native villagers, and headed for the Promised Land.

There, everything went beautifully. The local carpenters pounded together a huge soap powder box. The sun shown. The local people were friendly and helpful, and didn't want any talent fees. The commercial was finished, and it was great. But you'll never see it.

Because it was about that The Word came.

The last all the soap company had discovered that its great new product had to be taken off the market.

It ate holes in clothing.

To the Editor:

Belated congratulations on a fine job with your most ambitious special edition.

Some people just have an overabundance of ambition and drive and they undertake such monumental tasks. Others of us just labor to get the product out each week. We of the latter category envy you of the former.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

Just a note to thank you for all the wonderful things you have done for Rusty Sams since he broke his leg at the beach. Thanks to the rescue squad, Mr. & Mrs. Kennedy Ingall, for having us for dinner, anyone who helped the night of the accident, which I can't remember everyone who helped at the beach. Also visitors, Rev. Johnson from the Community Church, cookies, candy, and all the things people did to make Rusty's Christmas in the hospital a happy one.

Our family loves it here at Jensen Beach and hope someday to come for the whole winter. One of the nicest things is your natural beach, it is still natural like God made it, not like all built up like many places down here.

We hope that Jensen Beach never changes, because I think there are some things that God made that He doesn't want changed by man, just to make lots of money.

So hope I didn't miss anyone for all they've done, also to Bob & Virginia Johnson who own the Indian River Motel where we're staying, they have been wonderful to us the three years we've been coming down. Many thanks to them.

May God bless each one of you.

Sincerely,
Rusty Sams,
Mr. & Mrs. Merrill Sams

To the Editor:

Re: Proposed shopping center.

As you have kept an open mind on these subjects I am asking you to edit the following in this week's Jensen Mirror.

I feel that the people of Jensen Beach are in general agreement that any proposed development in Jensen Beach should be of a nature whereby the majority of the residents are benefited without working any hardship on those most directly affected in the immediate area. This, definitely, has direct application where an attempt is being made to break down an existing R-2 residential zone into a B-1 commercial zone. There is land available for a shopping center and/or other commercial use without attempting to infringe on existing R-1 zoned properties which will disrupt and create conditions detrimental with home owners privileges.

It is my understanding that petitions are being circulated with the single question being asked "Do you want a shopping center in Jensen Beach?" This is ambiguous and misleading. That there may not be any misunderstanding others we in Jensen Highlands stand in the matter, let me state we are in full accord with the idea of having a shopping center here in Jensen, located in an area suitable for such a project, benefiting but not harming residents of the community.

I refer you to my statement at the last zoning board meeting as correctly stated in The Miami Herald, Dec. 18: "a shopping center does not add to or in any way embellish a residential area. It is an asset in the proper place at the proper time, but let's have this place where it belongs, land is available elsewhere for a shopping center.

Jensen Beach has been a beautiful residential area for years and still is with some wonderful people here who bought and built homes assured they could enjoy these privileges. Let's keep it this way and not establish a dangerous precedent which can very well break down our present R-1 residential zoning laws.

Super Bowl draws many from Miami

JB--Local motel, restaurant, cocktail lounges and laundromats are looking for an influx of football fans from Jupiter south to Miami. The Super Bowl, slated for Sunday at the Orange Bowl in Miami, has been blacked out in the south, and the closest television station that will carry the game will be WTVX in Ft. Pierce.

Six large screen television sets are installed in Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant for viewers, and every villa in the resort complex has been rented, General manager Ed Lawrence expects a capacity crowd. Other Jensen Beach motels are getting reservations, and many have indicated they are at capacity.

Fans rent the room and from two to ten persons gather to watch the game on the television sets.

A weekend package of golf and Super Bowl has drawn many from Miami to St. Lucie Resort's new Hilton Inn. The Nineteenth Hole cocktail lounge, with its color television, is expected to be filled with fans.

In Stuart, the Holiday Inn is booked solid, as are other motels and hotels in the area. Laundromats expect their customer service television sets will draw the capacity crowds to watch the game (with no laundry), and rental television to commercial establishments has jumped to a new high.

Annual meeting

JB--The annual meeting of the shareholders of Jensen Beach Bank will be held Tuesday, Jan. 19 at 3:30 p.m. at the bank, 46 Commercial Street.

A board of eight directors will be elected to hold office for the coming year or until their successors are elected and qualify.

Any other proper business will be transacted.

All shareholders are requested to be present in person or by proxy, according to Robert B. Smith, executive vice-president and cashier of the bank.

Today's woman enjoys new freedom. In her home, as well as out in the world. And part of what makes it possible is modern electric living. It gives her more time and energy to develop her full potential. Electric reverse-cycle air conditioning keeps her cool in summer, warm in winter and cools in summer, so today's woman can choose her own indoor climate. She feels better...achieves more. And so does her family. And being practical, she appreciates "reverse-cycle" as the key factor for economical year-round comfort.

It's nice, being a woman...and electric living helps make it even more so.

By JAY MANS

Opening with one in a suit

It seems as though our new column has met with a nice reception. Mostly orchids, very few brickbats. After quickly disposing of the no trump story in our last issue, I now address myself to the opening bid of one in a suit.

The basic premises; With fourteen points we should always open the bidding. Modern bridge philosophy says, "If you have something to say, do so at the very first opportunity." With thirteen points you have a choice. You may bid or you may pass. The determining factor should be, "Can you open the bidding and retain a reasonable proper rebid. Does the hand contain a minimum of two quick tricks? If the answers are Yes, get into the action." Trap passing in first or second position is a thing of the past.

And so with a bidding range of 13 to 22 points, the question arises, how do we get the bidding started? How do we best describe the values in the hand as well as the shape. Standard American bidding prescribes specific techniques and by sticking with these you can describe your holding quite well. Your partner also has certain prescribed responses and thus the first round or preparatory round of bidding properly sets the stage for the second or definitive round of bidding.

The pattern runs about like this: Five card majors need have no honors if the entire hand contains the necessary points. Four card majors should contain a minimum of four points such as:

S-A 9 4 3; S-K J 6 5; H-K Q 8 2.

Minor suit openers: Either four if no honors or three headed by A or K or Q. Before I forget; The material I am presenting in this series includes the very latest changes, improvements, and adjustments in Standard American bidding. So if your own bridge book fails to include the numbers I quote, you need a newer bridge book.

Further; Save these columns. They will have continuity and the accumulated material will equal a complete bridge instruction program. It may be slow, but it will be thorough.

We are discussing average or minimum hands, which after all is what we generally get most of the time. The rebid is the most important item to be concerned about when opening the bidding. Planning for it properly distinguishes the better player from you know who. Inasmuch as four card suits are never rebiddable unless supported by partner, we are often confronted with the problem as to a proper preparatory bid, and as we have the principle of the better minor. Up to now we usually (if so) bid what is sometimes called the Short Club, meaning three clubs with either the Queen, King or Ace in it. The new thinking places the Diamond suit in the same category. Here are a few samples.

1. S-A K 4 3; H-K 4 3; D-A 3 2; C-4 3 2. Bid one Diamond.

2. S-K 6 2; H-A J 10 8; D-6 4 2; C-A J 2. Bid one club.

3. S-J 10 7 5; H-4 3; D-K 9 2; C-A 4 2. Bid one club.

To be continued next week.

Emphysema program Thursday

JB--The January Breath of Life emphysema program will be held Thursday, Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the dining room of Martin Memorial Hospital.

The film is titled, "Spirometry," and Albert Klein, anesthetist, CRNA will demonstrate the uses of a Spirometer.

Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

COLLEGE AUDIENCE--Students and faculty at St. Joseph College, Jensen Beach, heard Nathaniel Reed, chairman of the Florida Air and Water Pollution Control Board, speak about the Florida Power and Light Company's nuclear power plant now under construction on Hutchinson Island. Reed said the warmer water to be discharged into the ocean might make fishing better, and discounted any threat of thermal pollution in the area. Some of the audience is pictured above.

Reed discounts potential pollution by nuclear plant

JB--The possibility that the Florida Power and Light Company nuclear power plant, under contraction on Hutchinson Island, might create thermal pollution of the Atlantic Ocean was discounted last Thursday by Nathaniel Reed, chairman of the state Air and Water Pollution Control Board.

Speaking at St. Joseph College, Reed said that the conditions affecting the intake and discharge of water from the ocean were such that overheating of the water and its release could not be too dangerous.

He cited the lack of grass beds to endanger, the depth of water release, and even said the warmer water might make fishing better, attracting more fish to the area. He did add that the full effect of the warm water discharge wouldn't be known until the plant begins operations in 1973.

Reed's comments coincided with those of Robert Ingles, chief of the Florida Bureau of Marine Sciences, who recently wrote that the damage to marine resources resulting from thermal pollution has probably been "highly overestimated."

Recognizing that there has been some damage in some instances from thermal pollution, Ingles called the "blanket condemnation" of thermal pollution "unfair."

He cited the flourishing of shrimp, flounder, oysters, and turtles in heated water.

Studies by Ross Witham, marine scientist in Jensen Beach, have shown that the spiny lobster cannot withstand high temperatures, and Witham is conducting tests to determine the effect of overheated water on the lobster as part of his continuing study of the species.

Reed cited the need for electricity as being great enough to offset the "minimal pollution" expected from the Hutchinson Island plant.

Reed also warned that demands for water from Lake Okeechobee would increase as the South Florida drought continues, and said he thought that all developers should provide sewer pipes for future hookup on central sewage lines when the development is built.

CONSERVATIONIST--Nat Reed, chairman of the state Air and Water Pollution Control Board, assured his audience at St. Joseph College recently, that the nuclear power plant being constructed on Hutchinson Island would not create thermal pollution of the ocean.

Decision possible

By DICK CAMPBELL

JB--The future of a shopping center in Jensen Beach may reach the first step in a zoning battle before the Martin County Planning and Zoning Board this Thursday night.

Residents of the community will be at the county courthouse at 7:30 p.m. to hear the dispute, take part in it, and wait for a decision from the zoning board. A standing room only crowd is expected, as it was in the previous meeting.

At stake in the battle to rezone an area from B-2 to B-1 off Commercial Street, just west of the Florida East Coast Railroad tracks and east of Skyline Drive, are a Winn-Dixie Super Market, an Eagle Army Navy store, a major drug chain and several commercial business sites, the first major chains to move to the community.

The property, owned by Bob Fender, is zoned B-1 200 feet from Commercial Street. Fender is seeking the rezoning to the south, just over 200 feet further.

The application for change was tabled at the last meeting of the zoning board when Frank Forsberg, Jensen's representative on the board, asked for a traffic survey by the Florida Department of Transportation.

When the DOT held a public hearing in Jensen Beach in late December, Arnold Ramos, district engineer, fluffed off any traffic problem on the Commercial Street hill, saying there would be no problem with a third lane already offered by the developer on Commercial to store traffic turning into the shopping center, removing that objection.

Residents of the area west of Skyline Drive, headed by Herb Smith, presented a petition with 94 signatures on it protesting the change. They cited the traffic problems and the change in the "residential character of the area."

Support for the project mounted in the past month with circulation of petitions favoring the zoning change throughout the community to bring the shopping center to Jensen Beach. Fender has contracts with the two major chain stores and is negotiating with the drug chain, and wants to use the property west of the tracks for the shopping center.

Previously, a plan to use the property on condition lines was turned down by the zoning board, with the opposition of the residents to the west of Skyline Drive a major factor.

In exchange for the zoning, Fender has agreed to provide a third lane from the F.E.C. tracks to Skyline Drive for traffic storage as suggested by Martin County traffic engineer Tom Glider, agreed to abide by the new Martin County landscape ordinance, agreed to remove delivery truck traffic from Skyline Drive and build a private road access to the rears of the stores, and to "meet the standards of a high quality shopping center."

Jensen autos indicate inspection

JB--The authorities in Jensen Beach keep their stickers up to date, a Mirror survey indicated Tuesday.

In a check of 119 autos in the Commercial Street business district, it was revealed that only six autos had outdated stickers, ranging from June, 1969 to October, 1969.

The First Federal Savings and Loan Association parking lot had 16 cars, 16 showed legal inspection stickers, one car had a sticker for 1969-70 that was not punched for the month of inspection, and one car sticker revealed that the auto should have been inspected in October, 1969, fourteen months ago.

On Commercial Street, 22 autos had valid, up-to-date inspection stickers on them, and no violations. There were 17 autos on Palmetto Street, all in compliance with their inspection stickers.

The parking lot in front of Lil General and Bryant's Drug had 11 cars that were in legal status with the Florida auto inspection law, and one car that had an October, 1969 inspection date punched on the sticker.

Along Ocean Boulevard, including the Jensen Beach Bank parking lot, the post office parking lot, and the parking lot behind the Commercial Street stores, there were 44 autos, with three in violation. One auto needed inspection in August, 1969, and another in June, 1969. A large truck had an inspection sticker that called for reinspection in July, 1968.

Deputy Sheriff Mike Gubin commented to The Mirror that he thought the survey revealed an excellent ratio of compliance with the auto inspection law.

... motels were filled, ... rooms rented by as many as twenty to a room for the four hour spectacle. Special television sets were installed in restaurants, store windows and cocktail lounges so that patrons could watch the game.

The influx like hit residents with friends in the blacked-out south, and it was a time to call a friend from Miami to set up a visit during the game.

The streams of football watchers clogged the Florida Turnpike, U.S. 1, and A-1-A before the game, headed north, and did the same on the after-the-game-southward leg of the migration.

At Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort, all villas were rented over two weeks ago. Business in the restaurant and cocktail lounge, with six extra color sets installed, was about triple the usual Sunday activity, and the Saturday night business increased substantially due to the Super Bowl viewers, according to Ed Lawrence, general manager.

The Super Bowl stretched out over three days in a Miami promoted golfing weekend for over 500 guests at St. Lucie Hilton Inn.

"It was terrific," said Alan Bland, sales manager of the resort. "We had excellent crowds, were at capacity at the Inn and had only a few villas left."

The most unique television Super Bowl fans were those who drove up to Jensen Beach with a TV set in their cars, rented a camper space at Holiday Out, set up deck chairs, put the TV set on the hood of the car and sat back to get a tan while watching the game.

Morgan Sprott of Holiday Out told The Mirror that there were many amusing instances related to the Super Bowl over the weekend, "but to see the people sitting by a car on the patio watching television was something."

CD to order sirens

Stuart—Al Keaton, director of Civil Defense in Martin County, received approval from the county commission Tuesday to advertise for bids on three portable and one outdoor sirens to alert firemen and the public. The outdoor siren will be used at the Hobe Sound Fire Department station. The portable sirens, used on vehicles, will go to Tropical Farms, District Two and the CD emergency station wagon.

The large outdoor siren will cost about $1,550. Portable sirens are about $315, Keaton said.

Keaton had requested six outdoor warning sirens and 20 portables. He explained that $7,500 was available in federal funds, on a 50-50 basis, for the entire project, but was turned down on the full order by the commissioners because of lack of county funds.

Keaton said he would make up specifications and will advertise for bids to be returned in about 30 days.

Chairman Myers warns spectators

Stuart—"As long as I have this gavel, I want it understood that while someone is talking I will not stand for interruptions," Chairman Bill Myers, Martin County Commission, told his audience Tuesday morning at the commission meeting.

Using the gavel to stress the point, Dr. Myers said, "I want to let you know where I stand right now."

The admonition was made made following several spontaneous remarks from persons in the audience.

Merit Scholarship Qualifying test to be given February 13

JB—Martin County High School students who expect to complete their secondary school requirements and to enter colleges in 1972 should register now to participate in the 1971-72 National Merit Scholarship Program, according to Terrance E. Horrigan, principal.

The first step for all students who wish to enter the nationwide Merit Scholarship competition is to take the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, (NMSQT). The test will be given only once during this school year on Saturday, Feb. 13, at 9 a.m.

Taking the NMSQT is also the first step for students who wish to participate in other scholarship programs administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). These programs include the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students and special scholarship programs administered by NMSC for business and industrial firms.

When his NMSQT scores are reported, each participating student will receive a handbook to help him understand his scores and compare his test performance with that of other high school students across the country.

The highest-scoring students in each state will be named Merit Program Semi-finalists, and if they advance to Finalist standing, they will be eligible for Merit Scholarship consideration.

About 24,800 students have won Merit Scholarships in the fifteen programs to date. Approximately 2925 new winners of merit scholarships entered college last fall.

Martin ahead

Sales are up 26% over a year ago

JB--Martin County outstripped St. Lucie County, but both showed excellent growth in sales tax collections as reported by the Florida Department of Revenue. Martin County had an increase of 25.99% for November, 1970 over the same period in 1969.

The growth was considerable over St. Lucie figures of 9.67%.

Martin County sales tax collections increased from $117,344.54 in November, 1969 to $148,099.23 in November, 1970. St. Lucie County, in the same two periods, showed an increase from $192,152.04 to $220,383.76.

Gross sales for Martin County were listed as $5,908,876.09, and gross sales in St. Lucie were $13,848,169.42.

Difference in gasoline prices were indicated in the gasoline sales in the two counties. Martin County stations poured 1,151,342 gallons of gas to 2,512,833 gallons in St. Lucie County. County Commissioner Fred Wachs has long been critical of gallonage due to high prices in the county, and cited the tax loss due to the flight of cost-conscious auto drivers to other counties.

This was indicated in the tax collections, directly related to the amount of money available to the county for road building.

Martin County may have sold 1,151,342 gallons of gasoline in November, 1970 but it had a drop in revenue as motorists poured to other areas to buy for lower prices. The "seventh cent" tax collections in Martin dropped from $100,600.78 in November, 1969, to $80,593.84 in 1970.

In the meantime, St. Lucie County, where gasoline prices are from two to six cents lower per gallon, the seventh cent collections (allocated to secondary roads programs) jumped from $168,976.69 in November, 1969, to $175,896.25 in 1970.

JB--Mr. and Mrs. Walter MacLean of Fort Myers came to the Jensen Beach. The MacLeans visited his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Raymond, 116 Melba Drive, for a week over Christmas. They are expected back on Jan. 17 for another visit.

Johansons return from Texas visit

JB--Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johanson of 221 Melba Dr. returned recently from a three weeks vacation, visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Major and Mrs. J.E. Watson and family in Bryan, Texas.

Major Watson retired recently from the Air Force and is enrolled at Texas A&M. The Watsons have two children, Jay 6 and Billy 4.

The Johansons also visited a niece in Austin, Texas, and spent several days in New Orleans, La.

"But it wasn't Florida," Mrs. Johanson told Mirror reporter, saying she was glad to return home after a very pleasant vacation.

FNB SHOWS AN INCREASE OF $6 MILLION OVER '69

The First National Bank has always been proud to publish their year end Statement of Condition along with a comparison from the previous year: this year is no exception.

Without the trust and confidence of First National's patrons and a sound and conservative banking policy, a growth equal to the one posted this past year would not have been possible.

This is surely a reflection of Martin County's growth and is an indication of what we all have to look forward to in the years to come.

The officers and staff of First National are always available to discuss your financial needs

Social Security payments up 19 percent

Tallahassee-- Social Security payments to Florida residents moved up 19 percent during the first half of 1970, according to Ronald S. Spencer, Jr., executive vice president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce.

"This increase is partly a result of Congressional action to increase monthly payments and partly the effect of more retirees in Florida's retiree population," Spencer said.

The number of Florida residents who were drawing Social Security in June of last year is given in the chamber's Weekly Business Review as 1, 125, 427. This means that ten Floridians out of every 61 were receiving a Social Security check either as a retiree, a disabled worker, or a beneficiary. The national average is ten persons out of every 78 residents.

Social Security payments to Floridians were officially estimated at $113.6 million during the month of June, 1970, most of which was spent in the state. This amount 19 percent more than the payments for the previous December, and slightly more than the national gain.

The Hilary Launons of Sandy's Drive, Jensen Beach, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Louis Davis of Black Rock, Conn. for two weeks. They have been friends for about 30 years.

By JAY H. MANS

"Opening Bidder" Cont'd.

A few definitions are in order. What is a rebiddable suit? Any suit containing 5 cards with at least 3 honors. Any 6 card suit regardless of honors. Examples: 1. A J 8 5 4, K Q 10 5 4, 10 6 4 3 2, 7 5 3 2. 2. K Q 10 5 4 3 2, A 6 4, 5, 10 6 4 3 2.

What are the minimum requirements for opening with one in a minor suit? With 4, no honors are required if the hand contains the necessary points. Three, to either Ace, King or Queen, i.e. 10 4 3 2, A 7 5 3, 5, K 6 4 3.

We will now discuss hands with 3 biddable 4 card suits. How do you open these? When the 3 suits are touching, bid the highest ranking one first. Examples: 1. S: K J 8 2, H: A K Q 7, D: 4 3 2, C: 3 2.

2. S: 8 5 3, H: K Q 10 3, D: A Q J 2, C: Q 3. 3. S: A 2, H: J 8 3, D: A K 4 2, C: K J 8 2. With #1 above, bid 1 spade; #2, bid 1 hearts; #3 bid 1 diamond.

Easy enough. A bit more troublesome are hands where you hold 2 4-card suits which are not touching suits. A simple format prescribes that you bid first the suit under the singleton or doubleton. Examples:

1. S: K J 10 5, H: Q 6 4, D: K 9, C: K Q 9 4, bid 1 club.

2. S: K J 8 7, H: 4 2, D: A 5 4 3, C: K J 4 3, bid 1 diamond.

3. S: Q J 10 8, H: K Q 6 2, D: A 4 3, C: 4 2, Bid 1 spade. Special note: 3 J 10 of a suit may be counted the equivalent of 4 points.

With biddable suits of unequal length bid the longer suit first, with biddable suits of equal length bid the higher ranking suit first, with two biddable and rebiddable 5 card suits bid the higher ranking one first and rebid the lower (bid it twice) before you mention the higher ranking one again.

With a six-five such as the following: S: A K Q J 10, H: 9 8 7 6 5 2, bid hearts first (definitely), then second round the spades. Third bid will be a rebid of the 5 card spade suit and this will indicate a six-five distribution to partner. Would you not prefer to play in hearts if your partner held three or six cards in the spades if partner was void or held a singleton? Simple, is it not?

Later in the program I will discuss what are sometimes called Reverse Bids.

The material in the last two columns should provide you with a solid base for your opening bids with variations of average hands. The style inherent in the bidding are very definite, but lack of space forbids trying to describe for you the refinements involved. The main problem for the average player is to avoid getting to the 3 level of a suit with only 19 or 20 points between the two holdings. Taking 9 tricks out of 13 requires a minimum of 22 or 23 points. Keep the magic number 25 in mind at all times. This is what is usually needed to make a game contract in either opening at a major suit, three notrump, a simple format prescribes that you bid first the suit under the singleton or doubleton. Examples:

NEW ATHLETIC DIRECTOR--Headmaster Michael Stevenson of The Pine School (left) extends a warm welcome to Richard K. T. Hunter, who is assuming new duties as athletic director and language arts tutor at the school. Hunter brings 18 years of coaching and teaching experience from The Choate School in Wallingford, Conn. where he was honored last month as coach of Choate's championship soccer team.

Budget keeper

No time to get to the store? That's when an electric freezer spells convenience. And for economy, you can stock up in quantity when there's a sale on. In fact, you get double economy because the no-frame, no-fume electric power that runs your freezer is one of life's great bargains. The average price paid per kilowatt hour by FPL serviced families today is one third less than it was back in 1957. In these inflationary times, that should warm the heart of any budget-conscious Floridian.

Transportation.

Arnold Ramos, district engineer of the DOT, looked over the highway location, recommended that a third lane would handle any traffic problem on Commercial, and said that the traffic would be "no problem".

Armed with Ramos' report, a recommendation from the county traffic engineer, a promise from the developer, Bob Fender, to build the third lane on Commercial, and other negotiated concessions to the zoning board, attorney Evans Crary was stunned by the denial.

"I don't know what to say," Crary said after the meeting. "Everything was going so well."

Tom Higgins, zoning director, said in the beginning of the hearing that if the developer could meet four points he would be in favor of giving him a building permit. Those points were:

REMOVAL of an planned exit onto substandard Skyline Drive,

SCREENING the back side of the shopping center to protect the view of neighbors.

Forsberg asked how the road would handle traffic that would service the back of the shopping center, and Crary clarified that and other questions of the board.

Chairman Andy Flittman then asked those in favor of the change to speak. Seven persons who had signed a petition opposing the shopping center, represented by

Capt. Adams is a gentleman

Seeing a white sweater fall to the floor, he gallantly got up from his seat on the bench, walked to the front of the meeting room, picked up the sweater and presented it with a smile and a bow to county stenographer Mary Conser.

St. Lucie Marine wins two weeks reprieve

Stuart--St. Lucie Marine of Rio was given a temporary reprieve Tuesday during when Martin county Commissioners postponed a decision on a zoning violation charge, pending Robert McRoberts, St. Roberts is an attorney representing Alice Ann Jostlerda.

The vote was three for, one against and one abstaining.

No decision will be reached until taken objections brought here from transferred certain by zoning director Tom Higgins and presented to the board at the next meeting. In the meantime, owner Richard Dunning will be permitted to continue business as usual at the marina on St. Lucie River.

Dunning had been charged with having violations for conducting sales of boats and motors and repair services on the property which is not zoned for such use.

Dunning said he had the right to white boats motors and outside, according to the zoning board's the presented a blueprint, approved by the building department, which showed a display area and repair shop indicating sales and repair. The permit was issued August 5, 1969.

Dunning said he has a retail sales license issued by the county and was not by Higgins he could sell and repair on the property. The official plans approved by both Mr. Dunning sales were not allowed.

Dean Tooker said he was county attorney at that time and that it was his opinion that boat sales and minor repairs were allowed, but dry storage was not. He reminded the board that it had adopted his ruling.

McRoberts asked that the zoning regulation be enacted as simply worded the words thought retail sales were acceptable," he said, "but I was instructed by the board to notify Mr. Dunning sales were not allowed."

"And I'm not here," Commissioner Frank Wacha said.

"Do you abstain?" asked

"I'm not in favor of the motion at all. I vote no," Owens said.

"And I'm not here," Wacha repeated.

The verbatim tape record on the matter will be reviewed at the next meeting.

Tilton tenants meet

Central sewage, parking, one-way Commercial

...Planning for central ...age and off-street parking highlighted a meeting last ... of the merchants who ...ing buildings in the Commercial Street-Ricou Boulevard complex that is known ... Tilton, Inc. Subdivision.

...Tilton called the ...ing, designed to "offer ... solutions that we think ... help downtown Jensen Beach," and asked the ... to come armed with ... they thought might help ...arily the parking problem ... the stores.

"We all work together ... the common goal of improving Jensen Beach, we ... successful in our ...ings," Tilton wrote the ...rchants in calling the ...ing at his offices.

...l merchants in Tilton ...dings attended the meeting conducted by Ransom Tilton, who outlined plans for two off-street parking areas. One would be the vacant property behind the string of stores fronting on Commercial Street, and the other would be the land between Jensen Grill and the Jensen Beach Bank.

Fifty spaces would be provided by the two parking areas. Both pieces of land are owned by Tilton, Inc.

Merchants who had opposed making Commercial Street a one-way street indicated they were having second thoughts about the project at the meeting, faced with the comments of Arnold Ramos, district engineer of the Department of Transportation, who said the only way to keep parking on Commercial Street was to make it one-way.

"Strange as it may seem, everyone seemed to be in favor of one-way for Commercial Street," said Leonard Smith, owner of Helen's Dress Shop and a former sponsor of one-way traffic on the street.

Smith said the merchants were asked to think over the parking problem, the planned solution, and come up with ideas that would be beneficial to the street.

Tilton announced that Stafford and Brock had been hired to design a sewage treatment plant "capable of handling all the businesses in the block," and commented that he hoped the system would be in operation by late summer.

The sewage treatment plant would be designed so that it could be expanded in future growth of the area, but Tilton, Inc. denied it would be entering the utility field.

"It will be built to handle our property, but we would welcome any group that would want to operate it. In the event no one wants to operate a utility such as this, Tilton, Inc. will have to own it," he said.

The merchants were asked to comment on one-way streets in the meeting, and Tilton said they favored it since there seemed no other way to keep parking on the streets.

Tilton also announced that another building would be constructed on Commercial Street, filling the space between Bryan Drug and Jensen 5 & 10, with a walkway provided through to the parking lot.

The date of the next meeting was not announced, but one merchant said, "We'll be talking together now, and we're trying to come up with ideas that will help our business district grow."

Government study complete

Completion of the forms of government committee study of the incorporation of Jensen Beach and its feasibility is a landmark in the political growth of the area.

It took a great amount of dedication and effort on the part of the citizens of the community to stick to the task of research, debate and argument, refinement of that research, and the culminating package of information presented this week to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce board of directors for consideration.

Six months of continuous study, with weekly meetings, information sessions, interviews with governmental officials and knowledgeable city planners, correspondence with various official and public service bodies, and the resultant condensation of reams of materials took a toll of men and their time in the preparation of the report.

During the six months, the committee always left its meetings open to the public, allowing those who wanted answers to certain questions to ask those questions. When there wasn't an answer to the question, the committee members tried to find an answer.

Under the quiet leadership of Dave Decl, the committee kept its head above the dangerous waters of controversy, and completed the task at hand with dispatch.

The attitude of the citizens of Jensen Beach was rewarding. They preferred to sit back and wait, or to come and ask questions about the study. There weren't the emotional outbursts of uninformed groups that in the past have fought any study, or even consideration of, the idea that there may just be a better way to do this government thing.

The Mirror supported the study, for information has never hurt anyone. We believe that the committee has made some very strong suggestions on the subject of protection of our community, a route toward self-determination and the method of reaching that self-operated government of Jensen Beach.

It will be interesting to watch the next step in taking this information to the people.

What will it be? The Mirror will certainly report each careful step in presenting the case to the people. How will it be handled? The Mirror will offer its full resources to the presentation of the information to the people.

We will begin with the publication of the entire forms of government report to the public. Our effort will be to make it not too dull, breaking the report into areas of concern so that all citizens will have an opportunity to read the materials it has taken so long to develop.

We also plan to make the report such that persons interested in saving the information will be able to clip out the articles on the study and make a permanent scrapbook that would, in the end, be a completed file on the study of a form of government.

Government is people. It is not a distant object that the citizens can call "they."

It is a personal thing that demands the responsible attention of the people.

Our fear concerns the people who will step forward to protect that which they have, an idyllic, sub-tropical paradise. People must maintain a relationship with the past, fight for a suburban atmosphere that takes advantage of the green areas we have and must acquire, and must be aware of the individual responsibility of a citizen and the demands of that responsibility in self-determination. Those people must step forward to lead.

We watch to the future with an excited and objective enthusiasm. This time the people will have the right to determine their future.

$62,250... an investment

Martin County will contribute $62,250 to Indian River Community College this year, a contribution that is an investment in the future of the county. St. Lucie County has already given its $83,161 share of the cost of operations in the four-county community college.

At present, all educational facilities are in a bind for money. The loss of revenue due to the unfortunate assessment figures in recent weeks add to the problems attendent to the school system in Martin and St. Lucie Counties.

Last year the Florida Legislature voted to end the mandatory five percent of minimum foundation funds that were automatically diverted from the local school board to the community college. The funding is still permissive, however, and we believe that the cause of our community college is just and properly deserves the future support of our school systems.

We are certain that the St. Lucie County school system will continue its support of the community college. We hope that Martin County will do the same, and urge the school board to consider it in future budgeting.

The Indian River Community College is just coming into its own with an aggressive program that reaches out to touch all those who want or need any of the diverse educational and vocational programs offered.

Dr. Herman Heise, president of the college, told The Mirror, "The community college could not be as responsive to the communities we serve without local funding. We must serve those who pay the freight, and if our support comes just from the state, we must follow the dictates of the state in our programming."

We believe that the responsive qualities of the past indicate that the future offers us greater rewards for a small investment in education on a higher level. Indian River Community College deserves our support.

The right to know

Home rule provisions of the Florida Legislature have given the counties of Florida the right to pass ordinances, much the same as cities, to handle local problems. An example of the exercise of that right is the recent Martin County Landscape Ordinance.

But what is the proper method of informing the public on the final ordinance passed by the county? There is none, except the general, and certainly not detailed, news coverage of its passage.

There is no provision of public notice of the final ordinance in the law, and there should be.

We point to the debate and the changes in form of the ordinance. Advertised in a local newspaper of general circulation in the county, the ordinance, as originally presented to the commission, did not look like the final ordinance passed by the county.

For example, the ordinance passed by the county had an effective date change from 180 days to 90 days.

We know that it is the intent of the commission to follow the law, and the commissioners would be the first to stand up for the right of the public to know what laws were being passed for their benefit. The recognized method of such information of the public is the public notice, published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county.

It is possible that no one has thought that the final draft of a law would be much different than the original draft that entered debate. It is possible that no one thought that once the law was debated and changed no one would need to know the final outcome of such debate and change.

We believe that there should be an amendment to the legislative home rule law providing for public notice of the ordinance passed ordinances passed by the county, and of all ordinances passed by all governmental bodies.

The legislative delegation of Martin and Palm Beach Counties would be making a great contribution to the public right to know what government is doing if it would introduce such an amendment in this upcoming legislative session.

Pants pressure

The Martin County School Board is panting over the problem of pressure penetrating the portices of Murray Ninth Grade School. It seems that the girls in the school are blue over the rule that they cannot wear pants suits when it is cold.

At issue is the warmth, or the group consideration of a dress code.

Believing the mini-skirt is the answer to all problems of warmth in the coldest, we strongly support the dress code, unless the code includes the midi, or the maxi skirts.

If such is the case, the school board might as well go with the pants suits. All else is lost.

Saving downtown

Everyone wants to help, even those from outside the town. So, when I received the letter from Mr. and Mrs. E. Deschansen, of Battle Creek, Michigan, I appreciated the thought and the idea.

"When we read your articles about the growing pains of Jensen Beach, we sympathize with you. This town has done a beautiful job.

"It often makes us think of Jensen Beach when we read about this town in Michigan," they wrote.

Enclosed with the letter was an article from The Observer, a newspaper in Michigan, telling the story of a town that refused to die. The title of the article was, "How a small town saved its downtown."

The little town of St. Clair (population 4,800) faced declining revenue from disintegrating businesses and competition from shopping centers and malls outside the town, so the merchants and bankers and professional men got together and began to plan.

The "impossible dream" consisted of tearing down 40 acres of small business and residential buildings in the very center of the community, and replacing them with a modern shopping mall containing 31 stores, a promenade along the river and the construction of a 160-boat marina.

Does that sound as if it might fit Jensen Beach? You're right.

The downtown area had problems with parking, and many of the stores and business buildings suffered from "below code" construction, and a shabbiness that contributed to running away customers.

The merchants got together with the City Council, City Building Authority, St. Clair Progress Corporation and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. They decided that all merchants would be given the opportunity to relocate in the newly developed area, at lowest possible cost, and be able to own their own property if they wished.

When the committee finished meeting ("countless meetings, many at 6:30 in the morning), the shopping center was lined up to contain 31 stores, a mall and adequate parking. Other facilities, such as banks, gas stations, professional buildings, auto agencies, senior citizen housing, restaurants and a marina were planned.

The community, completing the plans, found that there was no funding available from the Economic Development Agency, and so went to work on private funding, with the help of the Small Business Administration.

A grant of five million dollars from urban renewal helped to clear the area, and the project was broken into 36 small pieces to take advantage of the $350,000 limitation of the SBA to each project, because the community needed at least six million dollars to do the job.

Working together, the community merchants and citizens got the job done.

To quote the newspaper article, "We have solidified our downtown tax base, and it is now triple that of the days before construction. It now amounts to approximately six million dollars in valuation.

"Our inner city has been kept together. Retail business, according to SBA released figures, has more than doubled. Our stores are larger and have more adequate inventories. New residents are moving in and the city has become more beautiful and a more desirable place in which to live."

Doesn't that sound a little like Jensen Beach, and what Jensen Beach merchants and citizens could do? It does to me, and offers an exciting future for the area.

Notes and Comments

The bleary eye

A couple of weeks ago, you said I enjoyed one of the funny, true stories in this wacky world of advertising. About the giant box of detergent which was supposed to be used in a TV commercial. And how the whole project had to be scrapped. Because the product had to be scrapped. Because it ate holes in clothing, that's why.

This story is mentioned in Terry Galanoy's funny little book, "Down The Tubes." So many of you enjoyed the story about the detergent box, I thought I'd pass along a few more gems from the advertising jungle. They're all true, and all about products which may or may not have made it to your corner store, and you may or may not have purchased them.

Good for you.

However, I don't think you ever purchased our first product. At least not in its original form. Read on, and you'll see.

It all started when one of the major cosmetic companies developed a new kind of hair stripper for those ladies who prefer to dye by their own hand.

The point they want to get across to a breathlessly waiting public, they tell their advertising agency, is that now a woman can be any color she wants to be...without hurting her hair. Give us a commercial, they cry, that will get people excited about it.

Well, the agency thinks, that's easy. A pretty lady decides to be all things in one week. Monday she is a blonde, Tuesday a light brunette, Wednesday a redhead, Thursday a chestnut, and Friday back to being a brunette again. This is supposed to give her life New Meaning, and make her husband Excited again. Or something.

So, armed with this rather simple shooting script, the agency sets out with a pretty natural blonde, and they shoot film of her on Monday. Monday night, they make her a brunette, and they shoot more film of her that way on Tuesday. Tuesday night, they re-do her hair and make her a flaming redhead, and they shoot the film of her this way on Wednesday. Thursday is spent shooting film of the girl as a chestnut. But Friday they don't shoot any film at all. Something has gone wrong.

She is bald.

During the Thursday night coloring session, her hair has come out by the brushful, by the handful, by the bagful, and by the coats.

Anyway, after a dermatologist tells her that eventually her normal hair will grow back in, her lawyers settle for 15 grand and an expensive wig.

And the product is sent back to the cosmetic compan's lab for further testing, and later repackaging as a hair remover.

Yes, Virginia, that's what it is now in your corner store. No, I won't tell you its name. The blonde might be listening, and she still gets violent about the whole thing.

Our second story is all about a well-known advertising agency that has a reputation for easy-going friendship with one of the largest breakfast cereal companies, Sort of slice of Americana stuff. You've seen it often enough.

Anyway, this time the commercial writer's script calls for a small mid-western village, a freckle face boy, a bicycle, a shaggy dog...and a caterpillar. The idea is how there are important things in a growing boy's life. Like dogs, and caterpillars, and good nourishment from good breakfast cereals.

The camera directions call for a lot of the action to be shot right on the caterpillar as he makes his slow, danger-filled way from one side of a sidewalk to the other.

The production department rounded up the boy, the bicycle, and the shaggy dog.

And Edgar.

Edgar, it seems, is Hollywood's only trained caterpillar. His trainer has taught him to crawl, climb, stand up, and lie down. All on cue. A trained caterpillar! The agency was amazed. "Only in Hollywood," the studio says, smugly.

So, the great day arrives when they will film the commercial. The caterpillar is placed on one side of the sidewalk, and the trainer goes to the other side.

"Action," screams the director.

The trainer signals, Camera grind as the caterpillar starts to wiggle across. A pair of gym shoes go thundering past the caterpillar. He stays on his determined way. A pair of bicycle wheels narrowly misses him. He plugs steadily onward. The shaggy dog is released and ambles over to the caterpillar for a sniff. He sniffs and sniffs and decides that the caterpillar smells good enough to eat.

He eats it.

"Cut," screams the director.

At last report, the caterpillar trainer had calmed down enough to begin training Edgar the second, and the agency is writing another script minus the dog. And the script is being written by another writer.

Because the one who had the original idea was taken suddenly unemployed.

It happens to a lot of people.

"Many of the day-to-day activities and practically all of the fund-raising of America's charitable organizations are performed by volunteers. A... report shows that 245 million hours a week are donated by over 60 million volunteers of all ages and all walks of life. The person who believes in an institution gives of his time—and the more time he gives, the more he contributes. Furthermore, his commitment tends to stimulate greater giving by those he knows and asks... Who are the recipients of this giving? We all are whether it's to United Fund organizations, or to churches, hospitals, schools, conservation units, or cultural institutions. It's truly the American way of life."

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the news media for its excellent coverage and publicity of the multiple sclerosis drive. I would also like to thank the many dedicated volunteer marchers and the people who contributed to the MS fund.

I am happy to say that we did much better than we expected for our first time.

Doesn't that sound a little like Jensen Beach, and what Jensen Beach merchants and citizens could do? It does to me, and offers an exciting future for the area.

Taxpayers Questions

Q. I paid over $50 to ser vants I hired to help out a my daughter's wedding a reception held in our home. I have to pay social securit tax for them.

A. No, you do not unle you paid $50 or more to a one person during a calen quarter.

Employers who are liab for this tax should file th return and pay the tax due b November 2. That is t deadline for reports on th July, August, Septembe quarter.

Use Form 942, Employ er's Quarterly Tax Retur for Household Employees

Q. I've been given an ex pense account on my new jo How will it affect my tax re turn?

A. If you account to you employer for those expen ses, you will not have to re port them on your tax return An exception occurs whe your reimbursement ex ceeds your expenses. The excess then should be reported as income.

Employees who are no reimbursed for business ex penses may claim a deduc tion for them on their ta returns.

For more information o this subject, send a pos card to your IRS district director and ask for Publication 463, Travel, Entertainment, and Gift Expenses. This is free.

Q. My store is up for sale and one person who wants to buy it has offered to make a down payment and to pay the rest in three years. Can I save on taxes by having the money spread like that?

A. There could be a tax advantage of reporting gro fits from a sale over a per iod of years. Whether it will benefit you depends on your tax bracket and other in comes.

To qualify for this tax treatment, however, the pay ments you receive during the first year must not exceed 30 percent of the sales price.

Q. I just switched jobs and my company is taking so cial security tax out of my pay even though I paid the limit on my old job. Is there any way I can stop this?

A. No, employers are required by law to withhold soc cial security taxes on the first $7,800 of wages paid to each of their employees. I more than the maximum is withheld from your pay this year because you had two or more employers you should take a credit for the excess against your income tax. This is explained in the instructions you received this January with your tax forms.

Q. Our second child was born in September. Does that mean I get a $650 exemption for him?

A. No, the amount allowed for personal exemptions on income tax returns for the 1970 tax year is $625. For withholding purposes, exemptions were $600 for the first half of 1970 and $650 for the second half of the year.

Exemptions are not prorated, so you are entitled to the full $625 no matter when in the year your child was born.

Q. Can you count groceries given to a church bazaar as a charitable contribution?

A. Yes, food, clothing and other items given to charitable organizations are deductible contributions. Use the fair market value of the items to determine the amount of the deduction.

Note that food or clothing given to an individual is not a charitable contribution under our tax laws. Only when the gift goes to a qualified charitable or other tax exempt group is the contribution a tax deduction.

Martin to have legislator talk

Stuart -- The Martin County legislative delegation will hold a pre-legislative hearing at Martin County on February 23 in the county court house. The five Palm Beach representatives and two Brevard County senators will be on hand for the meeting.

Any legislation planned for the 1971 Florida Legislature will have a hearing on that date, in two meetings, one beginning at 2 p.m. and the other at 7 p.m.

It is certain that various charters for incorporation of communities will be presented at the meeting, including charters from Port Sewall and Jensen Beach. Also, the county commission plans presentations of legislation the county needs for the future.

Mans on bridge

When you hold six points you are obligated to make some kind of response to partner's opening bid of one in a suit. It is not for you to try to depict or visualize the future of the hand. Your six points may even include a point for distribution. What to bid is what we are talking about today.

If you should decide to raise partner's suit bid, your trump holding should contain either four small cards or a minimum of three to the Queen or better. You may promote honor cards in partner's bid suit by one (unless these points already total four or more).

Something you may not be aware of: Dummy count for distribution. A void is worth five points, a singleton three points, a doubleton two points. Remember to use dummy count in evaluation of your hand only if you have good trump support. Every bid you make should convey as much specific information as possible as well as the type of hand you hold. If included in your bidding there is a major suit containing a minimum of four cards to a Queen or better, this would be the best response to a minor suit opening. You are often confronted with a choice of two or more likely responses and your job is to select what I consider the best one.

Here are some guide posts: A response in a new suit at the level of one promises six or more points.

2. A simple response of 1 no trump to an opening bid of 1 spade, 1 heart or 1 diamond indicates 6 to a maximum of 10 points in high cards (do not count distribution when bidding no trump.) This is considered a limit bid and partner may pass if he so decides.

3. A response of 1 no trump to an opening bid of 1 club indicates 9-10-11 points, no biddable diamond, heart or spade suit, and even distribution.

4. A simple raise in opener's suit indicates from 7 to 10 points...high cards and distribution and adequate trump support. This is also a limit bid and partner may pass.

5. New suit takeouts are forcing for 1 round (VERY IMPORTANT). Every time the responder bids an unbid suit, the opener must keep the bidding alive for one round. Exceptions: when partner has previously passed or there is an intervening bid. This New Suit Forcing Principle permits exploratory bids at the low level with no fear of being passed out when you are interested in a game going contract, but have not decided as to the best place to play in.

6. Jump bids are forcing to game. More on this next week.

7. Two over one in a new suit. Forcing, of course. More in detail next week.

Remember two opening bids opposite each other (26 points in the combined hands) indicate game in either no trump or a major suit, 29 points for game in a minor ...if you find a "fit".

Heroism shown in karate escape from burning home

If there is a medal for heroism, it should go to Tinker Stanton," said Larry Smack. He flug his toe into the ruin, pushing charcoal remains of home aside, his face still showed the strain of losing all his personal belongings in a fire that swept through the wood frame Smack home at 12825 Indian River Drive in Eden, burning it to the ground just after midnight on the coldest night of the year, Wednesday night, when temperatures went down to thirty degrees, and the north wind pushed the chill rating to nine above.

Smack heard a 64-gallon aquarium break from the heat, jumped out of bed, and found the house in flames. The protected bedrooms, an addition of concrete block to the timber dry frame house, was the only thing that saved the Smacks and their visitors from the flames.

Arousing everyone, Smack ran through the hallway, getting first degree burns on the way to the outside. The other three were trapped in the burning building.

Because of a small air leak and the cold night, the steel frame windows had been double locked from the outside, Wilson "Tinker" Stanton and his wife, visiting from Milford, Del., found himself trapped inside, with steel windows holding him, his wife and Mrs. Smack, prisoners in the blazing oven.

Stanton's leg had been broken, and he couldn't kick out the steel windows. He was a karate expert, but had broken his hand, and it was not yet healed.

"Tinker massacred his hand breaking out the steel windows. There is blood all over the windows where he hammered the steel with his broken hand. He had cuts from the glass all the way up his arm," Smack said.

"He beat out the windows, and then he threw my wife out the window, he threw his wife, a big woman, out the window, and then he climbed out himself.

"I was smashing the windows on the other side of the house, and didn't know they were out until I saw me fall on the lawn. I ran around the house and saw all three were out. Tinker was bleeding bad...," Smack said.

Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen arrived at the blazing inferno minutes after receiving the call, and had to restrain Smack from entering the house to try to save the two dogs owned by the family. Both perished in the flames.

"It took six men to hold him down," said one fireman. The four occupants were taken to Martin Memorial Hospital and treated, as the firemen, joined by St. Lucie Fire Department, fought to keep the blaze from spreading to other homes along the drive. Nine trucks were involved in fighting the fire, four of them from Jensen Beach. The fire was in St. Lucie County.

"We'll rebuild," Smack said Friday as he tried to clear up the debris of the demolished building. He estimated the loss at $30,000, and admitted that the $10,000 insurance on the house and $5,000 insurance on the contents would not cover the loss.

Smack operates a gun store just north of Fort St. Lucie, and had a set of matched .38 Colt antique guns in the fire, along with 30 antique guns, some ammunition, and $1,100 in cash.

He held up a roll of dimes, melted in the heat into a glob of silver. A small Derringer was twisted metal. A few gun barrels, looking naked without their stocks, were lying on the house foundation.

Three young men had come over to aid in the cleanup. They were neighbors, Jimmy Crook, Dale Timmerman and Jerry Landrey, and wanted to help Jay Stewart had given him some clothing to wear.

But Larry and Paula Smack owe their lives to a hero who has a broken and cut hand to heal, Wilson Stanton, who returned with his wife to his home in Delaware on Friday morning.

The Smack house lay in ruin, but Larry and Paula Smack are alive. They will rebuild.

ANTIQUE GUNS--Larry Smack holds some of the antique guns destroyed in the fire that leveled most of his home on North Indian River Drive, Eden, last Thursday morning.

Island owners agree to limit apartments

JB--A population density limitation of fifteen units per acre found agreement from property owners of Hutchinson Island in development of apartments on the island in a meeting with Al Lewis, Martin County master planner, last week.

The views of the owners of property on the island were sought to help in the master plan, as contracted by the county from Lewis' firm, VTN, of Orlando.

At present, up to 25 units per acre could be built. The limitation, however, would not apply to oceanfront hotel planning.

"...automatically takes care of our drainage day and night."

Mr. Jose M. Antuna has plenty of reason to be pleased with his electrically driven drainage pumps. He's in charge of one of the largest sugar plantations in Florida. And that calls for a large amount of drainage done quickly, efficiently and economically.

Mr. Antuna says operation is simplified with electric power. We can set the float switches to the desired elevation and then the pumps automatically take care of our drainage day and night.

Mr. Antuna is planning to double his electrically driven drainage pumps in the near future. Can you profit from his experience by using electricity for automatic drainage? Or for efficient and low-cost irrigation? Check with your local equipment dealer.

Meredith Jensen still confined

JB—Meredith Jensen of 1375 Valley Drive, Alexandria, is still confined to his home, following a heart attack, which occurred last June.

Jensen, son of the late John L. Jensen, founder of Jensen Beach, and Mrs. Jensen, were preparing to leave for Florida when he suffered the heart attack. They had planned to visit Jensen Beach and other cities on the east coast of Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Jensen visited the Jensen Beach area in 1969 while enjoying a vacation in Florida. They were also planning to move to Florida, and Jensen Beach was one of their projected home sites.

Jensen's sister, Mrs. Neville Colthurst, also resides in Alexandria, and visited the Jensen Beach area two years ago.

Radtke said the center serves the deaf, blind, epileptic, retarded, and also the alcoholic, through three avenues of service.

The first avenue is residential educational features, wherein those who have suffered brain damage from an accident can improve their minds.

The second avenue is through speech pathology, retraining those with speech defects, some from strokes.

A third avenue is nursing, with citizens trained to take care of ill or injured persons. Two have been retrained for such duty, Radtke said.

The director said that the center also serves senior citizens, calling the homes of those who are alone to organize a check. If there is no answer, the center sends people to the home to check on the senior citizens.

In work areas, Radtke said the center has a complete printing department and asked for the printing jobs of local businessmen. He said the center had 10,000 plants in a horticulture department that are for sale to individuals or to landscapers. The center also collects and sells ten tons of scrap newspaper a month.

Then, Don Wilkie, president of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, presented petitions from 1,696 residents of the Jensen Beach area, asking for the zoning change.

Speaking in opposition was Al Karlsen, Jeannette Lyman, who said that the issue was between the residents immediately affected by the change and the developer.

Attorney Dean Dewey, representing the property owners who opposed the zoning change, pointed to the rezoning of the area a few years ago, said the change would serve only the property owner and not the community, called the change spot-zoning, said noise, traffic, litter and glare were major problems to be resolved, and said the Chamber of Commerce petitions showed how many people would discourage on the area to shop at the center.

Tooker showed pictures of the backs of area shopping center stores to prove the litter point, and added that there was a possibility that the noise factor could be increased with "juke joints" in the center. He then quoted a case involving Hollywood, Florida and a change in zoning that was stricken down by the courts.

The Jensen Beach Garden Club, represented by Mrs. Signa Morris, then publicly asked that the zoning change be denied due to the unsanitary and undesirable location and potential traffic hazards.

Leone Crary, given time for rebuttal, refuted all of Tooker's arguments, calling them emotional, "...reaching out into left field for some imagined hazards."

Pittman said he was concerned with the area and the effect of the shopping center on the area, calling it an "unusual piece of property." He also mentioned the concern of substandard Skyline Drive.

Forsberg then congratulated the two attorneys on their presentations, said that the existing distance to the stores could help retired citizens, and called the decision "difficult to make". He added to the traffic problem and said he did not think that the developer had given enough information.

Forsberg then said there was a need to study the proposed route, and submitted concerns for the Skyline Drive, Commercial Street intersection, and the intersection of the I-95 tracks.

It was then that Forsberg dropped his bomb, not asking for a table of the zoning change for more information for further asking the denial. His motion was seconded by Indiantown zoning board member Paul Sieber. In the vote, Forsberg, Sieber and Pittman supported the motion, with John Klerstad, a new member of the board, abstaining.

County to update on modular homes

Stuart — A request will be made to the Southern Building Code Congress asking for rules and regulations covering pre-fab and modular home construction in Martin County, according to action taken Tuesday by the Martin County Commission.

Zoning director Tom Higgins was directed to contact the Congress for the information and bring recommendations to the board for its review.

"Once the modular homes and pre-fabs are approved, we want to know where they are allowed in Martin County," Chairman Bill Myers said.

Pre-fab homes are found not only in RT zoning, but in residential areas as well, commissioners agreed, saying some are in North River Shores.

Some modular homes are required to have the approval of the Southern Standard Building Code, others can present an architect's certificate of approval.

Law enforcement to grand jury

Stuart--With the selection and empaneling of the 1971 Martin County Grand Jury, the probe into law enforcement in the county leaves the research phase and enters the final phase of testimony.

State Attorney Zell Davis, west Palm Beach, has subpoenaed five officials of the county to testify before the grand jury, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the county courthouse. Included in the list of witnesses are County Commissioner Frank Wacha, Assistant State Attorney James Littman, Sheriff Roy Baker, Constable John Randolph, and last year's grand jury foreman Henry Crane.

Wacha brought about the investigation with a report of cases that had not reached the trial stage, had been not prossed, dropped, or otherwise not followed to conclusion, and a low ratio of convictions to arrests.

Davis was appointed by the governor in December to look into the conduct of law enforcement in the county, with a mandate to investigate the potential that citizens were being harrassed through arrests that did not result in a proper ratio of conviction to arrest.

He has been researching the various stages of law enforcement in the county, from the local constable to the sheriff's department, to the state attorney office.

One issue is certain to be the lack of cooperation between the state attorney office and the sheriff's department. Assistant State Attorney Littman prefers to investigate through the constable's office, and Sheriff Baker has often criticized the lack of communication from Littman.

The grand jury elected Paul L. Dolan, Sr., Stuart, as foreman; Ben Medley, Port Salerno, vice-foreman, and Mary Smith, Sewall's Point, clerk.

The other grand jurors include Mabel Meggett, Blanche E. Arnold, George D. Huss, Mary Leasher, Robert Nickle and Gladys S. Bowering, all of Stuart; F. Helen White, Darrell W. Kemps, Robert T. Morrow, Jr. and Lila O. Redinger, of Jensen Beach; Cora A. Metzger and Nettie A. Conine of Port Salerno; Sam Epps of Hobe Sound; Richard Graves, Indiantown; and Kent L. Boutwell.

Evans-Davis vows exchanged

JB- Miss Susan Elizabeth Davis became the bride of Chester Thomas Evans, Jr. on December 28 in a candlelight ceremony at high noon at Jensen Beach Community Church. The Rev. Donald E. Johnson, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The new Mrs. Evans is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Davis of N. Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Chester T. Evans, Titusville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin street length gown with long sleeves and a mandarin neckline. The gown had a lace yoke, lace insets in the sleeves and the back of the bodice which was held with a bow of satin. Her tulle veil was held in place with a headpiece of beaded lace.

The church was decorated with dozens of poinsettias forming a huge tree shape background for the service. The music included "More," "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing," and "A Medley of Wedding Marches."

Mrs. Wayne Jackson of Jacksonville served as matron of honor for her sister. Her street length gown was of red velvet with angel wing sleeves. She wore white accessories and her bouquet was of white carnations.

Best man was Alfred Evans, brother of the groom. Ushers were John Horn of Gainesville and Rick Berthiaume of the Air Force Academy, Denver, Colorado.

Mrs. Davis chose a turquoise silk crepe dress with a corsage of pink carnations. Mother of the groom wore a two-piece yellow faille, with a corsage of yellow pom poms.

Following the church ceremony, a reception and luncheon buffet was held at Holiday Inn. Two punch bowls flanked the tiered wedding cake, and the table was decorated with white carnations and tiny red rose buds.

For a going away costume the new Mrs. Evans chose a rose brocade dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. After the wedding trip through southern Florida, the newlyweds will be at home at 305 N.W. 19th St., Gainesville.

Both are graduates of Titusville High School and both are juniors at the University of Florida. She is majoring in mathematics, he in forestry.

John Stokes selected to Hall of Fame

[illegible]-Word has been received here that the late John W. Stokes has been elected to the Hall of Fame by the Automotive Old Timers, Inc., a national association of the automotive industry. Stokes was chosen for his contributions to automotive dealers.

Stokes specialized in the automobile dealer field through his New York firm, the John W. Stokes & Company, Certified Public Accountants and Tax Specialists. Stokes passed away in 1970, but the firm has continued in operation under his name by the former partners. He also founded the Stokes Tax Controls, which continues to publish tax bulletins written especially for automotive dealers.

Stokes is also the author of books on the automobile dealer business. One book is "Automobile Dealers Franchise Agreements and Factory-Dealer Relations." This book played an important part in getting the automobile manufacturers to correct some of the inequities that existed at the time in the dealers' franchise agreements.

Stokes is associated locally for the John W. Stokes Research Foundation, which he founded in 1947, and which has made many contributions to civic projects such as the Martin County Public Library; the Martin Memorial Hospital; the Stuart Woman's Club; the Martin County Historical Society and its two museums; the Pioneer Occupational Center; and the scholarship program.

Fifty scholarships have been awarded locally.

Many went to see the Apollo

JB--There were many 42 and 54 license plates sprinkled among the thousands of automobiles that converged on Cocoa Beach to see the launch of Apollo 14 last Sunday afternoon.

Over 400,000 persons were in attendance, clogging roads, highways and causeways as three American astronauts began their journey to the moon. Among them were many residents of the area.

The transistor radios used by local radio stations, and television sets in many cars turned up along the beaches and causeways, the people had an excellent view and a reserved seat for the historic number one precision, the conquest of space.

When the Apollo was fired into the atmosphere, it was visible from all areas around the Cape, and the hundreds of thousands exhibited and exhibited when the flash of flame was followed by billowing clouds of mushrooming smoke, and the accelerating rocket crashed through the slight cloud cover.

The clouds that covered Titusville and the launch site never did reach the few miles down to Cocoa Beach, and the southern view was spectacular.

Evinrudes flew by the Apollo

JB--"It was one of the most spectacular sights we have ever seen," said Ralph Evinrude about the launching of Apollo 14.

Evinrude, chairman of the board of Outboard Marine Corporation, his wife, singer Frances Langford, and guest Chi-Chi Gonsalbo, were returning aboard the OMC executive plane from a trip to Canada, where they participated in testing OMC snow equipment, and timed their flight to arrive at Cocoa Beach about the time that the Apollo was launched.

"We flew at 16,000 to 18,000 feet, above the clouds, and had to circle for a half hour during the hold. We circled between Cocoa and Cocoa Beach, just south of the launch site," Evinrude said.

"We were headed east, just crossing over Cocoa Beach, when the rocket was launched, Frances and Chi-Chi saw the firing through the clouds, and moments later it came through the clouds, just off our left wing. It was fantastic.

"The pilot lifted the left wing so that we could follow it out to sea for the few minutes we could see it. It was amazing," Evinrude said.

Fires plague grasslands as fire ban lowers fight

JB--It was a thin pale of haze, a smoggy looking air, that greeted the motorist and pedestrian in Martin and St. Lucie Counties last week.

The sun shone through a yellow ring as a west wind brought the smoke from hundreds of thousands of acres of burning grasslands over the east coast of Florida, Locally, Jensen Beach Fire Chief Randolph Spinney reported that there was only one minor grass fire on the county line on Hutchinson Island. The fire was quickly extinguished.

The ban on fires in Martin and St. Lucie Counties continued in force, and the fire departments quickly moved to stop small fires started by residents and businessmen to burn trash, forbidden by the edict of Governor Askew.

In Port St. Lucie, all fires have been halted by the construction program of General Development, according to general manager Jack Sheridan.

... Donations of $500 from Ocean Breeze Park, $200 from Florida Power and Light company, and $200 from Wise Dixie Super Market, $125 from Rio Civic Club, and $100 from First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County marked the opening morning of the Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund Drive Monday.

Added to special gift donations of $50 from the Baker Foundation, $15 from Mrs. Talena Stokes, $5 from First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart, and $50 from Mr. and Mrs. Richard Campbell, the goal target announced was $1,325.

Workers from throughout the Jensen Beach, Rio, Hobe Sound and Hutchinson Island areas fanned out after being presented to the press by Richard E. Campbell, campaign chairman, to collect donations for the drive.

The area captains were introduced by Mrs. Lavaughn Thor, UF president, along with officers Herb Smith, first vice-president; Buddy Sipes, second vice-president; Mrs. Kathleen Spencer, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph Baca, recording secretary; and Mrs. Harry Lantz, corresponding secretary, following a prayer by Rev. Donald Johnson, pastor of the Jensen Beach Community Church, and the pledge of allegiance.

Richard E. Campbell, editor of The Mirror and a past president of the United Fund, was the kickoff speaker. He outlined the efforts of the United Fund in aiding the workers to support the thirteen agencies in the fund drive, and to meet the funds necessary to keep the fund alive.

During the talk, Mrs. Thor talked out cits to the area captains, asking them to turn in money to the treasurer when the workers had their areas.

Thanks for the United Fund will be given in the editorial mailed to Mrs. Talena Stokes, Jensen Beach.

A weekly report of the fund drive will be carried in The Mirror.

The kickoff breakfast was sponsored by the Rio Civic Club. Table decorations, in a Valentine theme, were provided by Mrs. Grace Lewis, Ocean Breeze Park. Following the meeting, the decorations were delivered by Rio Civic Club members to Martin Memorial Hospital.

Charter points

1. Legislative delegation hears bills for the 1971 Florida Legislature on February 23 at the Martin County Courthouse. Bills not introduced at this meeting cannot be introduced with support in the session this year.
2. The Jensen Beach Chamber's forms of government committee just completed its report, generalized, and its recommendations, on January 28. The study is to be polished by a chamber-government-special committee before being presented to the public.
3. Some Chamber directors favor having a charter in the mill and passed still a referendum attached for public vote on the issue on November, 1971, giving the group two months to inform the public through publicity about the benefits of incorporation and allowing public debate on the issues. They also fear the Chamber study will be outdated by Fall of 1972.
4. Other directors fear that the public will misunderstand the passage of a charter before the facts are presented, bringing undue opposition to the incorporation movement.
5. A compromise between the two groups takes the issue to the people, allowing the citizens of Jensen Beach to vote on whether the charter should, or should not, be presented to the legislative delegation on February 23. Ballots are printed on this page and can be sent to the Chamber of Commerce, or deposited there in the ballot box, which will be opened and ballots counted, on February 22, Monday, at a special directors' meeting.
6. The board will abide by the vote of the people.

Now, or later?

Chamber seeks charter vote

JB--The public is being asked to vote, this week-end, on whether the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce should present a charter for the incorporation of Jensen Beach, with a referendum by the people attached, at the February 23 legislative public hearing, or if it should wait a year to do so.

At issue is the time problem involved in the completion of the forms of government study, and its report to the people.

A ballot box is printed on this page. Citizens are asked to vote on the issue and to deposit their vote in writing the box for it in a letter or paper and depositing the vote in the ballot box at the Chamber of Commerce office, located on Jensen Beach Boulevard, in the Jensen Beach Community center. Ballots will be counted Monday, February 22, at the Chamber office by the board.

If the charter is presented at the legislative hearing, with a referendum attached requiring a vote of the people of Jensen Beach before the charter can become effective, the people would have an opportunity to vote on possible incorporation of Jensen Beach in November, 1971.

If the charter is not presented at the legislative hearing, it will have to wait until the 1972 legislative session in Tallahassee, before bringing the vote until November, 1972, according to the Chamber forms of government committee.

At a meeting Monday night, the members of the Jensen Beach Chamber board of directors voted not agree whether to present the facts of the forms of government committee report to the people before the charter is filed in written and presented to the legislative delegation.

The charter issue is a direct result of the controversy over the location of the proposed Indian River Community College campus, according to James Gibbons, president of the Chamber. Although the charter would not affect the site of the college, the issue led to the formation of the local study committee.

Miller agreed, saying that he would resign from the research committee if the charter were presented before the study and its results were presented to the people.

The forms of government committee, presented by Dave Deel, thought the charter was a matter of form, that the people would have a vote on it in November.

"If we can't convince them of the value of incorporation by November, then the people can vote it down," said Deel. "The main thing is that the people would have a chance to vote on it. They haven't had that.

"We would have two months to bring all the facts to the people. With the charter passed with a provision that the charter would not be effective unless the people passed it, we would be a year ahead. The charter is just a matter of time," Deel continued.

A compromise resulted in bringing the issue to the people, asking that if the would approve of the Chamber presenting a charter for a county-manager form of government to the legislative delegation with a referendum attached, and a vote in November, 1971, or if the Chamber should wait until the report is presented to the public in public hearings by the Chamber, delaying the charter of incorporation, and its effective vote by the public, to 1972.

All residents of Jensen Beach are asked to fill out the ballot form and send it, or deposit it at the Chamber office. The office is open daily from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. except Saturday and Sunday.

The Chamber directors, in that meeting, agreed to accept the report of the committee, and a new committee, composed of the Chamber board and the members of the forms of government committee, was appointed by Chamber President Don Wilkie to "refine" the report as presented.

Miller and forms of government committee chairman Deel were appointed co-chairmen of the new committee. Their first meeting with directors and the F-G members will be next Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Chamber office.

Sheriff refuses lie test

Stuart--The refusal of Sheriff Ray Oswald to take a polygraph test of the accusations made against him in a civil rights complaint charges by a resident of Jensen Beach that police officers brutalized him during a investigation of narcotics violations, according to James Gibbons, unnamed source who refused to take the test to clear his name.

Gibbons said that he might call the film of evidence to the case next week. He said another source may be the local grand jury, since the case is federal in nature.

Baker refused to take the lie detector test through his attorney, Raymond Ford, of Fort Pierce, Ford indicated that the test was "insufficiently reliable," and "could only serve to harass the sheriff in public calls or otherwise."

Gullywasher, wind bring drought end

The 4-inch rain that swept through south Florida Friday and Saturday, ending a drought, and bringing buildings, signs and trees scaping to Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie.

At Windmill Village, a Hutchinson Island, a 150-pound concrete table was blown over by the winds.

Estimates of the gusting winds have been made as high as 65 miles per hour.

Damage, however, was slight, and the total damage will be the cost of one table, according to the manager of Windmill Village, Dave Yonger.

Yonger said that the table was overturned, a few umbrellas were blown away, and a few signs were damaged.

HEAVY--High winds Monday blew over this 150-pound concrete table at Windmill Village on Hutchinson Island. Dave Yonger, construction manager of the travel trailer resort, said damage through the area was light.

While Fahrenheit 45 to 65 miles per hour.

At Port St. Lucie, the giant welcome sign at the entrance to the community was blown down. Mel Hilson, general development corporation official, said the sign snapped in the high wind. He attributed the sign failure to rotted timbers at the base of the sign "not enough to hold back that big wind."

Also, the sign at the FBL traffic was blown down.

All along U.S. 1, from Port St. Lucie to Jensen Beach, billboard signs showed little damage. Most were protected by tree lines.

A workman installing the new tower for Martin County Little Company, just off Britt Road, said, "I didn't know just what to expect, and it is up there (the tower), and the two wires held perfectly)." The tower, designed to be 45% high, was at the 30% level when the storm hit.

Mans on bridge

By Jay H. Mans
Responses - Part Two

The responder bids at the two level if a new suit, usually after partner has opened in a higher ranking suit. This shall mean a minimum of ten points in the responder's hand. Opener must bid again, UNLESS responder may hold as many as 18 points without the two over one response. Other strong bids by responder: Two No Trumps. This is a jump takeout and shows interest directing to game, requirements 12 to 15 high card points, at least two small cards in partner's suit for safety purposes, and all other suits stopped. No trump distribution - not preferred, or five card major suit.

Three No Trump response is an opening bid of one in a suit. This is similar to the two no trump takeout, except that responder holds 16 to 18 points in high cards. This is definitely NOT A SIGN-OFF over the overcall. It is a slam invitational.

[illegible] RAISE OF OPENING BID SUIT. Responder holds 13 to 16 points and GOOD TRUMP SUPPORT. Just on more. This bid is for game if responder is interested in slam, but failure to indicate a reasonable slam-zone possibility. JUMP SHIFT. Responder makes a jump in another suit. This is not only a game force, but a very definite slam invitation. The responder must have at least 17 points and either a solid suit of his own or more than the usual trump support in suit bid by opener. It indicates that responder does not intend to partner's suit without adequate trump support. Never bid at the level of two in a new suit without a minimum of 10 points. Always pass partner's opening suit bid one with less than six points. A very special point to keep in mind: The first round of bidding is (exploratory), the second round is Definitive. No need to more too quickly as long as you can use your suit forcing principle until you feel more sure as to which direction to guide the partnership.

Keeping in mind that magic number TWENTY-SIX when in no trump or a major suit, and TWENTY-NINE when bidding minor suits will keep you from underbidding or hands when there is definitely not game for game. THIRTY - THREE points will usually produce a slam, but other factors must be given thought, such as two unless doubletons in the partner's holdings, whereas defender's can grab two quick tricks to defeat the contract.

Next week: Rebids by the opener. Note to regular readers, in these early phases of the program I am reviewing the basic premises of Standard American bidding to line with the newest adjustments. After completion I propose to start talking about some of the finer and more advanced philosophies of this fascinating game.

Keaton asks CD salaries

...mergency civil defense director Al Keaton received a split vote Tuesday morning after he requested action of the Martin County commission to transfer funds to cover adjustments in salaries in his department. Keaton requested that the salaries of Brian Tresselt-Sexton and his secretary be increased.

...ommissioner Frank Wa...cha voted Yes to the motion, ...ers passed.

...planned, Cammack asked that the county beach be posted on the north and south sides so the public will know the boundaries of county-owned property.

Commissioner Frank Wacha said he would take care of marking the beach area. Cammack will again try to work with the restaurant owner and will report back to the commission next month.

All pavilions are painted, and rest rooms have been painted at Jensen Beach, Stuart and Hobe Sound beaches by the lifeguards, Cammack reported. The new lights at Jensen beach have improved security, with no vandalism reported since they were installed. He asked how much "worth" the rules and regulations of the beach contained, and how much authority he and other lifeguards had in enforcing them.

Cammack asked that letters be sent by the commission to lifeguards who make rescues, citing an instance on Saturday when lifeguard Michael Paulich, Jr. rescued a man from eight feet of surf. He also asked that a letter be sent to Aide Yarock thanking him for donating a stretcher for emergencies. Cammack also asked that concrete posts be furnished to keep vehicles off the beaches. "We'll do the work and paint them if you give us the posts," the request read.

Cammack has introduced a daily log which is kept up to date at all beaches, recording accidents, water and air temperatures, and number in attendance and all first aid activity.

Basketball tourney to benefit Battey

JB--Jensen Beach School is one of six elementary schools which will take part in a county-wide basketball tournament for the benefit of the Raymond Battey Fund. The tourney will start Monday, February 22, and will continue through Thursday. Games will be played at Martin County High School gym.

There will be no charge for spectators, but donations will be accepted to defray medical expenses for Raymond Battey, 11, a sixth-grade pupil at Jensen Beach School. The boy was critically injured Dec. 23 in a bicycle accident and is hospitalized at St. Mary's Hospital, West Palm Beach. A goal of $2,000 has been set for the tournament donations.

A dozen boys and a dozen girls from Jensen School will play in the tournament. Practice games have been held recently with Palm City and Parker Elementary.

The games will start at 6 p.m. Monday when the girls of Middle School meet Hobe Sound; at 7 p.m. the Jensen boys will play Port Salerno, and at 8 p.m. boys teams from Indiantown, Middle and Palm City will face each other on the court.

The single elimination tourney will continue Tuesday at 6 p.m. when the girls of Palm City take on the Port Salerno girls. At 7 p.m. Jensen girls take the court against Parker. Parker boys play Hobe Sound at 8 p.m.

Wednesday's games will be at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., and the finals will be at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25, for the countywide championship. Trophies will be awarded.

Entertainment will be provided between games each evening by secondary school pupils, according to Dale Clark, principal of Jensen School. Recognition will be given to the community that has the greatest number of supporters at the games, Clark told The Mirror.

"Since we won first place trophy in the Christmas Parade, and had last year's county champion speller, Jensen Beach School are should support these games," said John Clyde, assistant principal, pointing out that it was also for a good cause.

The tournament is sponsored by the Martin County Principals' Association.

Jensen festival next week

Artists indicate show success

JB--The registration of over fifty artists indicated this week another record art festival in Jensen Beach, according to John Power, manager of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event.

With a deadline for registration of February 22, Power said he looked for a conservative estimate of over sixty exhibitors in the two-day show, planned for February 27 and 28 at Langford Park. The fifth annual show will be open from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. each day. Exhibits are limited to original fine arts by the exhibitors, with crafts not permitted. All artists, amateur or professional, can register. The Chamber charges a two dollar registration fee for the artists.

The display this year will be hung on the fence of the baseball park, Power explained in the artists' own easels. Individual artists will be assigned space by the committee on opening day of the show.

Power said that applications have been received from artists as far north as Indialantic, as far south as southern Palm Beach County and as far west as St. Petersburg.

Last year over 100 pictures were sold at the show, with some selling for as high as $150, according to Power.

Refreshments for the two-day show will be served at the park by the Jensen Beach Cubs.

BEAUTIFICATION--The beautification of the new Jensen Beach Elementary School grounds got under way this week with the planting of several palm trees. About 30 trees will be moved to the site and planted in groups of three. Workmen are shown above digging the huge pits in which the trees are planted.

70 gals to compete

Sears Women's Classic Tournament Friday

PSL--More than 70 players of the Ladies Professional Golf Association will be off Friday in quest of the larger women's golf purse in history.

The Sears Women's World Classic of St. Lucie will begin the 1971 LPGA tour in record style. In addition to the all-time record $60,000 total purse, the winner of the three-day event will take home $10,000, also a record.

Among the favorites for the silver cup are Kathy Whitworth, last year's leading money winner; Shirley Englehorn, who won more tournaments in 1970 than any other woman pro; JoAnne Carner, last year's rookie-of-the-year, and Marilynn Smith, who closed out the year last fall with a win at the Ladi Charities Open, Houston.

All 20 of the 1970 tournament winners have entered the 54-hole event, and the entrant's list includes the first 30 ranked women.

The Sears Classic is sponsored by Sears, Roebuck and Company, and General Development Corporation of Miami, Fla.

The women will play on the St. Lucie Country Club's 73 par, 6,394-yard Sisters Courses.

In addition to the record LPGA purse, professional entrants will have an opportunity to win two other prizes. The first golfer making a hole-in-one on the course's 209-yard 10th hole will receive $10,000 from Delta Air Lines. Sears will give a full-length mink coat to the professional coming closest to the 156-yard third hole.

Sharing the spotlight with the golf event will be a gathering of women's page and fashion editors from throughout the nation. The editors will be treated to a potpourri of fasion events, including Sears presentation of the 1971 Pan-American and 1972 Olympic Games wardrobes.

In past years, the two St. Lucie championship courses, the Saints and Sinners, have been the scene of the World Senior Four-Ball Amateur Championships; the U.S. Pro-Am Golf Championships; and the St. Lucie Amateur Invitational.

Tournament notes

PSL--Judy Kimball, 22nd ranked woman at the conclusion of the 1970 tour, had the best individual round of the year with a 66 in the George Washington Classic at Hidden Springs Country Club at Horsham, Pa. in suburban Philadelphia.

Kathy Whitworth leads the all-time LPGA official earnings list with $299,209.01, including $30,235.01 earned last year.

Twelve different women won tournaments on the 21-tournament tour last year, topped by Shirley Englehorn's four consecutive wins. The four-in-a-row also tied the LPGA record.

What state supplied the most entrants to the Sears Classic? As expected, Florida topped the list with 18, followed by California and Texas with seven each. What section of the country tops the list? The South with 30 entrants.

The longest trip to reach Port St. Lucie must belong to Vivien Saunders of Oxshott Surrey, England. The only other foreign entrant is Sandra Post of Oakville, Ontario, Canada.

Seven of the top 10 all-time LPGA money winners have entered the Sears Classic. They include: Kathy Whitworth, number one; Betsy Rawls, number three; Marilynn Smith, number four; Carol Mann, number five; Marlene Hagge, number six; Sandra Haynie, number seven; and Shirley Englehorn, number ten.

Martin County High School basketball Tigers will meet Fort Pierce Friday at 8 p.m. at the MCHS gym. Tuesday's game will be at Lake Worth at 7 p.m.

United Fund hits 62%

JB-- The Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund chalked up 62% of its $10,300 goal in the first week of the drive, and seemed headed for a repetition of last year's drive, reaching the $10,000 goal in three weeks.

Five area captains have not yet reported, according to Mrs. Ransom Tilton, president of the drive. She indicated that with the clean-up of the various areas, calling back on the residents who were not at home when the worker called, and a complete approach to all businesses, the goal might be close to the needed $10,000.

Added to the area captain report was special gifts of $250 from W. H. Tilton Real Estate, $200 from Publix Markets, $50 from Jensen Lanes, and $50 from Stuart Paint and Supply.

Agencies benefited by the fund include Jensen Samaritans Ambulance Service, Jensen Civic League, Mars Hill Community Center, Martin County Association for Mental Health, M. C. Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Animal Rescue League of M.C., Boy and Girl Scouts of America, Pioneer Occupational Center, M.C. Retarded Children Association, Langford Ball for Children's Cystic Fibrosis of Florida, and the emergency fund.

Shufflers to tournament

PSL--The Port St. Lucie Shuffleboard Club will host the Central East Coast Novice Doubles Shuffleboard Tournament on March, 4, 5, and 6, with an estimated 100 players expected to take part.

Judd Reading, club president, also announced that the Central East Coast Mixed Doubles Tournament would be held at Whispering Creek on Feb. 25, 26, and 27. Indian River League standings are: Ormond Breeze, 6; Stuart, 60; Vero Beach, 57; Whispering Creek, 55; Fort Pierce, 54; and Port St. Lucie, 41.

In other business, the club voted to donate $100 to CERA. Preparations were made for a school to be set up for referees. It was also announced that a nominating committee will be selected at the last meeting.

Wahoo is a whopper

JB- A 42 pound, 59 inch wahoo was entered Tuesday in the annual Sailfish Tournament by the O'Haras of New Hampshire. The fish topped the heaviest wahoo entered so far this season by about five pounds.

O'Hara caught the whopper wahoo Tuesday afternoon on board the Carole Ann, 111 out of Frances Langford's Outrigger Marina. Skipper was Will Bowman. The party also caught kings, mackerel and other fish.

Inservice activities set at Jensen School

JB--About 200 elementary teachers, principals, consultants and central staff personnel of Martin County schools will take part in an inservice program to be held at Jensen Beach School on Monday, February 22. The program, covering 32 activities, will start at 8:15 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. with a lunch break at 12

Subjects will include reading problems, open highways, algebra, handwriting and other phases of language arts; concepts in science including films, and general coverage of instructional techniques, behavior problems, guidance and demonstrations of test scoring machines.

Special areas will cover teacher aides, audio-visual workshops, kindergarten teachers, special education, physical education and music teachers.

The general assembly from 1:30 to 3 p.m. will feature S. Alan Cohen director of Reading Center at Yeshiva University, New York, who has been described as "one of the long-hair, guitar-playing but highly skilful persons in the field of reading."

Coffee will be on hand to greet the visitors and escort them to the proper classrooms in the care school, Dale Clark, principal of the school, told The Mirror. "Our parking area is going to be very inadequate for the crowd," he said.

Inservice day for the Jensen Beach School staff will be Tuesday, February 23. "There will be an evaluation and appraisal of the first semester's work, and we will plan for the balance of the school year," Clark said. "We'll determine our needs for equipment and personnel for next year."

There will be no school for pupils Monday and Tuesday.

Local mail should be bundled

JB--The bundling of local mail before it is dispatched to street collection boxes will speed delivery, according to a notice from the U.S. Post Office Department. The notice was brought to The Mirror office by Harold Saidler, officer in charge of the Jensen Beach Post Office.

The post offices have bands and labels for local mail available to businesses that request them. Mail that is bundled will be retained at the local post office for sortment. Mail that is not bundled, dropped in street collection boxes, will be sent to the Sectional Center Facility in West Palm Beach for processing. The mail will then be returned to the local post office for distribution the following day.

In order to get "next day" delivery, patrons must mail letters before 11 a.m. in street collection boxes, and before noon in the post offices in order to connect with the 12 noon mail truck.

The evening mail truck leaves Jensen Beach Post Office at 5:15 p.m., Stuart Post Office at 5:30 p.m. To connect with this dispatch, mail must be in street collection boxes at Jensen by 3 p.m., at Stuart by 4 p.m. It must be in the mail drops at Jensen office by 5 p.m., and Stuart Post Office drops by 5:15 p.m.

It is also important to separate mail into "local" and "out of town" mail drops, the report said.

Banking your blood can be a life-saving investment

By Alice Hickey

JH— Would you be willing to invest in a program which could save your life, or the life of someone dear to you? For most people the answer could be an unqualified "Yes, tell me how." The problem in Martin County is that not enough people have been told how.

The lack of awareness, not neglect, was stressed by Mrs. Alice Clary, RN at the Martin Memorial Hospital in charge of our local blood bank, while commenting on the shortage of blood donors in the county.

"Many of our recipients are our senior citizens over 65 years of age, and our demand is great. We are indeed fortunate", said Mrs. Clary, "that our hospital is one of several affiliated with the Palm Beach Blood Bank. The bank serves as a central source, and supplies several hospitals, including ours."

Martin Memorial keeps a minimum of 25 pints of blood on hand at all times, plus a list of rare type donors, being a member of the American Association of Blood Banks and The Florida Association. It is notified to use the Blood Bank Clearing House in Palm Beach. This is particularly important to local needs, since an over supply or shortage of one type may be exchanged, which enables the local hospital to keep the proper balance on hand.

The blood is taken locally, sent to the Palm Beach Bank, and the supply is available to the hospital 24 hours a day. To date Martin county has not been able to supply its own demands.

"Our hospital is enlarging, our demands will be ever greater. Our county is growing, our source will be better than ever before, but first step toward success is to make the public aware of our need, and I feel certain they will meet our demand," said Mrs. Clary.

"This brings to mind an incident which took place last summer", Mrs. Clary recalled. "Mom, due to a serious accident on U.S. 1, a young girl was brought in, bleeding profusely. An urgent request was broadcast for donors. Many persons responded to the appeal, however, one in particular stands out in my mind. A young woman, driving through Stuart at the time, heard the announcement and came to the hospital immediately. She said "I don't know the person needing the blood, but I would like to donate, if I may". This is the spirit shown by most of our citizens once they are aware of the need.

Under a family plan, which is available, a donor who gives one pint of blood every twelve months can obtain any amount needed. This must, however, be used for the donor's own family, including children up to 18 years of age. A person can donate every eight weeks, but not more than five times a year. Under the family plan you pay only for the equipment used and service rendered, the blood is free.

To give blood take a total of thirty minutes. A donor completes a brief form, his blood pressure is taken and his temperature checked, as well as the hemoglobin. It takes approximately fifteen minutes to draw the blood. The donor is then given orange juice, cross cuts or seven-up while resting ten minutes before leaving the hospital. The age limit for donors is 19 to 64 years of age.

Mrs. Edna Wolf, head of the auxiliary blood bank staff, assured us the staff would be on hand when the donors turn out. "We are indeed hopeful the public and civic organizations will get behind the drive for donors, and help to get Martin County on the 'credit side' of the Blood Bank ledger," said Mrs. Wolf.

The hospital blood bank is open every Tuesday evening from 4 to 8 p.m. or you may call 287-5200 for an appointment.

TESTING 1, 2, 3— Prior to donating blood each donor is given three tests, their blood pressure is checked, their temperature taken and their hemoglobin checked. In addition the donor is asked to complete a brief form for the hospital records.

THAT OTHERS MAY LIVE—only thirty minutes of your time and one pint of blood donated could save your life or the life of a loved one. The family plan for donations, available at the Martin Memorial Hospital, is well worth inquiring about by every resident between the ages of 19 and 64. Above, Mrs. Alice Clary keeps a watchful eye on both donor and equipment.

IN APPRECIATION—Mrs. Edna Wolf, chairman of the local blood bank auxiliary staff at Martin Memorial Hospital, displays a certificate of appreciation for her many hours of work with the bank. Mrs. Alice Clary, RN at the hospital, adds her congratulations as she admires the certificate. Others also receiving awards were Martin Oliver of Jensen Beach and Ruth Hawk.

ELECTRICAL CONTRACTING

Electric rates have gone down eleven times since 1957!

Snap. And your home is flooded with light. Twist a dial. And your laundry gets washed while you do the shopping. Click. And stars of the entertainment world come into the room in full color.

Today we rely on electricity so much and have it so readily at our fingertips that we often forget how miraculous it all would have seemed a few generations ago. And we seldom know what a great bargain flameless electric is, especially in these inflationary times. The average price per kilowatt hour paid by FPL served families today is one-third less than it was in 1957.*

No wonder then that you use electricity so much. It is the biggest bargain in your budget. Snap it up.

Lake Manor News

By CORRINE DAVENPORT

The Valentine Dinner given on Saturday night by the men of Lake Manor was declared a huge success by the 105 who attended.

Gene Krakaur, as chairman, was assisted by Jack Bell; Bill Eastman; Clair Brewer; EdJones; Jerry Van Cura; John Orefice; Paul Crawfrod; Virgil Lowe; Glen Oakes; Bob Staples; Dale Butler; Ken Dubuque; Stanley Wilmot; Charles Brinsley; Howard French; Jerry Goeman; George Marsh; and Fred Balfanz (and a few females whose names are not to be mentioned).

The roast beef, baked potatoes, several vegetables, Caesar salad, rolls and dessert were all delicious. The tables and decorations were most attractive and there just are not enough words to adequately express our appreciation and admiration for these men who put so many hours in preparation and production.

We can say, however, that since they have shown themselves so efficient, it has been suggested that they take over all future monthly dinners.

Six door prizes were presented, each accompanied by a witty little verse written by Marge Combs.

One of the most attractive and successful gatherings at the clubhouse was the Thursday evening reception given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Vreeland, who were married last week in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Vreeland is the former Herma Mitchell and she was one of the first to live in Lake Manor.

The beautifully appointed table, complete with wedding cake, punch, nuts, and mints, was evidence of the affection felt by Herma's neighbors and friends.

Although they are no longer in the park, we hope the Vreelands will want to come back often and we wish them a long and happy life together.

To see a Greyhound bus come into the park and drive out several hours later is bound to cause a bit of speculation, but Bernie Dubuque came up with this explanation.

A few years ago, friends from the Dubuque's home town of Perry, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ondrick, purchased a discarded bus from the Greyhound company. They believed this could be converted into a camper-trailer.

Doing all the work themselves, they now have a complete vacation home on wheels which includes sleeping quarters to accomodate six, a spacious lounge with color T.V., shower and bath, and ample room for food preparation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ondrick with their nine-year-old daughter, Jean, had just returned from a month's vacation in Ariz. Jean had the added thrill of attending a school in a ghost town, which is maintained especially for the children of winter visitors.

A warm welcome to Dorothy and Harry Beamer, who have purchased the Fowler home at the upper part of Lake Manor. The Beamers have lived in Maple Shade, N.J., and will retire next year. Meanwhile, they are enjoying the good fishing in this area.

Last week, they entertained friends from their hometown, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Love.

Paul and Margie Combs entertained Paul's neices and their husbands on Tuesday. They are: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Russ from East Point, Ga. and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Higbie from Oceanside, L.I.

On Wednesday, friends arrived from Millitown, N.J., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Powless and Mrs. Ethel Velsor from Fort Lauderdale, formerly of N.J.

Liz and Gene Krakour were hosts recently to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mahlar of Freeport, L.I., and Siesta Key, Fla.

Mrs. Hyram Lake is a guest of Lee and Tan Larkey, Mrs. Lake resides in Oconomowac, Wisc.

I would like to thank everyone most sincerely for the cards and messages received during my recent illness. They meant so much to Henry and me,

Amy Steinborn

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robertson were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Farrell of Park City, Fort Lauderdale and Mrs. Henry Sonnick of Throgg's Neck, Bronx, N.Y. After an afternoon of reminiscing, they all enjoyed a seafood dinner at Simonsen's in Ft. Pierce.

Visitors at the home of June and George Marsh are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Read of Scarborough, Me.

DRUGS
MARTIN COUNTY

Sunday at 6:35 P.M. WMCF will broadcast the third in its series of programs concerning

"DRUGS IN MARTIN COUNTY".

You will hear a teacher - confident of Martin County High School say!

"I could name 100 hard users on all kinds of pills, the needle, and grass. Another 100 of our students use drugs occasionally."

"About 55 percent of the student body has tried marijuana or some other drug."

"Drug use in Martin County High School is decreasing. The day when the 'in-group' used drugs is gone. The kids themselves are fed up with the drug thing."

"The critical time now is in the 7th, 8th and 9th grades."

"The kid on dope will almost beg his parents to look at him... to make him stop. I hear it over and over. My parents don't even care."

"There is a real danger of suicide."

"What should be done? Hit the pusher - hit him hard. And parents should take more interest in raising their kids."

ALSO NEXT SUNDAY

"A lot of kids are convinced marijuana is not as bad as alcohol... but it is."

"What to do about drugs? Education... and enforce the law".

Chamber group drops incorporation

JB--Lack of public response in a community-wide appeal by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce forced the delay for a year of plans for incorporation of Jensen Beach Monday night.

At a meeting of the board and study committee on incorporation, attended by four of eleven members of the board, and none of the incorporation group, votes were counted on the subject.

Only seventy-seven of over six thousand residents of the area voted, with 32 voting for submission of a charter to the Legislative Delegation in public hearing on Tuesday, and 28 voting against. Seventeen votes were disqualified due to not being signed.

One of those votes disqualified was a resident of the Town of Ocean Breeze Park, and another marked both for and against the charter submission.

Edwin Miller, chairman of the committee seeking the public opinion of the incorporation charter, said, after votes were counted, "I think we should study this for one more year so that we can come up with fundamental facts to prepare the people for the submission of a charter."

Don Wilkie, president of the Chamber, refused to comment, saying, "I will make my comments to the Chamber Board of Directors and to the annual installation banquet."

Opposition to the proposed charter was planned at the legislative hearings by the property owners association of Hutchinson Island, who recently voted to consider future incorporation of the entire island and hired an attorney, James Littman, to oppose the inclusion of any part of Hutchinson Island in the proposed City of Jensen Beach.

JB--Lloyd Dutcher was elected president of the Hutchinson Island Property Owners Association at its annual meeting Thursday. Retiring president Lester M. Cowen was elected vice-president and all other officers and board members were re-elected.

Martin County's Long-Range Planner Will Speak

By E. C. Wareheim, President

"The intrusion of the State Legislature in the field of assessing, which supposedly is a local function, has deprived the school department here of $283,000 in tax monies promised to the county by the State Minimum Foundation Program. The January re-calculation of tax monies due from the program to the county, an event meant as an added boost to the counties from the state, was cut 43 per cent; the county was promised $140,000; the state cut the figure to $60,200 and then made payment of only $23,000.

"It becomes obvious that continued lowering of the State's share of school monies will lead to the lowering of offerings in the schools as well as double sessions in the school plant. The unhappy result of these actions could be the loss of accreditation, however. And double sessions are costly, on the average.

"The entire problem was created by the actions of the House Select Committee, both in demanding more local millage levies in school support and in stepping into the county assessment problems. The Legislature, in effect, used the withholding of both school and road tax monies as a whip to line up the various county tax assessors to force them to assess at 100 per cent of full sales value.

"The assessors of about half the counties in the state were not assessing at 100 per cent under the new formula devised to appraise both personal and real property. Martin County was deemed assessed at 69 per cent of full value in the quick study."

"...automatically takes care of our drainage day and night."

Mr. Jose M. Antuna has plenty of reason to be pleased with his electrically driven drainage pumps. He is in charge of one of the largest sugar plantations in Florida. And that calls for a large amount of drainage done quickly, efficiently and economically.

Mr. Antuna says operation is simplified with electric power. We can set the float switches to the desired elevation and then the pumps automatically take care of our drainage day and night.

Mr. Antuna is planning to double his electrically driven drainage pumps in the near future. Can you profit from his experience by using electricity for automatic drainage? Or for efficient and low-cost irrigation? Check with your local equipment dealer

81 artists to exhibit at weekend festival

Eighty-one artists have applied to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce for a spot in the annual Outdoor Art Festival this weekend.

The popular event will be held all day Saturday and Sunday at Langford Park in Old Jensen Beach. The fifth annual show will be open from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. each day.

Exhibits are limited to original fine arts by the exhibitors, with crafts not permitted. Amateurs and professionals will be exhibiting. Artists will be here from all sections of Florida, according to John Power, executive manager of the Chamber.

Last year over 200 pictures were sold, with some selling for as high as $150, Power said.

Hamburgers, hot dogs, coffee and soft drinks will be sold at the park by the Jensen Beach CUBS. Proceeds will be used for youth activities.

Legion Heights roads to be resurfaced

Commissioner Frank Wacha said, "These will probably be the only roads paved in the Jensen Beach area this year. I move that we go with Dickerson Construction Co." Dickerson's bid was $6,204. Rubin Construction Co. was $7,815.

Commissioner chairman Bill Myers opposed the resurfacing of the roads because he felt the roads were only subdivision roads and the cost would come out of the general fund. Myers' only concern was whether the road warranted the resurfacing because of the general use of the public.

Commissioner Elmer Powers said, "We are kidding ourselves if we don't get an engineering firm to evaluate our roads to our classifications." He said the county would continue to have these same problems until it can get the roads classified.

The board recommended that funds not to exceed $1,000 be used to acquire someone to evaluate

Reed demands sewage planning

JB--Nat Reed put Martin County on the spot, demanding that the county get moving on a complete environmental plan by July 1 or face action by the state agency. The head of the Florida Air and Water Pollution Control Board left little to the imagination in his demand for action.

Speaking before the Martin County Taxpayers Association annual meeting in Stuart, Reed pointed to several large sewage plants and 53 package disposal plants, and elimination of all septic tanks, except in rural areas, as the goal of the environmental plan.

The leadership of the Council of Governments, in southern Martin County and northern Palm Beach County, in establishing the Loxahatchee Drainage Basin plan, was cited as an example of forced compliance with planning. The basin received the blessing of the Martin and Palm Beach legislative delegations in recent hearings and should become a reality in the next legislature.

Reed called for establishment of a district that would be comprised of all Martin County north of the Jonathan Dickinson State Park boundary line of COG's district to the St. Lucie County line.

He said that there should be large plants to serve Hutchinson Island, Jensen Beach, Indiantown, Palm City, Port Salerno, and Hobe Sound, set in the outline of a master sewage disposal plan for all Martin and St. Lucie Counties.

The project is expected to get 25% local funding with 25% state and 50% federal funding of the plan.

Also in the program of the Taxpayers was Al Lewis, Martin County's master planner, who outlined some of the major lines of his planning efforts.

Lewis said the master plan would be much for a status report to the March 16 meeting of the Martin County Commission. He expected completion of the plan in late summer.

The planner predicted that Martin County would have a conservative estimated population of 68,000 by 1985, and called for a statewide population distribution plan.

The meeting was conducted by Jo... Wareheim, president, and saw the election of two new directors, Don Dyal and Frank Zambo, and the reelection of Grant Chamberlain, Walter Crowe, Joe Gardner, John McQuigg, George Oliver, T.T. Oughterson, Ross Philbrick, Nat Reed, Mrs. Joseph Reed, Jack Robinson, Leonard Smith, Dawson Zaug, and Wareheim as directors.

TALKING--E.C. Wareheim, president of Martin County Taxpayers Association, talked with Martin County's master planner, Al Lewis, before the annual taxpayer meeting last Friday night in Stuart. Lewis was a featured speaker at the meeting.

W. LEWIS--He came to greet Nathaniel Reed, right, head of the Florida Department of Air and Water Pollution, and featured speaker at the annual meeting of the Martin County Taxpayers Association last week. Vice-Presidents George Estes and John McQuigg, standing, is a member of the board of the taxpayers association.

Stuart gym is site

Tigers regional playoff Friday

Stuart--Martin County High school gym will be wall-to-wall fans this Friday night as the Martin County Tigers take on Hollywood Chaminade for the regional District AA championship in the second game of the evening. The Tigers are poised for their second regional championship under Coach Dan Willey.

The big gym is being enlarged in seating capacity for the event, and extra seats are expected not to accommodate the crowds that will arrive for the super-slick Tiger show.

A pep rally at the school Friday will whip up already high enthusiasm for the championship game, which will follow the 7 p.m. District A regional playoff between Miami Curley and an undecided opponent. Riverla Suncoast had been expected to be the opponent, but problems at the school caused its being dropped from the tournament.

The Martin County basketball team's drive to prominence in state circles has come over the past four years under Bob Allen, who has found that determination and teamwork, plus hours of practice, can produce winning basketball teams.

Several all-state stars have been produced by the high school, and many have gone on to college level with hopes for starring roles.

VERY UNUSUAL--Charles Krow of 26 Pepper, Ocean Breeze Park, caught this unusual 37 1/2 pound drum last Friday while trout fishing in the Indian River. Krow caught the giant fish with a 1/0 hook and 8 lb. test line.

'We'll make it,' says UF

JB--With $8,950 in donations to the Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund already in hand, Mrs. Ransom Tilton, president, told The Mirror Tuesday, "I feel we're going to make our goal. I feel confident." This year's goal is the one-for-all, all-for-one drive is $10,000.

Special gifts are still being received and other checks are coming in, Mrs. Kathleen Spencer said. A check for $200 was received this week from Brevard Drug Stores. Mrs. Spencer is treasurer for the fund. Checks may be mailed to her in Box, Jensen Beach.

Chamber splits on United Fund

JB — The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce board of directors split on support of the Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund in action taken Monday night.

By a 5-3 vote, the Chamber agreed to donate $35 to the United Fund after being asked to donate $50 to the fund, the sum donated over past years.

Director Fred Silvers, a member of the Martin County Red Cross, asked that the Chamber donate only $35 to the Fund, and the remaining $15 to the Red Cross, since Red Cross had dropped from the United Fund this year, seeking a greater amount of money from the Jensen Beach-Rio area.

Silvers also criticized the amount of money appropriated to Red Cross last year by UF as not being the proper amount.

The United Fund served thirteen agencies last year, and has twelve in the drive this year.

Leonard Smith, Chamber vice-president, argued that since the Chamber was an organization of businessmen, and since the businessmen donate to the UF, no donation should be made, but it was pointed out that the Chamber has, as a matter of public support, donated $50 to UF for years.

Following discussion, the board agreed to donate $35 to UF and to discuss the Red Cross when the drive for that fund comes up.

Art Festival discussed

JB--The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce discussed the annual outdoor art festival held last weekend at Langford Park, and agreed the change in location this year from Rioco... was better for the artists to display their work. The park also gave more room for the public to move around, they agreed.

The directors discussed different ideas for next year's festival, including opening business across Commercial Street about six weeks in advance of the show, and trying to hold an art auction by asking each artist to donate one of his work to be auctioned.

All directors agreed that next year's art festival would need more publicity to be a success.

Question of the week

[illegible] think I-95 should go through Martin County to the east of the west of the Sunshine Parkway?

"I don't believe it makes much difference."

John Maher

"Seems to me it should be a compromise. I don't think it should be too close to Stuart."

Ed O'Keefe

"East because it is a lot more convenient for us. Ideally they should swap I-95 for the turnpike."

Dan Nott

"I think they should put I-95 where the present turnpike is and re-locate the turnpike to the west."

Will Arndt

Fireworks dinner will be March 13

JB--The fifth annual Jensen Beach Firemen's spaghetti dinner will be held Saturday, March 13 at the fire house.

Registrations will also be held starting Monday, March 8, throughout the week from 4:30 until 5:30 p.m.

The sponsors of the Jensen Beach Basketball Leagues have entered two teams to participate in the Riviera Beach Basketball Tourney. One team will be for boys of 12 years and under, and the other team will consist of boys 13 through 15.

The Jensen Beach Club would like to thank the coaches and all sponsors for making the recent Jensen Basketball program a success. Without their help 75 to 80 youngsters would not have had the opportunity to play basketball in this area.

JB--A Little League organizational meeting for the coming baseball season will be held Wednesday (tonight) March 3 at 7:30 p.m. at Langford Ball Park.

All persons interested in organizing this year's baseball program in the Jensen area are asked to attend.

Emergency blood flown to patient

Stuart--Three pints of a relatively rare blood type were flown to a patient in surgery at Martin Memorial Hospital on Friday. The blood was brought here by helicopter from Boynton Beach and West Palm Beach, according to Lucy Merritt, assistant administrator of the hospital.

"We needed more blood for a surgical patient," she told The Mirror. The hospital contacted the Martin County Sheriff's office which worked closely with the Palm Beach Sheriff's department in the emergency delivery. "It took just 24 minutes for the helicopter to make it here from its last pickup at Palm Beach Junior College," Miss Merritt said.

The hospital usually has two pints of type B-positive blood on hand, she explained. "But we needed more," Martin Memorial Hospital keeps a blood bank of 25 pints, including all types.

HI... The big, stainless steel WOK POTS with burner and enameled stand, come in... AND WE HAD TO PUT THEM ON THE HALF-PRICE SHELF! Why? Because the bottoms are scratched, and no one wants to pay full price for scratched bottoms, that's why. There are just two, NOW $9. So if you like to cook Oriental food, here's your chance to get a bargain.

It's nice, being a woman...
Today's woman lives in a world of push-button convenience and care-free electric luxury. She uses more electric power than ever. And it gives her the power to live a richer, more fulfilling life than ever. Gives her the time and energy for the things that count most — her family, her community, her personal growth. Meanwhile, she's still doing her housework. And doing it better, thanks to electric helpers, than any generation of women ever did housework before.
It's nice, being a woman...and electric living makes it even more so.

BY JAY H. MANS

The pattern of rebids changes considerably after your partner has made a new over one response, inasmuch as you are now assured of a holding of at least six points and you are in position to visualize the possibilities of game. The following guidelines are effective, in determining your rebid.

1. Two No trump, 15-18 points in high cards and stoppers in all unbid suits. 2. Three no trump, 19-21 points in high cards and stoppers in all unbid suits. 3. Simple rebid of opener's suit, 13-16 points plus a five card suit which includes two honors. 4. Jump rebid of opener's suit, 17-19 points including solid suit. 5. Bid at three level in a new suit, 17 points minimum. 6. Jump bid in a new suit, 19 points minimum (slam invitation). 7. Simple raise of responder's suit, 13-16 points and at least three cards to an honor. 8. Jump in responder's suit, 16 points minimum and four cards in a suit.

1. North: S-K 8 7; H-4 3, D-A J 4 3; C-K 5 4; North 1; D; East: P; South 1 H; West P. Rebid? 1 No trump.

2. North: S-A K J 7 4 3; H-4 3; D-A K; C-K 4 3; North: 1 Sp; East: P; South: 1 NT; West: P. Rebid? Four Spades.

3. North: S-54; H-K J 10; D-A K Q 4; C-A Q 7 6; North: 1D; East: P; South: 1 Sp; West: P. Rebid? Two no trump.

4. North: S-K 7 6; H-A K 7 4 2; D-K 4 3; C-4; North 1H; East: P; South: 1 NT; West: 2 Clubs. Rebid? Two hearts.

5. North: S-8 7; H-A Q J; D-A K Q; C-K Q 8 7 4; North: 1 Club; East: P; South: 1 Sp; West: P. Rebid? Three no trump.

6. North: S-6 4; H-K 4; D-A K 8 7 4; C-K Q 9 6; North: 1 D; East P; South: 1 Sp; West: P. Rebid? Two clubs.

Some points to remember. The first round of bidding was exploratory. On the second round you should define and clarify your holding so your partner can proceed with a maximum of information. Always bid game if you feel sure there is game for the partnership. Never go on "rescue" a partner. It usually results in disaster. A successful contract depends upon the accurate rebidding of the opening and responding bids. Never bid the same values twice.

Next week we will discuss Rebids by the Responder.

Kindergarden Happenings

By KEVIN KIRKHART

They are learning about apollo 14 and S.A.S.A. They name lots of fun acting and singing Sesame Street records.

Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Grussaukas, and Mrs. Menenger are in charge of the kindergarden. The children love to go to the library and returning their books in good condition.

Their painting turned out to be a splashing success. Tours are available to interested adults.

The Rio Civic Club will host a dessert card party this Friday, March 2 at 1 p.m. at the clubhouse. The Club holds Bingo games every Monday night at 8 p.m.

Fourth grade field trip

By MYRON GUNSALUS

On Friday, Feb. 19, 1971, the fourth grade of Jensen Beach Elementary School went on a field trip to these places. We went to the Science Museum and Flagler Museum.

In the Science Museum we saw the Math Lab where we saw number computers and you can add, subtract, multiply and divide. We also saw an adaptive anatomy where there were skulls of things. The adaptive anatomy had the skulls of these following things: the skull of a giraffe, two skulls of monkeys and of a rabbit and of many others. We saw a close circuit television where you press the button and stand in front of it and it takes pictures of you and you appear on television. You can make faces, and most of them jumped up making peace signs...ha, ha.

Next we come to the communications laboratory. We didn't see too much of the communications laboratory, but we move right along. The Planetarium is the next on our list.

The Planetarium most people think is just a room; well, it's more. It is a room but in the middle of this room in the Planetarium was a big ball with little holes in it set just right and showed us what the stars would look like that night, and they were right too. And also at the Planetarium which is the main feature of it we have other things and at night we make the sun go down and we also had a way that when we started she made the sun set...the lady who was telling us about it. And when it was time for us to go she made the sun rise, and it is nice and just like it really is, and we learned about the planets too.

Now we're going through these halls with different exhibits on them. Here are the names of the exhibits. Shark teeth now shark teeth had a baby shark in it and also had shark teeth. At the rock bottom geology we had rocks and things like that. At butterfly and moth these are the names of the exhibits...you tried to tell which ones were butterflies and which ones were moths.

The next one is the "Sky This Month". Now this was interesting. It showed the sky like it'd be this month. A Ocean of Air...I didn't see too much at that either, but it was nice because I saw the picture, Flourescence...this was very nice. This had the flourescence of the insides of a rock.

The next things is the Abyss. The Abyss is the bottom of the sea. It's sort of like you look in these holes and see things moving around.

Florida Frontiers...the sea. Well, there wasn't too much on this either. There was things on how Florida frontiered the sea.

Icicle Indians...This was very nice. It showed how the Indians where there's snow and all are Icicle Indians. Now there was one interesting thing. Where we have sunglasses they have this thing...this piece of wood with little slots to keep the snow out of their eyes. It was very nice.

The Foucault Pendulum... This was very nice. It showed us that the earth is turning, but we don't seem to. I can't remember everything on that, but anyway we'll move right along. Oh, something else on the pendulum. The pendulum swings and they have these triangles set up and about every hour or two it hits these triangles.

Now the Mastodon is a good thing. It was a baby and it went up close to the ceiling and you know how high the ceiling would be. Two boys were digging and found a bone and kept on and found almost all the bones.

The Cypress Swamp. It had a stuffed bobcat. It was very nice.

Beneath the Sea. This had fish in it too.

Now we come to the Flagler Museum. We have ridden over there and I've started to take notes on it. The whole thing is nearly all marble or at least it looks it. On the outside the pillars are made of marble and everything else on the outside looks like marble. French Salon...now this was very nice and I really did like it. Now we move right along...The Main Dining Room. This is where Mr. and Mrs. Flagler ate their big meals like dinner. In the middle of the table was a punch bowl. I can't remember exactly how much it held but it was something like ten gallons, and it weighed about fifty pounds and it was a very big and sterling silver.

Gold Chest. This was a chest made of a patterning of gold. It was very nice and it was where she kept all her jewelry and all... Mrs. Flagler did.

A Beautiful Chest. Now this was something that was hand carved. It was very wide and very beautiful.

Next china. This china was very fancy, and Mr. Flagler had so much money he bought this nice china.

The Ball Room. This is a very big room...bigger than the ordinary house. It was probably bigger than that.

Music Room and the Pipe Organ. This was Mrs. Flagler's music room, and she had this beautiful pipe organ. It is very big and they still play it. Our guide knows how to play it.

Mr. Flagler's Private Railroad Car. This is about the last on our list. The name of it was the Ramblet. This was Mr. Flagler's first private car. They had their own showers and bathrooms and it was very very nice. They had one bedroom and it was very very nice.

Ok, our bus driver today has been Mrs. Corley and our bus number is 49, and the number of kids we had on our bus was 44.

Hospital Ball March 20

...The Treasure Coast Ballroom of St. Lucie Country Club will be the setting for the annual Martin Memorial Hospital Ball on Saturday, March 20. The ballroom will be decorated by Patricia Murphy who has chosen "Starlight" for the theme.

Music will be provided by Jay McKinley and his Orchestra from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m., and a midnight breakfast will be served.

All monies from the ball and fund raising drive will be used for new parking facilities and a new elevator, according to Roland Merrell, chairman of the board of directors of the hospital.

"Anyone visiting the hospital is immediately aware of the impossible parking situation. We need two parking lots, which would cost about $25,000," Merrell said. "In the new wing we have only one elevator. A new elevator costs $30,000."

Tickets to the ball may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Rick Carroll or Mrs. Larry Buchanan, and contributions may be sent to them or to the hospital.

Fair opens

Miss Glenora Coutant is chosen 'Fair Lady'

Stuart- Seventeen-year-old Glenora Coutant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Coutant of Stuart, was crowned queen of the Martin County Fair in the annual Rotary Soroptimist Club sponsored event Monday night at the fairgrounds.

Miss Coutant has blonde hair, blue eyes, weighs 145 and is the tallest queen in the history of the fair. A student at Martin County High School, she plans to attend Stetson University upon graduation. Her hobbies are art, drawing, singing, and sailing.

Miss Coutant was selected over two other candidates, both of whom were tied in points for co-equal billing on the runners up position. They were Lynnea Norton, 18, and Nancy Scott.

In frigid weather, the pageant of the fair queen contest, the girls were interviewed by Mirror Editor Dick Campbell, master of ceremonies of the event. Four judges, Mrs. Jeanette Hamby, FL Pierce; Mrs. Helene Messer, FL Pierce; Mrs. Murial Bond, a Stuart winter visitor; and Mary Meyer, White City school teacher, took over a half hour in their judging, bringing the girls back to the platform twice before making a decision.

Has over 5,000

Mrs. Wagstaff to exhibit thirty paintings at CC

By DICK CAMPBELL

PSSL--Mickey Falkenburg Wagstaff lives quietly on Sewall's Point, turning out sprays of color on canvas, and loves every minute of it. Her works now number over 5,000, and thirty of them will be on display at St. Lucie Country Club's Great Hall dining room, beginning Friday in a one-woman show.

Mrs. Wagstaff, wife of a prominent engineer, turns out her paintings in record time, using the palette knife technique, and will produce a 48 by 24 inch painting in twenty minutes.

Sixteen years ago, Mrs. Wagstaff went by chance to an art class in Columbia, was encouraged by the instructor, and has been painting ever since. Her paintings are owned by many prominent collectors and personalities, the list reading like a who's who of the social and diplomatic register.

But her paintings are not expensive. The artist would sell a painting to a struggling art lover who liked one for little, and, according to the New York Times, sells for less than $100, and sometimes more.

They are colorful, with slashes of oils on all kinds of materials. Her flowers dominate the exhibit, streaking across the canvas in brilliant splashes of light. Their versatility in color combinations makes them easy to fit into most homes.

Mrs. Wagstaff, mother of former model-actress Jinx Falkenberg, is classed as a "primitive", because she has never taken formal art instruction, although her paintings to her credit, and a long list of rave notices in the media, she is about the most professional primitive we have ever seen.

Pat Bagwell, social director of SLCC, said Tuesday that the exhibit would be on display indefinitely.

Lentz Groves adds 20 acres

Stuart--Lentz Groves, located just north of the Martin County line on U.S. 1, added 20 acres to its holdings Tuesday with a bid of $6,050 for the advertised parcel of land located in St. Lucie County. Purchasers were James Lentz and Harry Lentz, Jr. The only other bid was from a Miami man, B. J. Kerley, for $4,221.56.

The Lentz property surrounds the 20 acres on three sides.

Question of the week

How do you feel about the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce trying to re-open the shopping center issue?

"I think the shopping center would be an asset to the area and I would like very much to see the issue re-opened."

Margaret Fulford

"I would like to see a shopping center here. We have no public transportation in the Jensen Beach area and the center is needed by many."

Lee Renton

Chris Kalb

"I think there is a dire need for a chain shopping center in Jensen Beach. If the location chosen is the only one available, then I'm for it. I do think perhaps another location would be favorable."

Herbert C. Neumann

West route

I-95 splits commission

Stuart--A vote of 3-2 on the location of I-95 split the Martin County Commission at Tuesday's meeting. Voting publicly on the issue for the first time, three commissioners went on record as favoring the western route, as proposed by the Florida Department of Transportation. In favor of the proposal were Commission Chairman William Myers, Commissioner Paul Bryant and Commissioner Elmer Powers. Commissioners Frank Wacha and William Owens voted nay.

Chairman Myers, temporarily handing the gavel to Wacha, moved that the board back the western route, supported by a spur of feeder road from Stuart to I-95. Myers explained that the spur road was suggested to him by Arnold Ramos, district engineer with the DOT in Fort Lauderdale, who said Atlanta and other cities have utilized the spur in connection with I-95.

Wacha, in defense of his proposal that the route be located west of the Turnpike, said, "I had asked for an entrance onto I-95 someplace quite a bit east of the Turnpike. I did not propose that we cross the Turnpike back and forth as quoted in a local newspaper." (Not The Mirror.) "We should urge the DOT to do something that would give us access onto I-95 closer to our populated area. They've razed the Indie Fight down the middle of Martin County, which does not help Indiantown any more than it helps Stuart area."

The Commission has an obligation, Wacha said, "The road is an interstate highway, but it is also a mass traffic type facility for the mass population of our area."

Commissioner Powers said he believe the transportation problem would be best served by the western route. Commissioner Owens repeated a previous opinion of the board that the most economical answer was to use the Turnpike as I-95 through this area.

Myers called for the polling of commissioners individually for the I-2 vote,

Post Office designation is protested

Stuart -- Commissioners unanimously agreed Tuesday that the recent decision of the post office department to label all local mail "Greater Palm Beach Area" was "ridiculous." A formal protest will be sent to Congress.

"I would consider having our Jensen Beach mail stamped "Greater Stuart Area"," Commissioner Frank Wacha said. "My wife mailed a letter in Jensen Beach. It was delivered in Jensen Beach five days later, stamped "Greater Palm Beach Area." This is ridiculous," Wacha said.

THE CHAMPS--Martin County's Lemuel Johnson (33), Curtis Blatch (11) and Curley's Tony Spernaza (33), fly for the ball at the Martin County High School gymnasium Saturday night. Martin County won the Regional 4-A championship by beating Curley 95-68 Saturday night. The Tigers will go on to the State Championship Friday night in Jacksonville.

Lake Manor News

By CORRINE DAVENPORT

Everything was peaceful and quiet at Lake Manor last week, no one in the news - until Thursday morning.

Glancing up the street as we were returning from a shopping trip, we saw a rather large crowd of spectators watching Ralph Cramer and Ed Jones trying to extricate an alligator from the pipe leading from the north end of the lake to the grassy swamp beyond.

After several unsuccessful attempts, they floated a rope through the pipe. One end was tied to a large bucket to which they had attached the cover of a garbage pail. This lowered into contraption through the manhole in the street, and with Henry Steinbergh, Virgil Lowe and probably others, pulled the alligator out.

He slithered away into the bushes but his size is a bit controversial, opinions differing from five to seven feet.

How long he had been trapped in the pipe also is a matter of conjecture. Those living nearby say they have heard him since October. In any case he appeared none the worse, doubtless feeling on full marshmallows and other food that Ed and Ralph have dropped through the grate from time to time.

Ed Jones believes this is the same alligator that was in the lake last year. He was often seen basking in the sun on the banks. However, after the back population grew, alligators became unpopular and he was removed, Anyhow, he has had plenty of time to grow to the estimated seven feet.

By Jay H. Mans

The responder is generally in a better position than the opener to visualize game possibilities or otherwise. If the responder has opening values, the eventual contract should be in game. It is not necessary to jump to game immediately, but the responder should either postpone the final bid by making a game force, or a one-round force to find the correct contract.

Two opening bids opposite each other indicate game, the second bids of both partners are always the important bids. Every time responder mentions a new suit the opener must speak again...the New Suit Forcing Principle. This is only binding on the opener.

After opener rebids, responder may with a weak hand (if opener has not made a forcing bid) 1. Pass, 2. Sign off with a suit preference bid if opener has bid two suits, 3. Bid no trump if still on the one-level. Responder may keep the bidding open if he has a strong hand by: 1. Naming a new suit (forcing for one round), 2. Making a jump bid (forcing to game if responder has not previously passed). Here are some examples.

1. North 1 Heart; East Pass; South 1 Spade; West Pass; North 2 Diamonds; East Pass, South ?

You are South with: ♠ A K 4 3, ♥ 4 3, ♦ 8 7, ♣ 9 6 4 2. Bid 2 hearts. You are not raising the level of the contract, just returning to the original suit.

2. N, 1 Heart; E, P; S, 1 Spade; W, P; N, 1 No Trump; E, P; S ?

You are South with: ♠ A K 4 3 2; ♥ 4; ♦ 8 7 6; ♣ K 9. Bid 3 Spades. Partner is now forced to game, and usually will accept your invitation to play at 4 spades or perhaps try 3 no trump.

3. N, 1 Diamond; E, P; S, 1 Heart; W, P; N, 1 Spade; E, P; S ?

You are South with: ♠ A ♥ 7 6; ♦ K 4 3; ♣ 7 6 4 2. Bid 1 no trump. You are not raising the level of the bidding. Your three points plus your partner's opening bid should play reasonably well in no trump.

4. N, 1 Spade; E, P; S, 2 Spades; W, P; N, 3 Spades; E, P; S ?

You are South with: ♠ A ♥ 7 6; ♦ K 4 3; ♣ 7 6 4 2. Bid 4 Spades. Your partner probably has about 17 points and has 3 spade bid is suggesting that if your spade raise was based on maximum rather than minimum values he wants to be in game.

5. N, 1 Diamond; E, P; S, 1 Heart; W, P; N, 1 no trump; E, P; S ?

You are South with: ♠ A ♥ 7 6; ♦ K 4 3; ♣ 7 6 4 2. Bid 3 no trump. By all means pass. You bid your all with your first bid, and now no trump seems as good a place as any to try to make seven tricks.

Next week we tackle the very interesting subject of defensive bidding.

They returned about 4:30 p.m. with their catch, telling Will Bowman, who captained the boat for the day, "This has been a ball. We'll have to plan to do this more often."

PEP BAND--Playing for the opening of the Martin County Fair was the Martin County High School pep band, led by Curtis Coulter, right. The talented students played several numbers before the flag-raising and national anthem, a sprightly beginning for the Fair.

FRY COOK--Ed Norton and Jack Bonert, both past presidents of the Martin County Fair Association, tried their hands at cooking sandwiches in the Fair-operated sandwich shop in Building B this year.

Hello...We think one of the most thoughtful ideas for a wedding gift, graduation or anniversary, is a beautiful frame for the picture taken on "that" day. It will be a treasure, and the giver remembered for a long, long time. Our selection of handsome frames, in all sizes, is one of the best to be found.
Children's plaque mats in the shape of a dog and cat ($1.25) with matching plastic drinking glass ($1) make delightfully different gifts...also in the charming Hallmark Children's boxes.
Real flowers, sealed in handblown crystal, are great housewarming and get-well gifts. They'll last for years. From $6.50 to $15.50, and don't forget our decoupage supplies, a new shipment of boxes and purses just arrived.

YMCA open house

PSL--Open house for a new $70,000 health club will be held this Sunday, March 14 from 3 until 5 p.m. The new community service building is located adjacent to the Y.M.C.A. building on the corner of Havana and 31st Street, Ft. Pierce.

Indian Riverland Y.M.C.A. services the Fort Pierce-Port St. Lucie area, and the new health club program is proving popular with the growing adult membership, according to Bruce A. Simer, health club director.

The 3,400 square feet of space in the fully carpeted, air conditioned building contain fully equipped exercise rooms, electronic reducing machines, a comfortable lounge for card games and color television, massage rooms and hydrotherapy facilities, sauna baths, whirlpool bath's, private dressing areas, locker and shower facilities and many features for members' comfort and luxury, he said.

Personal programs and memberships are available to both men and women in Port St. Lucie, and limited winter resident memberships are available, Simer said.

The public is invited to view the facilities. Interested community members are welcome for free trial visits during this month, he said.

Hostesses for open house will be the health club's ladies' gymnastics classes.

Friday Nite Gang holds Mardi Gras

PSL--A capacity crowd showed up for the Friday Nite Gang's Mardi Gras night last Friday with only one visitor present, Fred Dushane from Garwood, N.J., visiting the Roy Greenwalds.

Mr. and Mrs. W.K. Stratton, newcomers residing on Biomar Drive, and formerly from Laconia, N.H., visited the gang for the first time.

A special prize of a paint of grapfruit was won by Dorothy Fox. Eighteen other special prizes were given away during the evening's play.

The main prize of six nice steaks was won by Ed Friedman.

In all, 70 special prizes were given away, the big winners being the White's, Marie Hess, Ruth Melas, and Fran Lees.

GUEST SPEAKER--Constable James Powell was guest speaker at last week's meeting of the PSL Republican Club. Powell said that law enforcement problems have increased greatly in the past three years, due in a large part to the increased use of drugs.

YARD OF THE MONTH--The award for the Yard of the Month goes to Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Viar of 413 Oleander Avenue. The Viars will receive an inscribed silver bowl at a future meeting of the Rio Lindo Garden Club.

Joan Christman leaves St. Andrew

PSL--St. Andrew Lutheran Church has just said goodbye to Miss Joan Christman, who has been with them for the past month, setting up ongoing programs to evangelism and general church programs. Her work will serve as guides to the total planning of the church for the next two to five years.

She expects to come back here in May for a few days visit.

Local musicians rated 'superior'

GIMME A CHANCE-- "Just gimme a chance," says four-year old Jim Brewster who showed up for the PSL Little League try-outs last Saturday. Jimmy says he can catch the ball better than those big guys even with his glove on the wrong hand.

ALL TIDIED UP-- Mrs. Marion Wefner took charge of sacksacking off items from the White Elephant table at the regular monthly meeting of the Fort St. Lucie Welcome Wagon. Mrs. Wefner was assisted by Mrs. Mary Abbott.

Top Teens

Stuart -- Four Martin county high school students have been selected as "Outstanding Teenagers of America for 1971, according to Terrance C. Herrington, principal.

Pamela Ann Walker, Jacqueline Williams, Ingrid R. Hall and Hilbert Dowling were nominated by Herrington for the awards program. Each submitted an application which qualifies the students for further state and national scholarship honors.

One boy and one girl will be chosen from the state winners for the national scholarship prize of $1,000 to attend the college of their choice.

CROWDED-- The Jensen Beach Community Center was crowded throughout the day, with only one lull in the service line as almost a thousand pancake breakfasts were served by Lions in their popular event.

Passenger service requested by Wacha

Stuart--Consideration of passenger train service by Florida East Coast Railway to Martin County was suggested to County Commissioner Frank A. Wacha Tuesday at the commission meeting.

Wacha suggested writing to the Florida Public Service Commission asking that it institute proceedings to again have passenger train service through the county, but not with unanimous agreement of the board.

Wacha also included writing Ed Railway in his suggestion, saying that at one time Indiantown had a flag stop service, "Let's ask that they reinstate at least the fourteen flag stop service," he said.

County attorney William Scott will prepare a resolution to be sent to the FPSC.

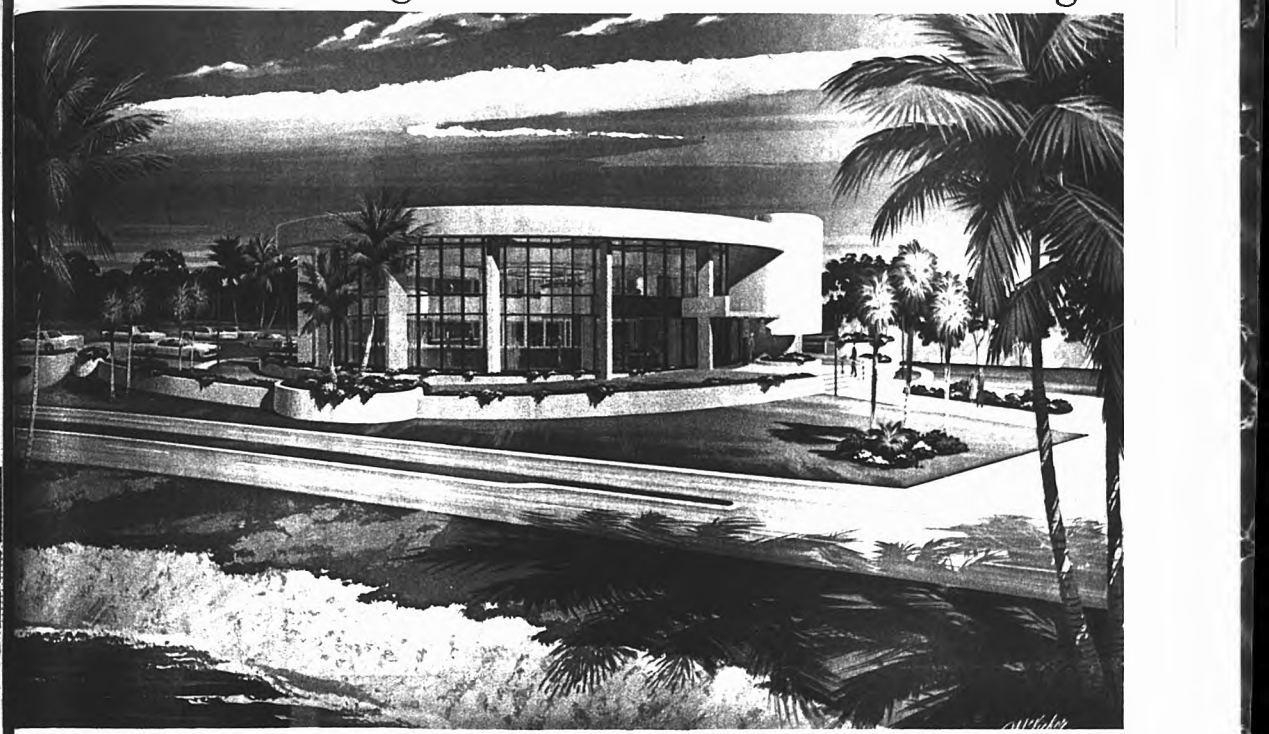
Construction begins on First Federal building



Will be show place

New First Federal building is started in Jensen Beach

JB--An ultra modern, circular building, 100 feet in diameter, is under construction in Jensen Beach on the corner of Commercial Street and SR 707 (Indian River Drive. It will be the new offices for First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Jensen Beach.

Last week, heavy earth moving equipment packed fill into place, building up the site three feet above the street level for the building, which was designed by A. Vaughn, a Fort Lauderdale architect. The contractor is Seitz Construction.

A five ton "Vibra-Roller" contracted the earth, with over 3,000 yards of fill being required, to compact the earth to a depth of twenty feet, rather than use pilings on the building. Test borings, according to construction superintendent Jack D. Murray, were made before and after the compaction to verify that the footings and slab were properly compacted before the foundation of the building was begun.

The contractor has 270 working days to complete the two-story building. It will be 31 feet high.

The entire commercial area owned by First Federal in Jensen Beach fits into the planned concept of the new building, utilizing entrances on the west side of the Freshman Building, one on the east side of the building and one midway between.

There will be 72 parking spaces for customers, all finished with asphalt and landscaped with trees and shrubbery to break the monotony of the parking lot.

The spectator area of the building will be lighted by lights recessed in the fascia of the new building above the street level, and

Starr talks on pollution

JB--Franklin Pollution Control Inc. was on the agenda, said Richard A. Starr, regional sanitary engineer for the state bureau of sanitary engineering, in a speech to the Jensen Beach Kiwanis club Monday.

Starr said that developments on Hutchinson Island are being required to keep the effluent from their sewage treatment plants right on the land, and are not allowed to dump the effluent into the Indian River.

He cited the method as the "ideal solution" to the problem of agricultural pollution of the rivers, and talked about the rodding lagoons as being ideal for more acid citrus pollution.

Starr followed the development of sewage treatment over the years, from the "spit privetes" of the 1920's, through septic tanks of the 1930-1940 period, and to the sewage treatment plants being developed now.

He was critical of the small treatment plants, saying they did not receive the kind of service they needed to operate efficiently, and the lack of inspection of them due to their number.

The engineer clarified his role in the county health plan, saying he was an advisor to the local health authority, not its "boss," adding that the local health authority was under a different department of health services than his agency. He also said he was responsible for inspection and approval of sewage plant applications in the six county area he serves.

Starr also talked about phosphate pollution, saying he knows of no plans to outlaw phosphates from soaps because "we don't know what will replace them."

Laundry pipe passes

Septic tank dumped raw sewage in Indian River

GREAT IN REACH--This photograph, taken in November, 1970, by a Mirror photographer, shows the spread of the pollution from a septic tank effluent spreading out from the entry pipe at the beach at the foot of Commercial Street. There is no estimate of the degree of pollution in the ditch flowing to the beach has been an outlet to the river for years.

Jensen Beach Mirror

In 1970, the Tri-County Health Department announced that it had closed off all sources of pollution of the Indian River. As W.B. Richards, director of sanitation for the Martin County unit, told this to the Martin County Commission, a tiny trickle of water flowed from a grease trap and a septic tank through the fill alongside the Jensen Beach Gulf Station, and made a small ditch, running to the Indian River, in direct violations of state health rule 10D-6.07-6.

On Wednesday, March 10, 1971, Paul C. Kloser, sanitarian engineer with the Florida Department of Air and Water Pollution, dropped a pink dye into the grease trap and toilet of Bryan's Pharmacy, An hour later, the small ditch, a foot wide, with a continuous stream of water flowing down to the river, was pink from the dye.

Gray fluffy, bleeding raw sewage effluent, considered a menace to health, suddenly flooded the side of the fill alongside the ditch.

Straight from the ditch, over the raw sewage effluent, a white plastic pipe carried the treated sewage of the small laundry on the opposite end of the shopping center building across SR 707. The white plastic pipe of already treated sewage-free detergent foam had indeed as it jammed out of the pipe.

The Martin County Health Department ordered the white pipe to be removed after inspecting the area," said Hardy Tilton, owner of the pioneer Jensen Beach family that runs the shopping center. "I don't know then tell us to do."

The Tiltons now still are required that they were planning to install a sewage treatment plant for the entire area bounded by Commercial Street, SR 707, Ricou Boulevard, and Palmetto Avenue, or just about the entire Jensen Beach commercial district. The engineering on the plant is now being completed.

The white pipe carries what is considered industrial waste, fall in the area of health department enforcement, into the Indian River. The treated detergent waste water comes from a treatment plant approved by the general treatment Dade Start in 1970.

The treatment plant includes septic settling tanks and an aerator. Porous rock in the original installation was replaced with non-porous rock after there a few years ago, again with the approval of state. The Tiltons have to fit tank in their-particular premises that when a public sewage treatment plant is installed the laundry must be hooked up to the plant.

The missing part of the pipe installation is that the pipe passes the steadily flowing grease trap and septic tank's untreated wastes, spilling out of the side of the fill area. Health Department inspectors asked Tilton to install the pipe and ignored the raw sewage seepage into the river.

The seepage has been going on for a long time, Photographs taken in The Mirror on November 20, 1970, indicated matted grasses in obvious pools of the effluent leading to the beach, and a fan of pollution on the Indian River bank, staining the beach from the stream-point of entry.

Since that time the ditch has been cleaned out, and the flow from the laundry and the septic tank has created an eroded ditch that carries the effluent to the river.

Ransom Tilton, second generation of the pioneer family, told The Mirror that the owners planned to meet every letter of the health laws. Faced now with evidence of pollution he did not know existed, Tilton plans a drain field installation and repairs to the septic tank to properly treat the sewage flow from his business places along the state road until the central sewage treatment plant can be installed.

The air and water pollution engineer said, following the dye test, that he reported the violation to Glenn Bryan, operator of Bryan's Drug.

"I will have to write a letter to the health department notifying them of the violation. The dye test is positive proof of pollution by the drug store," according to Kloser. Bryan has the greater frag cleaned every month by Cooke Septic Tank Service.

"But who knows how many others are tied into that system? It might include all the stores along the road," Kloser added.

An interim installation of a drain field for the ineffective septic tank would have to be according to the law. The septic tank is installed in a fill composed of rock, marl, fill-dirt and clay, a condition of septic tank failure.

However, under health department inspection Friday, the septic tank and the drain field were under repair by Cooke Septic Tank.

On Thursday, red dye was put into the system of a local beauty parlor in the shopping center. The beauty immediately appeared in the effluent stream going into the river, indicating no treatment in the septic tank.

A.B. Richards, environmental health director for the tri-county health department, told The Miami Herald that he had been aware of the seepage for two weeks.

But, the day after the red dye had been passed into the system, by the air and water pollution employee, Richards was on the scene, directing operations.

CORRECTS FLOW--The day after a report of a red dye test indicating pollution of the Indian River by a leaking septic tank, Tilton, Inc. had repairs under way to correct the problem. A new drain field was installed, and lines across SR 707 were checked by Martin County Health Department officials.

Mans on bridge

By JAY MANS

Although there are a number of facets positive bidding yet to be explored, this is the time to switch to some of Defensive Bidding. Every player must possess a full understanding of how and when to use defensive tools, such as simple and strength overcalls, take-out doubles, cue bids, penalty doubles, preemptive bids, reckonless over adversaries' doubles, and others. A simple definition of the word overcall is in order. Overcalls are competitive bids made after the opponents have opened the action.

Major reasons for overcalls: There should be a sound purpose behind your overcalls. The proper use of overcalls will mark the difference between winning and losing bridge, for you.

1. To indicate a good lead to partner, possibly with little expectation of securing the contract.

2. You may be able to out-bid opponents for part score, or with a very strong hand, you may be able to out-bid them for game, or you may, if they overbid, penalize their with a penalty double.

3. You may at times have a certain amount of 'nuisance' or 'barrier' value by depriving opponents of cheap bidding room or bid-them-again-pectancy if your overcalls are in the right suits.

4. Convey to your partner that you have a strong hand (strength overcall).

It is often difficult for amateurs to determine when a strength overcall should be made. Vulnerability status is an important factor to consider, as well as part score. The following rules should be helpful.

1. Do not use point count valuation for simple overcalls. Consider whether you have a good suit and how many tricks you will be able to take.

2. Never overcall with a four card suit of a weak five card suit, but rather with suits of good quality of at least five cards.

3. Overcall suits should generally contain no more than two losers, if they are simple. Such as if it is a K Q x x x, a K Q J x x, or a A K x x x, a good enough to overcall on the seconds over either a spade or heart.

But if it is a K Q J x x, Jack is the queen, in the spade especially if not vul.

Then of course we have the three types of jump overcalls, with those more than it necessarily. First we have the strong jump overcalls, made with hands containing 18 or more points and a good suit. This one would not be forcing unless partner bids beyond game or eight points. Let me say, however, that this type jump of overcall is seldom used to better players, so you may disclude it from your considerations. Then we come to the preemptive jump overcalls and the intermediate jump overcalls, both of which have value and will be discussed in detail later in our series. Important: Both partners should be in agreement as to which type of jump overcall they are using, otherwise, frustrating situations may develop. Next issue, we will explore strength overcalls such as the take-out double.

Churchmen join for fellowship

JB--The Jensen Beach Community Church men's fellowship group has invited all members of the men's fellowship organizations to a dinner meeting Friday night at 6 p.m. at the church on Skyline Drive.

JB--For three weeks Mr. and Mrs. J. Ernest Baker of Skyline Drive have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Baker of Hurffville, N.J. The Bakers are brothers.

In addition to enjoying the local area, the group drove to Lake Wales and saw the Passion Play, visited Disney World near Orlando and toured Hillsboro State Park.

The visiting Baker recently retired from DuPont's in Gibbstown, N.J. They left for the north on Tuesday.

Included in the churches are Jensen Beach Baptist, Trinity United Methodist, and the Christian Church. Also, members of the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club have been invited to the dinner, according to Ham Wade, chairman of the organization.

port elected to the board of Charber Directors beckering, has been nominated to the presidency of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. The election will be Monday night at 7:30 in the Langford Park Field House.

In a report by a [illegible] committee, Deci headed a slate that would virtually change the entire board, with few exceptions, under the revised constitution by-laws that require all directors to be elected each year.

The nominating committee named John Heyburn, vice president, Mrs. Adda Dailey, secretary, and Richard Neesse, treasurer. Directors nominated were Jon Chickey, Mrs. Faye Gaye, Hamilton Wade, Walter Woodrich, Mrs. Eva Caulder, and Richard Campbell. On the nominating committee were Mrs. Caulder, chairman, Leonard Smith, and Don Wilkie.

Nominations can be made from the floor at the meeting of the membership. Wilkie, the outgoing president, automatically becomes a member of the board.

Deci is a Grumman Aircraft employee, Heyburn is retired and active in conservation work, Mrs. Dailey is assistant cashier at Bank of Stuart, and Neesse is a tax accountant with John Lynch.

Jon Chickey is a Pratt-Whitney Aircraft engineer, Mrs. Gaye, Mrs. Caulder and Woodrich operate motels and apartments, Wade is retired, and Campbell is editor of The Mirror, Wilkie is a landscape foreman with General Development.

ROUND AND ROUND--Stephen and Stanley Liss, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Liss, of Myrtle Ave., Jensen Beach, find the playground at Langford Park an ideal place to do their thing. Anyone wondering if the people who donate to the Jensen Lions are getting their money's worth in the park can just look at the faces of the twins, two of many who use the park attractions for recreation.

Erosion protection

Seawalls set on causeway will bulkhead north side

JB--County fill held down erosion during the months of the northeast winds that have torn away yards of the Jensen Beach Causeway and Charles Smith Seawalls is now completing the installation of 275 feet of seawall that will permanently protect the north shore of that area against erosion.

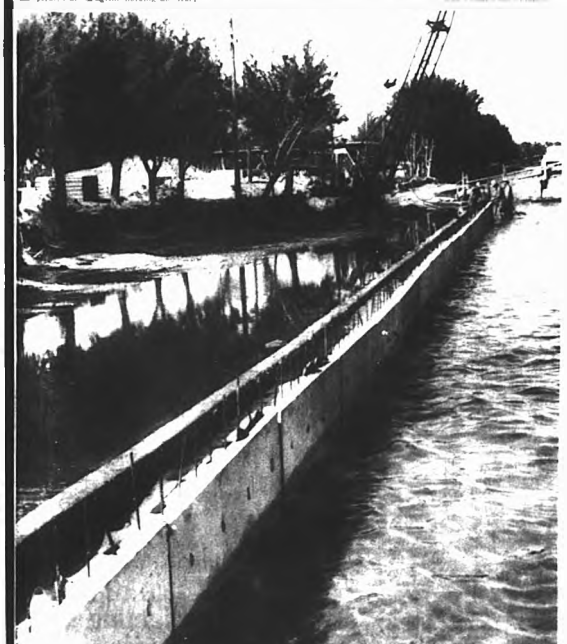
The measure was emergency in nature, and the commission followed emergency procedure in awarding the contract to Smith for $4,950 so that the causeway could be protected.

Smith said Tuesday that he expected to have the bulkhead in and capped by Friday of this week. His workmen are installing 34 slabs that 8' by 6' 6". The original specifications of the seawall called for six foot slabs, but forms already existing were used, enlarging the depth of the slabs.

Following the installation of the slabs the county will backfill, according to Smith.

The County Commission approved emergency action on January 12 when Commissioner Frank Wacha, using photos taken by The Mirror for use in a feature story on causeway erosion that week, asked that the destruction of the causeway be averted with bulkheading.

Over thirty feet of shoreline had washed into the Indian River from the north shore. Trees were dying and awash in the tides. The county approved the bulkhead, west from the boat ramps to a point 25 feet west of the fishing pier.



LINE OF CONCRETE--Work is progressing on the Jenser Beach Causeway bulkhead, with the project on the north side of the causeway expected to be completed by Friday. A dragline picks up the concrete forms and moves them into place so that workmen can wash them down into the bulkhead hole. Water pressure is used to clear the hole in the causeway for the slabs.

Health law enforcement?

Kiwanis to host ladies

JB--The first ladies night of the year for the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club will be held next Wednesday night, March 31, at the Crow's Nest in Rio, according to Bob Smith, president.

Smith said that reservations could be made from the club secretary, or from Ralph Norkin, chairman of the event.

Hamilton Wade, one of the organizers of the local club, received a long awaited perfect attendance pin denoting 23 years of attendance without missing a meeting of the club. Wade is the religious activities chairman of the club, its visitation chairman and is active in other areas.

Question of the week

What do you think of the raw sewage being dumped into the Indian River one year after the health department announced all sources of pollution had been closed off?

"I think it is a crime to empty anything into the river. There should be an ordinance to stop it...and it should be strictly enforced."

Bob Robinson, Jensen Beach

"It should never have been dumped in the river to begin with, regardless of the health department. The person who did the job in the first place knew it was wrong."

Truman Brown, Rio

"Looks to me like someone should have discovered it a long time ago. Between the raw sewage being emptied into our rivers, combined with the operation of the Locks, naturally our fishing in the area has been ruined."

Morgan West, Jensen Beach

"I haven't much to say about it. However, I do feel it points to definite negligence on the part of the health department."

1970---No problems

Health Department denied Jupiter Island pollution

(Editor's Note: This is the complete story of the failure of the Tri-County Health Department's investigation of violations and enforcement of health laws, pertaining to a source of pollution that properly owners desired to be corrected. The health department notified the Jupiter Island owners that no health problem existed, and one year later found 54 outfall pipes of potential pollution.)

By DICK CAMPBELL
Copyright, 1971,
The Jensen Beach Mirror

Property owners in Jupiter Island are wealthy, protective and desirous of privacy in their domain. Their homes are comfortable, mostly designed for winter season living, on large acreage lots.

There is no sewage plant on Jupiter Island. Instead, due to the few homes that exist on large estates. The outfall from the septic tank that serves the Jupiter Island Club, meeting place of the residents, goes into the Atlantic Ocean.

The need is especially careful about its public image, and the word "pollution" is a fearsome word to them, for one of the owners of the land, and a member of the family that developed the island resort community, is Nathaniel Reed, a millionaire dollar-a-year man who has served under Governor Claude Kirk and now under Governor Reubin Askew.

Reed heads the powerful, and politically important Florida Department of Air and Water Pollution, in a high ranking conservationist, and has brought enforcement to the state laws on air and water pollution. Today, Reed ranks as one of the most popular men in the state among conservationists.

Concern for operations under the law, and fear of potential pollution violations from island homes brought Town Manager Col. Dusty Rhodes to the Tri-County Health Department in January, 1970. He asked for a survey of the island to see if there was any pollution problem.

According to Gordon Lamond, major the health department conducted a survey of the island between January 7 and January 23, 1970. "The tests show if any contamination could be detected, and if detected, traced to its source" so that corrective action could be taken.

"The report given our town manager was that no problem areas could be located and that all past known areas had been corrected," Lamond wrote to the Martin County Commission on January 28, 1971.

In his letter, Lamond asked that the county commission direct the county health department to make another survey and provide the town with a written report of its findings.

Again the health department conducted and on February 25, 1971, the health department reported "no lines discharging domestic waste into Hobe Sound. The report did not mention the clubhouse swimming pool outfall into the ocean.

W. B. Richards, director of the Division of Environmental Health and head of the Tri-County Health unit, wrote, "It is our understanding (it) will contact the owners and request that appropriate corrective action be taken to eliminate the existing sanitary nuisances and water pollution."

Richards set no date for compliance, and asked the town mayor to notify him when corrections have been completed. "so that we may bring our files up to date."

Rhodes took immediate steps to eliminate the sources of pollution, but was upset that the town had operated for a year under the impression that it was in compliance with all health regulations.

The health department's failure to find the many lines of potential pollution in the 1970 survey came under fire from Martin County Commissioner Robert Brackett during commission debate on the proposed Loxahatchee Environmental District bill on February 23.

Wacha stated that the health department statement of conditions was "grossly false." He criticized the health department for conducting a survey of the town "without adequate knowledge", and for not telling the inhabitants.

"We feel that if the health department if they are now coming here and saying this (Jupiter Island) is not a pollutant, when, at a previous session, the board learned that there were several violations corrected," Wacha said.

He also was critical of the "hunt and destroy" methods of the health department, rather than citing violations as they are found, with fines given for compliance with the law. He said, "This going from pipe to pipe is ridiculous..."

Dr. William G. Myers, chairman of the county commission, and a resident of Jupiter Island, said he had smelled, found and closed an outfall line on his property when he moved into his home.

Myers was also critical of the health department, saying, "The health department gave their (Jupiter Island residents) a clean bill of health and lulled them into a sense of security." Myers called the problem of pollution a problem of the health department, not of the islanders.

The bureaucratic design of the health department system, wherein the Tri-County Health Department is responsible to and directly under the state board of health, but not responsible to Mr. Richard Starr, regional engineer for the state health department bureau of sanitary engineering, was shown in the fact that Starr knew nothing of the survey of the local health boards, and told county commissioners "...unless they choose to send me a copy of it, I have no knowledge of it."

To this Myers disagreed, saying Starr had a copy of the request for a survey, but Starr again denied knowledge of the survey.

Jupiter Island thus has become part of the pollution problem, rather than part of its cure. Services, not through noncompliance with the law, but through the lack of proper inspection and detection by the Tri-County Health Department, Inland residents find themselves being criticized for an offense that they were assured did not exist.

Wacha, who had personally made the Hobe Sound inspection for outfall lines along the west bank of Jupiter Island, said, "After I made my survey, (waterfront) they said they had been working on it for a week before I made my trip, two weeks before the hearing."

There is no public explanation of the two reports by the health department, one citing no violations of pollution laws and another a year later citing many potential violations. Nor was an explanation offered by Richards, head of the (Tri-county) unit, (Us), when questioned by the county commission would Richards answer any questions about health department activities.

MARGUERITE RITENOUR

Mrs. Vera M. (Bess) Whitner passed away at Martin Memorial Hospital Tuesday, March 16. Bess was well known and loved in our park and her passing will leave a vacancy that will be felt for a long time. In her memory our hobby meeting was opened with a minute of silent prayer. Tuesday afternoon Tuesday's night bingo game was cancelled. Our sincere sympathy goes to her daughter, Elizabeth, and her two sons, Fayne and Robert.

Mrs. Helen Jonhston, accompanied by her guests, Mabel Boorman, Gerda Larson, and Ruth Wagner, visited with friends and did some sightseeing on the West Coast last week.

Our Hobby meeting was well attended on Tuesday afternoon. We had visitors from Ocean Breeze Park, Palm Circle Cottages, and Jensen Beach. It was a very informative afternoon. New ideas were exchanged between the local folks and the visitors and we hope our visitors enjoyed their visit with us. We were pleased to have them.

On Wednesday, March 17, outstanding honors went to Grace Stetser. She won all three of her games in the Round Robin. Other winners were: Nettie Keefer, two; John Stetser, two; Esther Gentry, two; Andy Gentry, two; and Bud Keefer, one.

Pictures and lecture on Florida and our environment by Phil Thibedeau of Indian River Community College will be presented March 24 (tonight) at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Cline Graybill of New Port Richie called on the Lowell Fosters one day last week.

Mrs. Conrad Dahl of Saskatchewan and Rio Trailer Court visited with the Herschel Ritenours last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Fordham of Port St. Lucie visited with Herbert and Thelma Jones one day recently.

Joe Penfred and Herbert Jones do a good job on Tuesday evenings taking charge of our bingo. Joe's ready wit keeps us happy and when he is quiet Herb urges him on with a choice bit of gossip about someone in the audience. A great big thanks goes from all of us to these two fellows for making our Tuesday evenings very enjoyable.

Mrs. Alma Kramer left for home in Duncan Falls, Ohio on Saturday to drive her son's car home for him. He had broken his arm while working in Jacksonville and couldn't drive so far alone. Alma will fly back here soon.

Lake Manor News

BY CORRINE DAVENPORT

First Aid courses have been held at the clubhouse for the past ten weeks.

Instruction was given by Charles F. Sipos, R.N., supervisor of nursing for Pratt-Whitney.

Awards were given on Monday evening by Brian Erle Tredray, B.E.M., Deputy Director of Martin County Civil Defense. Tredray, after congratulating those who had attended all sessions and passed the tests, presented certificates to the following: Marge Combs, Doris Tucker, Henry Steinborn, Frank and Agnes Meisse, Ethel and Clair Brewer, Jennie and John Bollenbocher, Bernadette and Ken Dubuque, Ann and John Orefice, and Jerry Goeman.

Several people who were unable to attend all sessions will be given the opportunity to make them up in the fall and will then be eligible for certificates.

It was suggested by Tredray that anyone in need of first aid contact only these people who have been trained and certified.

Refreshments were served and a vote of thanks was ed and a vote of thanks extended to Sipos and Tredray.

Luncheon guests last Wed- Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vek and Mr. and Mrs. J. Calley of Ft. Lauderdale.

Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Manherr and Mrs. Alma Jackson returned from Key West and are extending their winter vacation in Peggy Somer's home for some time. They are all former neighbors and friends in Waterbury, Conn.

Freda and Stanley Wilmot of North Lake Drive are also Waterbury residents and will join in entertaining these friends from the north.

Dr. and Mrs. Gene F. Rose of Cleveland, Ohio, are spending a week with Ethel and Clair Brewer.

The weekly Lake Manor Shuffle Club Round Robin was played on Monday afternoon, March 15.

Agnes Meisse and Clair Brewer were first-place winners. Second place winners were Frank Meisse, Jack Bell, and Ray Fish. The competition was enjoyed by all.

About 80 attended the March potluck dinner on the 17th. As usual, the food was delicious and more than plentiful.

The committee, consisting of Helen Beaver, Elma French, Jennie Bollenbecher, June Marsh and Lee Olson, worked many hours to create a gay St. Patrick's Day atmosphere. Yellow and white mums were donated by Ralph Cramer. Bright green streamers and shamrocks decorated the white covered tables.

Following the dinner, Ed Jones introduced visiting guests and four new Lake Manor residents, Art and Roy Fish, and Sylvia and Charles Sloan.

He also announced the gift of a beautiful copper coffee urn, given by our newlyweds, Norma and Herbert Vreeland.

All of us extend sincere thanks to the Vreelands for this very thoughtful and useful gift and we hope they will visit us often, even though they will be living at Spanish Lakes.

Fern and Ed Hill have returned to their home here until the middle of April. We hope that each winter they may find it possible to stay much longer until they become full-time residents.

We are sorry that the Anscombes have left us but welcome in their places, Sylvia and Charles Sloan, who have purchased the Anscombe's mobile.

Residents of Harvard, Ill., the Sloans are parents of two daughters and a son.

Lake Manor was recommended to them by a friend and they are very happy to have found a home right on the beautiful little lake.

Susie and Dale Butler have returned home after a brief visit to the West Coast.

Now that the clubhouse is no longer being used on Monday nights for first aid courses, card playing will be resumed at 7:30 p.m.

Our sympathy to June Marsh, who fell and sprained her ankle last week, to Agnes Meisse, whose fall resulted in several painful bruises and to Lee Olson, who has to spend some time with her feet elevated. We wish them all a speedy recovery.

FREE X-RAY--Jensen Beach residents responded to the annual chest X-Ray service given by the mobile Martin County X-Ray Survey last Tuesday. The last day will be Thursday, March 25, at Ocean Breeze Park office from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., and at the Rio Civic Club from 3 to 6 p.m.

Rod Aderholdts welcome daughter

JB--Just about the happiest people in Jensen Beach are the Rod Aderholdts of Melba Drive.

Little Charlene Mildred Aderholdt arrived Thursday to live with Rod and Betty and brother Daryl. The baby is five weeks old and now weighs seven pounds, seven ounces.

Five-year old Daryl wants to talk to his new little sister all the time, Mrs. Aderholdt told The Mirror.

"I explained he would have to wait for her to grow up before she could talk and play with him," she said. But Daryl wants her to stay "small", he told his mother.

Ian McHarg speaks

Planner's seminar will be held Friday at SLCC

PSL — Ian McHarg, planning consult and planning author from Philadelphia, will hold a seminar Friday [illegible] at the St. Lucie County Convention Hall. Advance Registration is requested, according to Mrs. John W. Hussey, president of the Martin County Audubon society, which is sponsoring the event.

McHarg, 50, will also be guest speaker at a dinner on Friday at the St. Lucie Hilton. Nathaniel P. Reed, chairman of the Florida Air and Water Pollution Control Board, will be master of ceremonies.

Friday has been named "Survival Day" by Martin County Commissioners, in honor of McHarg's visit.

His studies include I-95 route selection study in Princeton, N.J., and the Richmond Parkway study, plus others involving transportation. He is noted for his analysis of the value and beauty of the earth, then developing growth pattern plans to preserve both. He is the author of a book, "Design with Nature."

There is no charge for the seminar, which has been described as informal and enlightening. Planners from Dade and Broward Counties, Indian River, Lakeland, and General Development Counties are expected to attend, as is Arnold Ramos, district engineer, Department of Transportation, Fort Lauderdale.

McHarg will be the house guest of Peter Jefferson, local architect.

Drought in South Florida

JB—A six-month drought which has plagued Central and South Florida's precious water supply has also brought on navigation restrictions on the Okeechobee Waterway, according to a news release from the Army Corps of Engineers.

Army Engineers in Jacksonville announced this week that the water level in Lake Okeechobee has declined 2.6 feet below normal for this time of year and has resulted in less than an eight-foot deep channel across the lake which forms a part of the 150-mile long Okeechobee Waterway. An eight-foot deep channel in Lake Okeechobee is based on a water level of 12.56 feet above mean sea level.

Currently the water level in Lake Okeechobee is 11.25 feet or only a fraction of a foot below stage to provide an eight-foot deep channel.

However, Army engineers hydrologists expect the water level in Lake Okeechobee to drop another foot and a half before, hopefully, the rainy season begins.

Squeaky wheel?

Beau Rivage East considers sewers

By RUTH BOWMAN

JB L...Concerned with ...ure water and sewage ...problems, members of Beau ...ivage East Association met ...Friday night with William ...Hoschar, acting regional en... for southeast Florida, ...m the Department of Air ...d Water Pollution Control. ...The meeting followed a cov... ...ered dish supper at Jensen ...Beach Community Center. ...Where all contributing to ...pollution" Member said, ...pollution probably started ...with Adam and Eve when ...they threw away the apple ...core."

Martin County has a water ...table of only 30 inches or ...less, according to soil maps, ...Hoschar told the 35 persons assembled. This is unsuited for septic tanks, he said. A water table of 60 inches is the wettest part of the year is required.

There are 56 sewage treatment plants in Martin County, including the City of Stuart, he said, and a number of package plants.

"I think the time has come for areas to get together and come up with a sanitary district whereby they have a treatment plant and collection system to take care of this area, rather than have individual plants scattered around," Menoher said.

"It's going to cost a lot of money," he warned, "The people are going to have to want it or you'll never have it."

"Can it be done? Yes," he said. He told of a sanitary district being formed in the Jupiter Tequesta area by its own COG, Council of Government. "This is what is needed here," he said. A well operated sewage treatment plant will give about 90% effective treatment.

Steps for establishment of a sewage system would include having a professional study made first, and integrate the study with any county planning. He suggested that a sanitary survey be made, gathering requirements for fresh, clean drinking water and for sewers in the community.

"Perhaps you could think about a water treatment plant, rather than a central sewage system at present," he said. "The water treatment plant is generally cheaper and operation is easier." He said state assistance was a possibility and offered to obtain the name of a representative to be contacted in Tallahassee by John Marr, Beau Rivage East Association president.

Other suggestions included making their position known to the press, contacting legislators, the county commission, bureau of sanitary engineers. "Remember, it's the squeaky wheel that gets the grease," he said.

Member promised to take samples of drinking water from three houses at the east, middle and west ends of the street, process the samples in his Fort Pierce headquarters and report to the Association. Learning that many of the residents drew water from the Jensen Beach Causeway spigots for home use, he promised to include such samples in his processing and report. The bacterial process will determine the quality of the drinking water, he said.

"Some water is potable, some palatable," he said, explaining each. The potability and palatability are not necessarily reversible.

"What if we're drinking bad water?" a member asked.

"It can't be too bad or by now someone would probably have had typhoid, infectious hepatitis or diphtheria," Member concluded.

JB--Dave Deci and John Bertram were elected president and vice-president of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting of the membership Monday night in a unanimous acceptance of the slate of officers and directors presented by the nominating committee.

Deci, who headed the forms of government study the past year, and Bertram, who, as chairman of the beaches committee, urged progressive steps in the planning of public facilities in a vigorous year-long program, will take office at the annual installation banquet next month.

Jim Wilkie, retiring president, invited all officers and directors to the meeting of the board next Monday night to familiarize themselves with Chamber procedures.

Elected new directors were Jim Cuicky, Hamilton Cole and Walter Woodrich. Selected directors were Jim Coulter, Faye Gay and Richard Campbell. Wilda Dailey was elected recording secretary, and Richard Nesser was elected treasurer. Dale Wilkie will fill out the seven member board as past president.

Following the election, members of the Chamber in an annual session of ideas on projects and complaints on services in the area, named the garbage collection problems of the county.

Chamber manager John Power complained that he had been unable to obtain a set of 55-gallon garbage

He said that the ...y has had better police protection in the past six months and praised the personal involvement in the community of Mike Gulvin, a new deputy.

Deci reported for the forms of government committee that "everyone knows that the committee issued a report that was accepted by the Chamber board of directors, but the directors couldn't agree on the form of it to release to the public."

Power reported that the Chamber had 2,984 visitors at the office in 1970, and has distributed 20,600 resort guides. He said membership at this point was 110 to date for 1971, compared with 91 for the same three month period last year.

Twenty-five members attended the meeting at Langford Park field house.

Acacia Chapter installs Sunday

Stuart--Acacia Chapter of DeMolay will have installation of officers on Sunday, April 4 at 2 p.m. The ceremonies will be at Masonic Temple, Stuart.

All Masons, Eastern Star, Rainbows and friends are invited to attend.

Constitutional

SODA told to work with Sheriff

Stuart--Officials of SODA, a local group dedicated to fighting drug abuse in the county, were told to meet with, talk with and cooperate with Sheriff Roy Baker, as the county commission Tuesday sent a request for help from SODA to a public safety committee and asked for a report at the April 13 meeting.

In a strained atmosphere, Bobby Lord, president of SODA, was told by Commissioner Frank Wachs that Baker is the "constitutional officer in charge of law enforcement in Martin County". Wachs criticized SODA for not working with the Sheriff's Department, and said, "(Baker) is in his office 24 hours a day...I would not like to have the person I am going to ask for help read about it in the newspaper. "If your committee had met with the sheriff you might have found him cooperative," Wachs added.

Lord explained that SODA (Stamp Out Drug Abuse) was a non-political, non-profit organization that has set aside $5,000 for law enforcement. He called present drug enforcement in the law "ineffective". He asked for a concentrated effort by the county, city and school administration to hire special investigators to make an effort to fight drug traffic in the county.

Wachs asked about the study being made to a state department of drug abuse, and Lord said that the study was under way, but that "We do not need a survey to establish that there is a problem in this county."

"We want to stop the pushers and make it so that they don't want to come here," Lord said.

Wachs went through the list of arrests and lack of convictions in the county in drug abuse cases, and said, "I don't believe there is any room for competition in law enforcement," he asked for results of the survey before taking action.

Lord again asked if the group could appeal to the county when the report was ready, but he said he didn't feel that the SODA members should come back until they had met with the sheriff.

Wachs again and again referred to the sheriff as the constitutional law enforcement head of Martin County, telling Lord that SODA had to meet with and work with Baker, rather than Baker having to come to SODA.

Stuart investigator Bob Crowder said that the group was trying to help law enforcement by adding to the endorsement. He pointed to the departments of law enforcement being "frustrated by lack of money and manpower".

Wachs read a letter from Baker, written August 24, 1970, asking for funding of a special investigator, and mentioned that the county had taken no action on it.

Baker then appeared before the commission. He said he "didn't get off" on the formation of SODA, and had just directed traffic for a fund raising golf tournament held by the group. He complained of the lack of men to do his job, said St. Lucie County had a budget $200,000 more than his and four more investigators than he had.

He mentioned that he had just put his staff on eight-hour shifts, adding that he himself would be calling some of them shifts at no increase in pay.

Baker said he thought that SODA had just intended to be an educational group, "to inform the public and be an information service." He said if he had "more men" it would be enough to handle the drug problem in the county.

Commissioner Tiney Powers asked Baker for recommendations, and the sheriff said, "I welcome any help I can get. If I can get the men I can do the job."

County Commissioner Chairman Bill Myers described himself as "wearing the hats" as a member of the commission and a member of SODA, and told Lord that SODA had not said anything to "criticize you".

The entire matter was turned over to the public safety committee of Wachs and Paul Bryant, asking for a report on April 13.

In other actions, the commission

NAMED the Palm City bridge the Palm City bridge by resolution to the state legislature,

TABLED action on a request for help from the Pioneer Occupational Center until the budget of the group was reviewed,

PASSED a resolution of concern for prisoners of war, and authorized to send the resolution to the Paris Peace Talks.

Emergency action

Causeway seawall cap halted

Stuart -- Construction of the seawall designed as emergency protection of the Jensen Beach Causeway has been halted by the state, it was learned Monday. Thesday, at the meeting of the county commission, Commissioner Frank Wachs asked for quick action in getting a resolution to the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund for action on April 13.

Wachs got his action, along with permission to travel with the county attorney and county engineer to make a presentation in Tallahassee on that meeting date.

The resolution spells out the danger to the causeway in erosion, uses photographs provided by The Mirror in the original request for emergency bulkhead, and requests permission to place the bulkhead where it has already been constructed.

Workmen for Charles Smith Seawall were stopped from tying the bulkhead into the causeway and putting on the protective cap due to some items missed by the county in emergency approval of the bulkheading.

Wachs also asked for a building permit to be issued by the county to the county to do the work so that the state would know that a building permit is on hand. He also asked that a complete bulkhead line, and engineering plan be taken to Tallahassee for the entire causeway as part of the project, with estimates of costs, so that public hearings can be held on the entire project.

Much of the causeway has washed away due to the tidal action of the Dollar River, and as much as 30 feet of shoreline has disappeared into the river, killing trees and undermining county structures on the causeway.

County officials are rushing the action to prevent deterioration of the work already completed. Slabs are set four feet into the causeway, with two feet of slab above the ground.

Question of the week

What do you think of the union picketers halting construction on the new First Federal building here in Jensen Beach?

"I don't think it is right. There are too many people needing work. I feel it is better to have some wages rather than none at all. The first time can never be made up."

Clara Jerome

"The correct way for union members to solicit membership is not by intimidating the contractors by picketing. They should solicit through a membership drive."

Frank Steel

"Evidently the union labor is not as productive for the dollar of wages expended as the non-union labor, therefore the contractor finds it more economical to use non-union labor. This will continue until union labor is more productive and willing to give a dollar's work for the dollar received."

J. H. Jones

"I think if we keep up this foolish picketing we are going to picket ourselves out of business and out of the country if it continues."

Loula Winter

Woodland Shores gets county okay

Stuart -- The Martin County Commission Tuesday gave a 3-2 approval of a "no objection" resolution on the application of Woodland Shores Condominium Development for two marinas on Warner Creek near the mouth of the creek at St. Lucie River.

The proposal came under fire from conservationists when an ecological report showed possible damage to red mangroves growing in the proposed development.

Presenting the case was Cal Montgomery, of Greenlees, Arfegast and Montgomery, who said that the balance of the creek would not be touched, and that the only damage to the mangroves would be in the area near the mouth of the creek.

"Most of the boat traffic will be kept in the lower, wider part of the creek," Montgomery said, he added that an island of mangroves would be left at the entrance to the marina for conservation purposes.

The area will be excavated to a depth of five feet, the depth of the creek, and there would be about 50 boat slips to the lower, of southerly, marina, Another marina for 11 boats received no objection from the ecological report of the public.

Lobster season ends Wednesday

JB--Closed season for the Florida lobster (crawfish) starts at midnight Wednesday and continues until midnight, July 31, according to a notice from the Department of Natural Resources.

The closed season on sea turtles in Martin County is April 15, and in St. Lucie and Palm Beach Counties the date is June 1.

Closed season on stone crabs is midnight May 14.

Zoning board reviews laws

Stuart--The Martin County Planning and Zoning Board has been asked by the Martin County Commission to review setbacks, density and height of buildings, following a request for action by County Commissioner Frank Wachi Tuesday.

Wachs said that the fifteen unit measure of the county was too much, and the setbacks did not provide enough space for heights of buildings.

Paper drive is set by Audubon

Stuart -- A program was launched for the collection of newspapers for recycling purposes at a luncheon on Monday at Sunrise Inn.

The luncheon meeting, given by Mrs. Virginia Forrest, was sponsored by the Martin County Audubon Society.

The parking lot at Jensen Beach Blvd. will be one of five central collection points, each third Saturday of the month, starting on April 17. Bundles of newspapers will be made between 9 and 12 noon.

A five-foot bundle of newspaper weighs about 100 pounds and saves one tree, Mrs. Forrest said, "We are running out of land fill and need to reuse paper, which is 50% of our waste. If we can fill a ten ton truck, we will save 100 trees."

Residents are asked to bring their bundled newspapers to Jensen Beach Boat parking lot each third Saturday of the month.

The following organizations, all members of the Martin County Conservation Alliance, are participating: Izaak Walton League, Anglers' Club, Audubon Society, students, Men's Garden Club, Palm City Civic Association, Seagate Harbor Homeowners' Association, Hidden Harbour and Cedar Pointe.

All proceeds from the sale of newspapers will go to the Pioneer Occupational Center.

park. An "independent trailer" is classified by state law as having a toilet and bathtub or shower, a "dependent trailer" does not have a toilet and bathtub or shower, or does not have a plumbing system that is suitable for connection to the park sewerage system.

Health laws assume three persons to every trailer, and assume that each would use 50 gallons of water per day, or 150 gallons per trailer. Taylor Creek Lodge has a 5,000 gallon per day sewage plant.

At 150 gallons per trailer per day, the 5,000 gallon sewage treatment plant would be able to process the normal load of 34 trailers. It has to treat the 71 independent trailers already provided for, plus the effluent of human waste of the residents of the remaining 29 dependent trailers that are approved in the registration figures allow only 26. Garden hose connections were in evidence throughout the park.

Reed's Motel and Trailer Park had wedge lines running right along a ditch that flowed to Taylor Creek. I counted 50 trailers in the park. The camp is permitted eight. Located on SR 78, just west of Okeechobee, the camp is one of many in the area serving the camping public.

Joe and Wanda's Fish Camp is permitted eight units, also. A count on that day resulted in 36 trailers being on the site. Hitchler's Ranch, along the same road has a permit for eight trailers and had 23 on the site that day.

There were 12 trailers in Camp O'Kissimmee, but the registration sheet of the State Division of Health does not indicate that such a trailer park exists.

The records of the division of health in Jacksonville are seemingly not adequate. Registration lists do not indicate the latest information on many parks that are operating on the basis of the Tri-County Health Department to update records, a routine responsibility of that department.

For example, the Okeechobee County Commission operates a travel trailer park on the shores of Lake Okeechobee without a health department permit, and has countered on face of the Central and South Florida Flood Control District to close access to the shore on the lake side of the levee, at Gilbert Avenue.

At a county commissioner meeting on September 10, 1970, Okeechobee Commissioners adopted a policy of banning camping at Gilbert, but local pressures for tourist dollar made the change to, without objection from the health department, open the camping area. As many as 150 campers used it prior to the area.

State law demands that there be "adequate sanitation facilities," but there is no water on the temple. The closest water supply is a spigot on the north side of the levee, and it is a half mile away from the camping area and so little as several city blocks away on the road out of the city, a clear violation of health standards.

The spigot, located at the foot of Parrott Avenue, is near a sign that is the county's answer to water pollution. The sign says "Notice, Lake Okeechobee Public Beach Recreation Area, $1.50 charge per night for overnight camping. Please help keep this area clean for you. Positively no pollution!! This area regulated by Board of County Commissioners."

Construction of the trailer and camping park was done without a health department permit, and the location of such a park certainly cannot be a mystery to the health department. However, with the number of over-limit parks along the lake it might be that the health department has not checked the trailer parks there, as required by law.

The Mirror investigation also showed other trailer parks in the area around Lake Okeechobee, water supply of the east and west coastal areas, violated the state health registration figures.

Lake Winds Mobile Lodge had 21 trailers in the park that day, and the registration figures allow only 16. Garden hose connections were in evidence throughout the park.

Reed's Motel and Trailer Park had wedge lines running right along a ditch that flowed to Taylor Creek. I counted 50 trailers in the park. The camp is permitted eight. Located on SR 78, just west of Okeechobee, the camp is one of many in the area serving the camping public.

Joe and Wanda's Fish Camp is permitted eight units, also. A count on that day resulted in 36 trailers being on the site. Hitchler's Ranch, along the same road has a permit for eight trailers and had 23 on the site that day.

There were 12 trailers in Camp O'Kissimmee, but the registration sheet of the State Division of Health does not indicate that such a trailer park exists.

The records of the division of health in Jacksonville are seemingly not adequate. Registration lists do not indicate the latest information on many parks that are operating on the basis of the Tri-County Health Department to update records, a routine responsibility of that department.

For example, the Okeechobee County Commission operates a travel trailer park on the shores of Lake Okeechobee without a health department permit, and has countered on face of the Central and South Florida Flood Control District to close access to the shore on the lake side of the levee, at Gilbert Avenue.

At a county commissioner meeting on September 10, 1970, Okeechobee Commissioners adopted a policy of banning camping at Gilbert, but local pressures for tourist dollar made the change to, without objection from the health department, open the camping area. As many as 150 campers used it prior to the area.

State law demands that there be "adequate sanitation facilities," but there is no water on the temple. Strength Overcalls

Strength overcalls are varied. The most common form however is the Take-Out or Informative Double, which requests partner to name his longest and strongest suit. Requirements: 1. The take-out doubler must hold a hand that contains opening bid requirements. 2. The double must be made at the doubler's first opportunity to bid. 3. A take-out double can be made over a bid of one, two or three of a suit. 4. Doubler should have either support in all three of the unbid suits, or sixteen points or better and a good five card suit of his own.

5. A double of a one no trump opening is for optional take-out. Partner of doubler may bid or pass. If he passes his hand should contain six or seven points. This is called a penalty pass. The double of a one no trump opening shows at least sixteen points, 6. A double made after partner has previously bid or previously doubled is not a take-out double. This is a penalty or business double.

Other strength overcalls. Bid one no trump (16 to 18 points in high cards).

Bid 2 no trump (22 to 24 points in high cards). Bid three no trump with a minimum of 25 points in high cards. A cue bid of opponent's suit (forcing to game). Here are two examples of strength overcalls:

1. NORTH: S-A Q 6 5; H-4 2; D-K Q 7; C-A J 6 4. EAST bid one heart, SOUTH passed, WEST 1 no trump. You double for takeout.

2. SOUTH: S-K 7; H-A J 7 6; D-K T 5 2; C-4 3 2. EAST bid 1 spade. You double for partner to bid.

Responses to the take-out double (for partner of the doubler). When your partner makes a take-out double it is IMPERATIVE that you respond unless the player on your right bids over the take-out double. If there has been no intervening bid over the take-out double, you MUST BID regardless of the weakness of your hand. The only exception would be if your holding of the opponent's suit is such as to insure that the opponent cannot make his contract. In that event the take-out double becomes a penalty double.

2. If you have a choice definitely bid a four card major suit, rather than a longer minor suit.

3. If you have eleven or more points there is game possibility. Therefore, if there has been no intervening bid, use a jump take-out, bidding one more than necessary. 4. If there has been an intervening bid over the doubler, you need more or less points to make a free bid.

5. Do not respond 1 no trump unless you hold about eight points, including a stopper in opponent's suit. DO NOT USE A NO TRUMP RESPONSE AS AN ESCAPE bid because you hold nothing. Bid a major suit in preference to one no trump if possible.

Rebids by take-out doubler. If you have doubled with a minimum of 13 or 14 points, it is important to remember that you may not bid the same values twice and that each additional bid shows additional values. Also, you have forced your partner to bid and his holding may be almost nothing. Vulnerability must be considered as well as the level of the bidding. If partner holds 11 or more points he will jump the bid. If not he definitely has less than 11 points.

More next week.

Aqua-Pure Water Filters
Take the Dirt, Rust, Taste and Odor Out of Water . . . Leave it "Spring-Fresh"

Enjoy, not only the pleasure and taste of fresh water. But the true delectable flavors of coffee, tea, soups, party beverages, juice concentrates, gravies and all other water based liquids. Foods cooked in Aqua-Pure filtered water are full flavored, too. Aqua-Pure Filters wipe out tainted taste and unpleasant odors which make water undesirable. Your laundry is brighter and whiter, water softeners and other water appliances remain clog free, last longer. Sinks, toilets and tubs stain free. Household cleaning is cut to the minimum. This is because Aqua-Pure will filter out microscopic dirt and rust as fine as talcum powder.

More and more we hear the growing problems of maintaining an untainted water supply. And to get good water, more and more people are resorting to the inconvenience and expense of buying bottled spring-water, when they could have clean, taste and odor free water flowing from their faucet.

If you are one of the millions who are dissatisfied with the bad water you are getting, you will be amazed how the installation of an Aqua-Pure product will give you superb water . . . and at an annual cost far less than the lowest cost bottled water.

New discoveries in island mounds are excavated

by DICK CAMPBELL

JB- Two skulls lying in carefully screened tables of an excavation stared vacantly into the sunlight that filtered through the palmetto trees of Hutchinson Island Monday afternoon as Bill Rudge, archeologist, brushed sand around the area. They made numbers 27 and 28, skulls found in the Indian mound under the direction of the Martin County Historical Society.

The patience of Rudge, a Stuart resident and an experienced archeologist, and his two helpers, Bob Holman, Holiday Out, and Karl Kline, Stuart, an Indian River Community College student, was paying off.

The find has been enlarged and increased in importance with the discovery of a strata of darkly colored fill that indicates a habitation area of Indians who lived and camped, ate and played on the site a thousand years ago. The first discovery, a burial mound, was thought to be all that existed, but further digging revealed the habitation layer.

The two skulls have two complete bodies attached to them, and the female skull has a fully open mouth, indicating the possibility that the body had been buried alive.

Rudge is letting the bones dry in the area before moving them too much, and the sand around the skeletons will have to dry to permit removal of the very soft bones from the sand.

Excavation of the area began last December 15, and a five-foot square area has thus far been laboriously removed with a whisk broom, a paint brush and a small trowel. Each section dislodged is shaken in a wire mesh with quarter-inch screening, and the pieces left are washed and examined. Bits of pottery 1,000 years old have been found, of the "Belle Glade and Okeechobee Red Periods."

As Rudge dug in one area, Holman excavated another, a strip of land five feet wide by now 40 feet long. He has found three strata, indicating the end of the burial mound and the extension of the habitation area from a depth of eight and one-half feet down at the high point to a depth of eighteen inches.

Holman found three hearths on a line, possibly indicating that they were in one of the "long houses" of the Indians. The hearths are a fused carbon remains of eating and fire burned materials.

Thus far the archeologists have found stone tools, shell tools, bear teeth, necklaces, deer antlers, dishes and an animal skeleton (not that of a dog).

"It will take us four years to completely work the mound," Rudge said. He complained about the vandalism of the area by persons who do not know the value of the historical find, and said that the mound is posted and patrolled by the Sheriff's department and by island residents who want it protected.

TWO SKULLS--Bill Rudge, archeologist, brushes sand from around a newly found skull on Hutchinson Island's Indian mound site. Rudge discovered the two skeletal remains Monday. Thus far he has found 28 skulls, not all with bodies, in the 1,000 year old mound.

HEARTH--Bob Holman brushes sand from the location of a hearth, one of three found in a line of strata, indicating that they were located in a "long house of Indians" over 1,000 years ago. Holman has recovered much historical data from his five foot wide trench through the Indian mound, forty feet from the center of the find.

Stuart Sailfish Regatta promotion beginning

Stuart -- The steering committee for the fourth annual Stuart Sailfish Regatta power boat races named committee chairmen and kicked off a drive for race sponsors Monday.

The drive for sponsorships will be led by Jack Davis. He called for community-wide support for the event, held for the benefit of the Martin County Association for Retarded Children.

Financial support for the races is gained primarily through sponsorships and ticket sales. Last year, the event raised $5,00 for the Association for Retarded Children, drew some 3,000 spectators to the Stuart Causeway, and nearly 100 race drivers.

The races are scheduled for June 5 and 6.

Harvey Glascock is general chairman of the event. Herman Reitz is racing chairman, Ray Navitsky is coordinator, Davis and Loretta Hagerty head the budget committee. Other committee chairmen are Red Sills, land activities; Bob Werle and Grant Werle, race related activities; Jim Driscoll, tickets and admission, and Tom Weber, water activities.

Ohio Sanitarian calls for qualified health director

By BRUCE CAMPBELL

JB--A sanitarian in Ohio who plans to live in Jensen Beach has called for the reorganization of the Martin County Health Department, the resignation of a "health-fiend" director, and the hiring by the health department of "effective enforcement" of sanitation.

Herbert W. Riggs, Jr., environmental sanitarian for the Allen County (Ohio) Department of Health, writes The Mirror in April 1 letter outlining his recommendations for the improvement of health law enforcement in Martin County. He reads the minutes of the meetings of the Martin County Health Department and reports on the activities of the department.

Riggs wrote, "As a subscriber to The Mirror, an annual resident in Jensen Beach, and a public health sanitarian with the Allen County Health Department, I have followed with considerable interest the debacle with the Martin County Health Department. The Mirror in April 1 published its recommendations that the director and the probable cause of the situation has been revealed from its news and in its present is one of our bordering county departments.

"Environmental sanitation should be practiced not as a situational basis, but applied to all with the same degree of compliance required," he wrote.

Riggs then wrote that he has found that when regulations are applied equally to all, "...rather than creating ill feelings amongst one group of the other, that a feeling develops among the public that they are truly working to improve their environment.

"It's too sad when a department becomes an effective agency that has lost the confidence in the public it serves," Riggs wrote.

He also went on to say that the only solution for Martin County would be first to acquire a qualified health director, then to reorganize the agency board to effectively enforce rules and regulations, and to establish and retain" Riggs explained.

The sanitarian concluded by saying "Criticism is easy, but action is difficult." He said, "You, I intend to make my home in Jensen Beach and the public interest is paramount to professional ethics. I do know that I could never tolerate the conditions that are now present, and hope they change before I arrive so that beautiful area will..."

Old school to be used by Voc Ed

JB--The old Jensen Beach Elementary School built by the W.P.A. in depression times, goes back into service this fall after being abandoned by the county school system last fall.

During the years since the new school was built, the old building has been used for storage, but now Milton Hall, principal of the new school, announced that the old building will be used for vocational education.

The section of the school that will be used for the first grade and kindergarten classes in the new school, adjacent to the elementary school in Jensen was made by the superintendent, but 850 students will be bussed from the already overcrowded Martin County High School to the old Jensen school for classes in the 10th, 11th, grades and Southern Martin.

Richards delays Beau Rivage meet

JB--A meeting Tuesday between John Marr, president of Beau Rivage East Association, and Trial (still) Environmental Health Director R. H. Richards has been delayed for two weeks by Richards. The meeting was to have discussed possible financing plans for a water system for the area.

Marr said he had asked for the meeting, and it had been set up, but that Richards called it off because "He had to go to Jupiter Island".

'Bowler of the Year' tournament is Tuesday

JB--The fourth annual Bowler of the Year tournament, pitting winners of the weekly Jensen Beach Mirror awards contest in bowling, gets under way at 7 p.m. next Tuesday night at Jensen Bowling Lanes.

The handicap event, with participants qualified by winning honors of "Bowler of the Week" through the year, has drawn more than sixty bowlers to sign up, according to Tony Priori, manager of the lanes.

Handicap will be 75% of the average of the bowler through this year in American Bowling Congress and Women's International Bowling Congress sanctioned leagues at Jensen Lanes.

Throughout the year of bowling, members of the Men's and Women's Bowling Associations of Martin County have been selected by their own officials as bowlers-of-the-week by bowling the highest number of pins over their average for a three game series, making every bowler eligible for the honor.

The weekly awards ended last week at the lanes.

Bowlers who have not yet signed up for the event can still register, until 6 p.m. Tuesday night, to participate in the final big tournament.

Trophies for first, second and third places will be awarded in each category, with the winners of the first place trophy sharing $50 top prize money.

The public is invited to watch the Jensen Beach Mirror Bowler of the Year Tournament Tuesday night at Jensen Lanes.

Question of the week

What do you think of the conviction of Lt. William F. Calley?

"I think it is the biggest mistake the American military has ever made!"
Dave McIntyre (age 23)

"That trial was all phoey! If this is what I can expect for my son, a copter pilot there now, then I would like to see him shipped home immediately. When our government can send them over as targets,...then surely, they should have the right to shoot the enemy!!!"
John Tyson (age 45)
Veteran of WWII

"I think it is unfair and unjust. If we're not going to fight, let's bring them all back home. If this constitutes as an example of military justice, then I don't want my son to go. The women and children there are ordered to kill the same as the men and none wear specific uniforms."
John Williams (age 45)
Veteran of WWII and Korean War

"I don't think it was a fair deal! There is nothing more to say."
August Schaefer
Ex-Serviceman

A BIG ONE!--Oscar Dishman, local avid fisherman, of Ocean Breeze Park, had a good day Tuesday, Fishing on the east Jensen Beach Causeway bridge after the early morning showers, Dishman latched on to a 28-1/2 pound snook using 60 pound test line and a white feather jig. After a 10 minute battle, he landed his catch. Dishman also added three trout to his day's activities.

Drug program ... a bummer

By DENNIS DOYLE

JB—"A mother who asks her daughter to wear clothes and is overjoyed that she is pushing around steaming the house from top to bottom, doesn't realize that maybe her daughter is popping pills. Yes, her daughter. If the mother doesn't know the symptoms of a pill popper, she will never know her daughter is, until it is too late."

This was one of the comments of Chief Warrant Officer Ernest Donald L. Coleman on Wednesday night at the Jensen Beach Woman's Association clubhouse. There was almost no audience. Only 15 persons, including reporters and police officers, were in attendance. The drug and narcotic program was sponsored by the Martin County Sheriff's Department to help educate the adults and parents on the drugs some since younger people seem to know a lot more about it than adults.

Coleman started his talk with a film strip beginning with marijuana. He described how a person gets high or intoxicated, by smoking marijuana, better known as pot or grass, Mary Jane or a weed, "Mexico is the chief supplier of marijuana, about 90% of the marijuana that comes into the U.S.," Coleman said. "The Mexican marijuana has a higher THC (tetrahydrocannabinol) count than most."

The THC is the drug that disorganizes and confuses the central nervous system, Coleman explained. "It impairs judgment and memory, alters reality, and is capable of causing psychological dependence," he said.

Later in the evening, Coleman lit a sample of marijuana so the audience could smell it.

Coleman explained that Hashish was made of boiled marijuana and had a very high THC count. He pointed out that Hashish was ten times stronger than marijuana and therefore gave a better "high".

"Mexican Hashish has a lower THC count than the Hashish from the East. The best and most wanted type is from Lebanon," Coleman added. "This is why over 500 American students are in jail in Europe. The students go over there and buy the Hashish, but are caught in the process."

"The student buys the Hashish from a pusher on the street, then the pusher tells the police who he sold it to. They arrest the student, the pusher gets a reward and sometimes the police even return the Hashish to the pusher. So you can see it's just one big cycle," Coleman said.

Coleman felt that marijuana shouldn't be legalized, "Since 1966 there's been no definite research to find out if it's detrimental or not, it's going to take at least five to ten years," he said.

Coleman talked about barbiturates (downers) and described them as "physically addicting."

"They depress the central nervous system and the user may appear to be either sleepy or an intoxicated life of the party," Coleman said. He added, "Withdrawals from barbiturates cause more deaths than heroin withdrawals." These are commonly called reds, yellows, rainbows or blues.

Amphetamines (stimulants) are called uppers, jeps, pills or diet pills, and stimulate the central nervous system.

Symptoms of a user are inability to sleep, confusion and irritability," Coleman said. He added, "Over 92% of these pills are produced in the United States by drug manufacturers who sell them in volume to foreign buyers. These pills come back into the U.S. and are sold on the street markets."

Coleman also reported that 3.5 billion amphetamines are produced in the U.S. every year. "This is enough for 15 pills for every person in the world," he said.

"Methamphetamine (stimulant) is commonly known as speed," Coleman said. It can be found in pill, powder or liquid form.

Speed users can be described as extremely confused, very unpredictable and irrational, behavior is violent and usually users are paranoid. Coleman described the speed user's path as first a high (this is three to six days of confusion and very irrational behavior), then a CRash (this is when they stop taking injections), and from there the person hallucinates and then takes Downers to shorten hallucinations in order to sleep.

The victim sleeps from 18 to 48 hours, then awakens depressed and fatigued. Then he takes an oral Upper to get going again. In the case of a speed freak, he will take speed again instead of an oral Upper and begin the run again, according to Coleman.

The officer showed a picture of the brain of a speed user. The picture showed a type of green jelly throughout the brain tissue. Coleman said, "Using speed does eventually turn the brain into one massive piece of jelly."

DEMONSTRATION—Chief Warrant Officer Donald Coleman lights marijuana at the drug and narcotics program last Wednesday night at the Jensen Beach Woman's Association clubhouse. The program was sponsored by the Martin County Sheriff's Department in an effort to enlighten parents on the drug scene.

LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide), better known as "acid" is a hallucinogenic drug which comes in tablet, powder, cap or liquid form.

"There are 300 micrograms in an aspirin and it takes only 100 micrograms of LSD to take a trip," Coleman said. He later said that LSD changes people's personalities as well as causing birth defects.

Coleman added, "The LSD remains in the chromosomes up to five years. In the chromosomes it stays in the DNA strands. When a flashback or rush occurs, it is when the LSD has been jolted out of the DNA strand and goes back into the body bloodstream.

Coleman felt that getting off drugs like LSD was only a mental want because the body itself doesn't yearn for it as in hard drugs, like heroin, when the person has to go into Cold Turkey to get off the drug.

"Quitting drugs is a lot easier than an alcoholic quitting drinking because the alcoholic can walk down the street and run into a bar or liquor store, whereas the drug user has to go out and find someone first who will sell him some drugs," said Coleman.

Coleman's last subjects were heroin and cocaine, which are depressants that effect the central nervous system of the body.

"This usually puts the person in a type of euphoria and a world of no care," Coleman said. The heroin addict must have a fix about every four to six hours or he goes into a chill or sweat which is similar to Cold Turkey, Coleman said. "Heroin is the most dangerous of all the drugs, except LSD."

The program concluded with a film of a drug addict talking to a group of students in New York about her experiences as a drug user for the past 26 years.

Coleman is an instructor of criminal investigation in narcotics and homicide at Fort Gordon, Georgia. Coleman has spent the past 10 years in the military and 26 of those years have been as a policeman.

Examples of lax law enforcement

Health issues septic tank permit to restaurant

By Richard E. Campbell
Copyright, 1971
The Jensen Beach Mirror

(Editor's note: The health laws of Florida are easy to read, especially for an expert, an expert like W. B. Richards, environmental health director of the Tri-County Health Department, encompassing Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee Counties. This article is the fifth in a continuing series to point up lax health law enforcement in this area.)

Recently, W. B. Richards, director of environmental health for St. Lucie County, gave a septic tank permit to the developers of a new restaurant that would seat 225 persons. The permit was in violation of state health law 10-D-6.08 which requires a central sewage treatment plant for establishments with over 1,200 gallons of waste flow per day.

The health laws clearly state that a restaurant with a cocktail lounge uses 15 gallons per day for each person occupying the facilities. Assuming that the 225 seats would be filled only once each day, the total flow would be 3,375 gallons of waste flow, or more than twice the amount required to move to a sewage plant.

When Dick Starr, regional engineer of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, heard about the septic tank permit, he "blew his stack." Starr, advised by the health department, refused such a fuss Richards, for fear that his septic tank permit might be discovered, said he "might" withdraw it.

The new restaurant, replacing the old Hilltop Restaurant on U.S. 1, north of Ft. Pierce, had not had the septic tank permit withdrawn at press time this week. The walls of the new restaurant are up, and construction in progressing.

Subdivisions are required to have sewage plants in operation, but Richards, head of the Okeechobee County Health Department, has Taylor Creek Isles, a mobile home subdivision with 600 units, and not 600 septic tanks.

Taylor Creek Isles is right on Taylor Creek, which leads into Lake Okeechobee, and from there into the St. Lucie Canal, and on to the Atlantic Ocean.

Almost every lot in the mobile home subdivision is on a network of man-made canals which lead to Taylor Creek.

The law establishes 50 gallons of sewage flow per day per person, and the law establishes two persons per mobile home as an average. Eight hundred units in Taylor Creek Isles would produce a potential 80,000 gallons of sewage waste flow per day, much more than the 1,500 gallons of flow per day (10-D-6.08) that would be needed to require a sewage plant.

The City of Stuart continues to dump highly chlorinated effluent from its overloaded plant right on the beach in Stuart, next to the Pelican Hotel, in violation of health laws. Over 11,000 cases of infectious hepatitis were reported in Florida last year, most of them caused by shellfish taken from polluted waters, according to Dr. Alex Marsh, ecology professor at Florida Atlantic University.

Crab traps abound around the effluent pipe that pours wastes onto the beach and into the cove in the St. Lucie River at Stuart, with no move by the Martin County Health Department in halt shoreline pollution.

It took nine years for the Martin County Health Department to stop Poor Bob's Restaurant and Pitchford's Camp in Jensen Beach from dumping raw wastes in outfall pipes on the shoreline of the Indian River, even though the then health department responsibility was clearly outlined in health law 10-D-8, which demands that outfalls be extended into the "channel of a stream where outlet is submerged at all times".

Even then, the dumping of raw sewage violated the same health law which demanded that "sufficient evidence is presented...to prove that solids and other objectionable pollutants will not be deposited on shore..."

Investigators need only talk with Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen who were called in 1970 to fight a fire in Bennett Poor Bob's Restaurant to learn of the content of the shoreline. One fireman slipped and slid through depths of slime and wastes, returning to dragon to bathe his clothing after the fire.

Efforts of Poor Bob's Restaurant's new owners to put in a sewage plant after buying the restaurant were frustrated by Starr in March, 1970. Starr demanded that the restaurant owners and Pitchford Camp owners "get together" on one large plant. Starr didn't like the plans for individual plants, saying, "This would be neither a simple nor a cheap solution, but an all encompassing plant is the only one that can adequately solve the sewage problem."

At the same time, the Martin County Commission was highly critical of the nine year delay in action by Richards, who excused the delay by saying, on February 17, 1970, that the policy of his department was "educational", and "it takes a long time".

The sewage plant was finally installed at Poor Bob's Restaurant, and it not only didn't serve Pitchford's, where another system had been installed, but also didn't contain the mobile home park previously owned by Poor Bob's, across the road from the restaurant.

Starr had an agreement from the previous owner, Bob Weisenberger, of the park, to install the mobile home park on the same sewage plant, and the previous owner's estate had taken a federal tax credit of $48,000 to install such a sewage system, according to then county attorney Dean Tucker.

It was also learned at that time that the sewage treatment plant installed at Pitchford's Camp would not service the entire camp, but would service only the cottages, leaving the trailers in the camp on septic tanks.

A check of the Division of Health trailer park-trailer camp registration list shows that there is no trailer camp permit issued to Pitchford's Camp as of January, 1971.

Also in February, 1970, Richards said that the county prosecutor, Bill Oughterson, had told him that there would be no way to prove that there was raw sewage going into the Indian River from outfalls since there was no way to trace them back to their sources, a statement Oughterson angrily denied later.

Both Starr, as regional engineer and advisor to the county health department, and Richards, head of the tri-county health group and chief environmental officer of the county, denied that they had any enforcement powers to the county commission in March, 1970.

The Martin County Commission gave a mandate for enforcement of state health laws in the county by offering the services of the county attorney, then Dean Tucker, to the health department. Tucker this week said he had never received a request for legal aid in health law enforcement from Richards.

The problem with enforcement in Martin County goes back to the late 1960's, Commissioner Frank Wacha reported this week that the county then had asked through a resolution for stringent health law enforcement, but received none.

Hi... In case you don't know, we have a perpetual HALF PRICE CORNER. We don't keep talking about it, but our friends have learned to run in once a week to find out what surprises have appeared on the shelves. This is all top-notch merchandise, but we're in a continual battle for space to house the new things that keep coming in. This week you'll find Genuine Alligator Handbags from Colombia that were $12 to $30...and NOW $6 to $15, as well as teak tidpe racks, Zodiac place mats (Now 50¢), and a tiny library of Andersen Fairy Tales (Now $1).

HELLO!--Director Jack Scranton stops to say hello to Bob Smith, president of the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club, at last week's Ladies' Night held at the Crow's Nest.

No Bingo Saturday

JB -- There will be no Bingo games this Saturday night at Legion Hall, according to Julius Newman, commander of American Legion Post #126, in observance of Easter.

Games will be continued on Saturday, April 17, he said.

Five firemen answer call

JB-- Smoke in her mobile home caused Mrs. Ruth Troger of Broad and 4th Ave., Ocean Breeze Park, to call for the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department at 9:43 p.m. Sunday. Five firemen, directed by Chief Randolph Spinney, answered the call.

The hot water heater shorted, Spinney told The Mirror. Rags and papers were set on fire and the resultant smoke caused Mrs. Troger to make the call.

Damage was minimal, Spinney said.

Birthday Greetings

JB-- Happy birthday wishes are extended to Jean Wilbur, who will celebrate her birthday April 9; Frank Forsberg, 13th; Dorothy Hunter, 11th; Ruth Bowman and Myra McDaniel, 12th; Val Manwaring and J. M. Fowler on the 14th, and Mrs. Ben Canter and Jessie Fitton on April 15th.

Send your birthdays to The Mirror.

THANK YOU

I wish to thank the nurses, Pink Ladies and staff of Martin Memorial Hospital for the very thorough care they gave me during my recent hospitalization. Also to Sheriff Baker for his card, and to John, Gloria, Marianne, Betti Gillespie, daughter and friend for their visits.

Reitz attends Evinrude Dealer meet

Stuart--Herman K. Reitz, manager of Stuart Marine Center in Stuart, has returned from Milwaukee, Wis., where he attended a meeting as a member of the Evinrude Motors Dealer Council.

The 25-member Dealer Council meets semi-annually with company officials. It serves as an advisory body to the company in such areas as new product ideas, promotional suggestions and the evaluation of various company-dealer relationships.

"An important area of discussion for this meeting was in the area of environmental control," Reitz said. "Of great significance to the customer is the elimination of overboard drains on all models in the Evinrude rosboard line this year. Elimination of the drains prevents spillage of new fuel into the water."

Pine School will add 7th grade

Stuart—The Pine School in Stuart will begin interviews of admission for the academic year 1971-79, the week of April 12-17, according to Micheal Stevenson, headmaster of the two-year old school. Stevenson, speaking last week at a press conference in the school's forum, said, "We feel that a discussion with the school personnel and a walk through the school are vital to a parent's understanding of our program. Without this early opportunity for understanding, future communication might be jeopardized."

In September the school will add a 7th grade into its new modern $400,000 three-building complex on ten acres of land. "We will also take applications for the 8th grade," Stevenson said, "if interest is sufficient, we may add this grade in 1971, one year earlier than our original plan."

Enrollment has increased 48% since September at the new independent elementary school. Forty-two children were enrolled in September, and 62 are presently attending classes.

Pine School has added a new evaluation system which is new in education circles. There are no grades for students attending Pine School. A letter is sent to parents evaluating their child. This system is aimed at relaxing tensions in school and is designed to enrich school life by making it more rewarding to the child and enlightening to parents.

Pine school does pay the price for independence in offering specialized educational opportunities for the children of the community. The public is undefloured since the school is non-profit and therefore receives no public tax funds, church or business support.

The trustees have embraced The Pine School Educational Opportunity Fund Program which opens doors to individuals, groups and corporations in the community who believe in quality educational beginning for the youth, to contribute their financial support and share with others who are now helping to assist the Pine School over the first year's growing pains.

Stevenson is the headmaster of the school, along with six full time and three part time teachers.

RELAXED ATMOSPHERE—Mrs. Gary Ash, an instructor at Pine School in Stuart, works with her students in the relaxed atmosphere of the new modern $400,000 three-building complex on ten acres of land. The school is in its second year and has 62 children enrolled. Next year the school will open classes to the seventh grade, and plans are in process for an eighth grade in two years.

Stuart women to meet April 14

Stuart—One of the things on the agenda for the April 14 meeting of the Woman's Club of Stuart is the air conditioning of the clubhouse. The meeting will be at 12:30 p.m.

Members are invited to bring a sack lunch at 12 noon.

Mrs. Eugene S. Bryant will preside at the start of the hourly meeting at 11 a.m., preceding the business meeting.

BY JAY M. MANS

Defensive bidding

For the partner of the opener, procedure is fairly simple if opponent doubles for take-out. With 10 or more points in high cards, regardless of trump support, simple "redouble". This is a tactical bid to inform your partner that you hold almost all the balance of high card strength. A simple overcall made by you over the take-out double would indicate less than 10 points. Usual practice for the opening bidder is to pass so as to permit partner (the redoubler) to take further action if able. In one round at least, there are a couple of exceptions.

You are south with S-A 8 6, H-A 10 3 2, D-K 7 6 5 4, C-A, South bid 1 heart and East doubles. Now, I hearts would be a fine bid.

The hand is worth at least 11 points, guarantees excellent heart support.

(2) North 1 heart, East doubles. You: Undouble; 11 points is not cards.

(3) North 1 heart, East doubles. You: Pass, of course.

Let us look briefly at Club bids, requirements. Holding these cards the requirements of the opening bid during is same. 1. First or second round control of opponent's suit. 2. Two to a pinochle game hand.

Opening on one card the bid calls for: S-A, H-void, D-K J 8 4 3, C-A 9 8 2, two points.

No trump overcalls, requirements, holding good card requirements of standard no trump opening and fully support in opponent's suit, if desirable, two.

3. Raise with a general pass on defensive bidding.

Your right hand opponent opened the bidding with one heart. What is your call with: 1. S-K 8 5 3, H-8 7, D-K 4 3, C-A 9 4 2? 2. S-K J 8 4, H-K 4 3, D-K 4 3, C-A 8 2. 3. S-K 8 5 3, H-K 8 5 2, D-K 10 5, C-K 3. 4. S-K 4, H-K 9 7 2, D-K 7 3, C-A 10 6 3.

1. Double for takeout. You expected for you will partner bids. 2. One no trump. Fulfills all requirements. 3. pass. 4. Indicates no want partner to lead when and if. Two spades if you and partner agree on use preemptive jump overcalls, to be discussed later. 5. Pass, what else?

Preemptive jump overcalls. A special and very useful bid. When used it promises a strong six card or more suit, and but little more. Useful bid because it describes for partner exactly the type of holding. Its value lies in making it difficult for opponents to bid freely. A couple of samples follow:

1. Over 1 Club you hold: S-K 3, H-7 4 2, D-K 9 7 6 4 3, C-3 2. Bid two diamonds.

2. Over 1 heart you hold: S-4, H-3 2, D-K J 6, C-A J 10 8 4 3 2. Bid 3 clubs.

3. Over 1 heart you hold: S-A K J 8 4 2, H-3 2, D-K 4 3, C-3 2. Bid 2 spades.

Be sure your partner understands you are using preemptive jump overcalls.

Electric rates have gone down eleven times since 1957!

When you compare the history of electric service rates with the way some other costs have risen lately, you get a pleasant surprise. While inflation has been pushing other prices up, the price of electricity has gone down—down—down! In fact, the average price paid per kilowatt hour by FPL-served families today is one-third less than it was in 1957.

No wonder then, that you're using electricity so much more these days to save you work, to make home more comfortable, to bring you entertainment. There's no much for the price, the biggest bargain in your budget.

Erosion

SLIPPING--Slabs installed to protect the Jensen Beach Causeway from erosion are beginning to slip, as further erosion weakens work already completed on the project. Dwindow (tiles into the shore) and backfill are needed after capping to hold the bulkhead in place.

Seawall meet off-on-off-on

Stuart- The off-again, on-again Jensen seawall meeting of the county with the Trustees of Internal Improvement Fund, cancelled on April 13, on for April 27, and off for April 27, was be on again for April 27 if County Administrator Jack Noble is successful.

Noble said Tuesday that he planned to go to Tallahassee today (Wednesday) to clarify "some misconceptions" of the IIF office staff about the legal status in the case of the county building a seawall to save eroded Jensen Beach Causeway property on an emergency basis.

Noble will carry with him a letter from the county commission to Governor Reubin Askew advising him that the county was trying to protect the property of the people, and saying that if the commission did not hear from him by Tuesday, it would authorize the completion of capping, Sand man and backfilling of the project, assuming his permission is the emergency project.

The county, moving quickly last January, sought to save public pavilions and bath houses, and a row of Australian pines, issued a bid form for a seawall and had about half the work done when a marine patrol stopped the contractor for lack of an IIF permit to bulkhead.

Without a cap on the seawall, some of the slabs have been slipping and getting out of line, making it necessary to redo a lot of the work when permission is received. Each day of delay costs the county in backfill that is washing into the Indian River and further erosion of the beach and the initial construction of slabs.

The initial meeting on April 13 was cancelled when Noble discovered that the county was not on the agenda of the trustees (the Florida cabinet). Some rules of the trustees make it necessary to file all information with the individuals before the meeting.

In a letter dated Sunday, April 9, the meeting on April 27 was cancelled because, "The photograph you provided us indicates that a seawall is presently being installed and this is in violation of the terms of Chapter 253, Florida Statutes", indicating that the letter after, Dallas (Gray, had no knowledge of the situation in the county.

Noble said he planned to take all information to the IIF offices to get the matter clarified.

Traffic to improve

Baker asks traffic light at Commercial and 707

Stuart- Sheriff Sec. Baker Tuesday asked the Martin County Commission to seek a traffic light from the Department of Transportation for the intersection of Commercial Street and the Dixie Highway (707).

Baker told the commission that he was concerned for sight and safety factors on both streets at the intersection.

Wednesday, Baker said, "I'm worried about the safety factors involved in the speed of traffic coming down Commercial Street and the speed of traffic coming down 707. I'm afraid that before long there will be a serious accident there."

Baker said that he had received a letter on the matter from Jensen Beach Councilman Ed Hall, and that he had been trying to find out who did it before answering him," the spokesman said.

The problem of the intersection is one of three major traffic problems that were being pushed by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce in the past year. One of the three problems, that of the former Jensen Bridge, was solved when a 65 foot span replaced the bridge and the approach to it, making it a safer road, with stronger railings in the center.

Progress is being made at the intersection of SR 707 and Sewall's Point Road, as the turn paved and the Texaco sign removed to the corner back. The new direction of the road will allow traffic to move south unhindered, and traffic coming from Sewall's Point Road will not have to stop, but traffic northbound on SR 707 will have a stop sign and a sharp turn to slow traffic and add stop lights to the meantime.

The third problem, Commercial Street will be solved with the proper striping of the intersection so that there will be a storage lane for left turning traffic, Baker's request to add further traffic control to the area if accepted by D.O.T., will have some letter on it soon, and Pete Ivey is trying to find out who did it before answering him," the spokesman said.

Planning problems increase in county

Stuart - Lack of the master planner and delay of completion of the first phase of the master plan for Martin County added to mounting overall problems of the county commission Tuesday.

The commission heard that of Lewis, master planner, had resigned from the planning company, V.T.N. Lewis' resignation was due to the lack of cooperation from the parent firm on the Martin County study, according to commissioners.

Also, according to Dr. Bill Myers, commission chairman, the first phase of the master plan was not yet complete and was "six months late".

The county contract with V.T.N. expires after the first phase is completed, and at that time there is supposed to be a renegotiation of the contract. However, commission temperment seemed to lean towards awarding the follow-up second phase to Lewis, who now has his own company.

Hutchinson Island property owners contacted the commission asking that Lewis be considered for the second phase due to his knowledge of the project.

Commissioners declined taking action until the first phase is completed and a report is made to the commission by V.T.N.

ONE OF THREE--A rotting boat in the foreground and the branches of a tree form a frame for this picture of idyllic comfort in the shade of downtown Fort Salerno. This and two other outhouses are located on Railroad Street, behind some old railroad shacks. The outhouses violate many sections of the health laws of Florida. See page three for complete story.

Outhouse law violations permitted in Port Salerno

(Editor's Note: Tri-County Environmental Health Director W. B. Richards misled the county zoning board on an outhouse complaint using the wrong statute from health laws to close over a violation in Port Salerno. This is the full story.)

By DICK CAMPBELL
Copyright, 1971

When Ted Hearn, Martin County Zoning Inspector, asked Tri-County Environmental Health Director W. B. Richards for a copy of the health laws concerning some outhouses in Port Salerno, Richards gave him a copy of the wrong section of the law, and another chapter in las health laws enforcement by Richards' department was under wra.

County Commission Chairman Bill Myers had asked the zoning department to look into three outhouses, located on Railroad Street in Port Salerno, for zoning violations. Hearn said that Myers told him on Tuesday, March 9, "You do this, because we can't get the health department to do anything."

Hearn investigated the area, and said, "I couldn't find a zoning violation in it, so I took it to Richards the next day. Richards referred me to the minutes of the county commission meeting of August 24, 1965, and I got a copy of the minutes."

What Hearn found was that the county had passed a resolution prohibiting outdoor toilets or privies. The resolution, the result of a public hearing, resolved, "that henceforth privies will not be allowed in Martin County, except for the temporary privy as specified in Section 170C-4.05, Rules of the State Board of Health, and only for the purposes enumerated in said section."

The resolution was signed by then chairman Frank Sacha.

Hearn took a copy of the minutes of the county meeting to Richards and told him the outhouses "shouldn't be". Richards gave Hearn a copy of the section of the law on privies exempted by the county, and went to County Attorney Bill Scott for a ruling. Scott wrote an opinion later stating that the county resolution had no effect in law.

The point that was missed in the entire process was that the outhouses were not under the "Temporary Privies" section of the law, but under the "Sanitary Pit Privy" section, and Richards should have known that.

The county needs no ordinance to cover the subject, as it is explicitly covered in the present health law 10-D-6.04. Richards could have stopped use of the privies if he had so desired, for they were in direct violation of that law, with six of eight points of the law broken.

Richards, explaining his position in a Miami Herald interview, said a blanket ban on outhouses might work a hardship on residents in some parts of the county. He talked of rural areas where there is no electricity, saying that modern sanitary facilities "are not practical in those areas" according to the article.

The article also quoted Richards as saying that in other areas poverty prevents families from converting outhouses to bathrooms, especially among older residents.

What Richards did not say was that the homes involved on Railroad Street in Port Salerno are rental houses, that they are located in the fully developed section of Port Salerno, with ready access to electricity, and that the outhouses were in direct violation of many sections of the sanitary pit privy law.

A personal investigation of the area by The Mirror showed three two-bedroom dwellings in poor repair, located back of the homes along Railroad Street.

The "Temporary Privies" section of the law covers "privies for construction sites, fairs, carnivals, recreation encampments, and other temporary locations where numbers of people congregate for periods of short duration..." In no sense of interpretation can this section be termed to cover permanent sanitary pit privies that serve famous where people live.

The correct law that covers the situation is 10-D-6.04, "Sanitary Pit Privy".

Photographs show clearly that many violations exist. Some of those in the law, direct violations, are listed by section number below:

(1) Excavation or pit must be at least three and one-half feet square. The pits are not more than thirty inches.

(2) Pit shall be located or constructed on mound to provide drainage of roof water away from pit to prevent erosion or caving. The pits are constructed on ground level, amidst weeds and garbage.

(3) A floor covering pit tightly to prevent entrance of flies shall be provided. Sunlight shines in one of the pits through holes that could also admit flies.

(4) Riser shall rest on suitable foundation to prevent sagging, erosion or caving. The floor surrounding and under the pit is a dirt floor.

(5) Seat riser shall be jointed to floor forming water - tight and insect-tight joint. Seat risers are the pit itself, made of concrete. One hole was covered with a toilet seat that was not fixed to the seat area.

(6) Foundation, floor and seat riser shall be of concrete or impervious materials as will not warp, crack or develop openings sufficiently large for entrance of insects or leakage of excreta. As the seat riser is the pit, it seems that, to a degree, they meet this section of the law.

(7) Floors and seat risers shall not be constructed of wood. The floor is dirt.

(8) Riser shall be fitted with seat and self-closing cover effectively preventing entrance of flies when privy is not in use. One hole had toilet cover partially over the hole, not fixed, not self-closing.

(9) Suitable building shall be provided for comfort and privacy of users. The buildings are ramshackle huts thrown together with sheet metal roofs and wooden sides repaired loosely with sheets of metal. Holes in doors and surrounding area growth are conducive of vermin and snakes, as well as flies, and the entire area looks like something out of "God's Little Acre".

Richards' nonenforcement of the "Temporary Privy" statute covers the violations of laws directly covered in the "Sanitary Pit Privy" section. The county's action in declaring privies banned from use in the county may be illegal, but present privies in use in Port Salerno could easily be outlawed by the county health department on the grounds of present and numerous violations of its existing law.

Even in a report to Tom Higgins, zoning director of the county, Richards shows the lack of enforcement of health laws. On March 18, 1971 Richards, under the name of health department director Neill D. Miller, M.D., states that, "The privies on Railroad Street in Port Salerno, reported by you for investigation, as requested by Commissioner Myers, have been observed and any deficiencies noted have been discussed with the owner."

Richards gave no mandate for correction, no timetable for correction, and no indication of following on the complaint, which was made by Myers, who is a medical doctor.

Mirror photographs of April 6 indicate little, if any, repairs to the outhouses to meet the health code in the twenty days since Richards' letter to Higgins.

HEALTH HAZARD--Section 10-D-6.04-8 of the Division of Health rules state, "Riser shall be fitted with seat and self closing cover effectively preventing entrance of flies when privy is not in use." The "seat" is a concrete slab, the point of which with the pit is worn cracking along the seam. The "self closing cover" is a toilet seat lid that is left up or off the hole, depending upon who used the seat last.

The controversial outhouse resolution

RE: PUBLIC HEARING AMENDING THE COUNTY HEALTH REGULATIONS

This was an advertised public hearing relative to amending the County Health Regulations to prohibit outdoor toilets or privies. There being no objections entered, Commissioner Miller moved that the amendment to the County Health Regulations be adopted as advertised. Motion, seconded by Commissioner Saunderson, carried.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the existence of privies in Martin County has caused serious problems in that they emit noxious odors and present maintenance problems, and

WHEREAS, privies are a threat to the public's health in that they formulate intestinal parasites which cause such infections as round worm, pin worm and hook worm to name but a few, NOW, THEREFORE,

BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of County Commissioners of Martin County, Florida, that henceforth privies will not be allowed in Martin County, except for the temporary privy as specified in Section 170C-4.05, Rules of the State Board of Health, and only for the purposes enumerated in said section.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this Regulation shall be in full force and effect upon its adoption.

OF MARTIN COUNTY, FLORIDA

SECOND OF THREE--The construction of this outhouse in Port Salerno seems to meet the requirements of the Martin County Health Department, but it does not meet the requirements of the Sanitary Pit Privy section of the State of Florida Division of Health Rules. Parks in school, will undergrowth and the poor condition of the building violates the law on the outside of the outhouses.

INSIDE OUTHOUSE--The condition of the inside of this outhouse in Port Salerno indicates the violations existing in this Martin County Health Department approved facility. Sunlight shining through the walls, rotted boards and litter violate the law.

ST. LUCIE—The smile of the fourteen-year-old boy is evidence of the thrill of catching a quite-five pound king in the ocean last Saturday. Rick Campbell smiled at his victory when Jamie Dennis gaffed the giant king and pulled it over the side. The ocean is full of such bonus fish for the taking. Rick was on the "Invisible II," captained by David Gale, when he landed the giant fish.

Lake Manor News

By CORRINE DAVENPORT

Betty and Guy Zwalen have returned from a trip to the Carolinas. They visited a daughter in Raleigh and had planned to go further, but because of severe storms, they decided to turn around and come home.

After Easter they will begin a two month tour to various cities from New York to Chicago, contacting advertisers and agencies for their forthcoming T.V. shows.

They have just concluded a merger with Ed Sullivan, who in the coming year, will no longer appear weekly but will present ten specials in 1972.

The Zwalens are presently working on negotiations with Lynn Anderson, the number one country music singer, Miss Anderson just recently won a Grammy award.

Incidentally, Guy is a most interesting person to interview. He told us that Bob Precht, who is executive vice president of Ed Sullivan Productions is Ed's son-in-law. Zwalen laughingly added, "And my son-in-law is vice president and so Ed and I had a good laugh, agreeing that its always good to keep things within the family."

Bullock has maintained close ties with Scotland. His mother, now 91, still lives there, as does the remainder of his family.

There are three sons, and nine grandchildren. One son, Jim, is an associate professor at the University of Mich. Ron is an associate professor at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo; and Russ is in the purchasing department of Sturgis Chair Company.

FRUITS OF THE DAY--Once the nets are in the boat, and the fishermen leave the ocean for the safety and comfort of the river, the work has just begun. Then the tedious, time-consuming chore of removing the mackerel from the net is begun. Riding at anchor, these fishermen toss the mackerel into the hold as they prepare their haul for the commercial fishing markets of Fort Salerno.

Wacha urges conservation

Everglades smoke burns eyes here

The County Commissioner Frank Wacha urged citizens Tuesday to conserve water until this drought breaks." Wacha told The Mirror that no plans to take any action were in the making for an "official drought," but said, "It is good common sense to conserve water at this time."

A soft southerly breeze brought the dense smoke of the burning fields of Everglades to the Jensen Beach-Port St. Lucie area Monday, smarting in the eyes of wondering citizens.

The smoke, mixed with the early morning fog clung to the savannas and hung over the rivers and ocean, obscuring vision and creating a smog-like haze.

The Indian River, a mile wide, was lost in the smog looking east, and residents could see only as far as the channel, a half mile across. Pelicans, usually grounded only by a cloudy, rainy day, huddled on pilings in the river, or rode on the gentle, rolling river.

Usually, such smog, smoke mixed with early morning fog, burns off as the day progresses, but it didn't Monday. A shift in the wind on Tuesday lessened the smog, but it was still there, and the smoke of the Everglades could still be recognized in smarting eyes and flaring nostrils of residents.

Hope for rain, the answer to the tinder-dry fields, savannas, trees and lawns of the area, was not too bright on Tuesday. Bright, sunny days, usually a boon to South Florida, began to bring concern to residents.

The state burning ban, instituted by Governor Reubin Askew a month ago, was still in effect, and will be until the need for water lessens. Lake Okeechobee is over three feet below normal, and water tables in the southern part of the state were dropping rapidly.

A fear of salt water intrusion into shallow wells of the area has been expressed, especially south of the Martin-St. Lucie County area, and South Florida, in Palm Beach, Broward and Dade Counties was on a rotural water-use plan by officials.

Conservation areas in western Palm Beach County, along with other counties, are dry, with only alligator holes providing water to the animals in the field.

No local reduction in water use is expected, but it may be necessary to curtail water use in the near future, if the drought, the worst in 25 years, does not break in the near future. It has been estimated that the drought will last at least three or four more weeks.

SMOKE--The morning fog and smoke from burning Everglades shrouded the Jensen Beach-Port St. Lucie area last Monday most of the day, obscuring Hutchinson Island, a mile across the Indian River. The farthest that one could see across the river was a half mile, or out to the channel of the Intracoastal Waterway.

Deci, formerly chairman of the forms of government committee, and architect of a six-point study for incorporation of Jensen Beach, will become [illegible] Deci of a completely reorganized board and president-ship.

The reorganization began under President Dean Tooker two years ago, and constitutional amendments reduced the board from 18 to 11, cutting terms of the directors from two and three years to one year terms.

This year, under outgoing president Jim Anderson, the board changed all but four members of the board.

Frank Wacha, county commissioner and past president of the Chamber of Commerce, will install officers. Wilfred (Mike) Dick Langford will be master of ceremonies for the Sunday social event.

A cocktail party is planned at the bar of the Outrigger at 6:30 p.m., with dinner following at 7:30 p.m.

Along with Deci, John Hartmann will be installed vice-president, Alfa Pfeifer, recording secretary, and Richard Swenson, treasurer.

Directors include John Chicky, Hamilton Wade and John Woodfield. Retiring directors to be installed include Dick Langford, Russ Lee and Jim Faulkner. They make up the board of directors with Wilbur Swing, automatic ex-past president director.

Health wins suit against septic tanks, issues 116

(Editor's note: The St. Lucie Health Department won a suit by Sussex Homes, Inc., developer of Orange Blossom Estates, trying to force the health department to issue septic tank permits for homes in the subdivision. Despite this victory, the health department issued at least 116 septic tank permits in twelve years to the development. This is the story.)

By DICK CAMPBELL

The Jensen Beach Mirror

It was August 13, 1958, when Sussex Homes, Inc. went to court to force the St. Lucie County Health Department, headed by Dr. Velli Miller, to issue septic tank permits to the subdivision, just getting started in the outskirts of the City of Ft. Pierce.

In a well-defined defense, based upon Florida law, the suit was quashed by Circuit Judge D. C. Smith. The St. Lucie County Health Department won a victory on August 29, 1958.

In a house court recently, The Mirror added 116 homes that have been issued septic tank permits in Orange Blossom Estates by the St. Lucie County Health Department, issued above and beyond the law with the permission of Dr. Miller, still director of the health department, and A. L. Richards, then, and now, tri-county environmental health director.

Over the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering added to the health law laxity by permitting, on the request of Dr. Miller, ten septic tank permits before the suit was filed, with full knowledge that the soil characteristics were not only not conducive to septic tank installation, but also were below state standards for septic tanks.

In a letter to Dr. Miller on April 18, 1958, Charles E. Cook, chief of the environmental section, wrote, "... The soil analysis reveals a relatively high water table at this season of the year, with medium fine sand underlined with some hard pan deposits. These soil characteristics are not conducive to long time satisfactory septic tank operation.

"It is also noted that this subdivision is outside but adjacent to existing city limits of Ft. Pierce. We have been informed by the City of Ft. Pierce that an extension of a 24 inch existing sanitary sewer to this general area is contemplated within the next 18 months and that sewer service will then be available to your lots.

"It is not the policy of the State Board of Health to sanction septic tank use in subdivisions especially where unfavorable soil characteristics exist and where sanitary sewer connections may soon be made; however, we will, in this case, agree to your issuing up to a maximum of ten septic tank permits on those lots found to be suitable by reason of soil conditions. These are to serve as temporary facilities pending the extension of city sewers."

Cook asked that a review of the area be considered after the ten permits were issued.

The actual suit grew out of that reappraisal, and on May 23, 1958, Cook notified J. M. Sample, attorney for Sussex Homes, Inc., that no more septic tank permits could be issued for the subdivision. Cook cited that the "...soil conditions revealed black and brown sand over impervious hard pan at from 12 inches to 24 inches with a ground water table at approximately 40 inches below surface during a relatively dry season."

On the basis of the scientific information relative to the soil condition, and state specifications for the standards of septic tanks, Judge Smith quashed Sussex Homes' suit.

Present health law standards for septic tanks are clear. In Section 10-D-6.09, State of Florida Division of Health Rules, the law clearly states that "...permit shall not be issued for an installation on a property, lot or building site unless in compliance with the following requirements:

(a) Uniform soil quality or characteristics existing from surface to depth of six feet. (Hard pan at Orange Blossom Estates began at 12 inches to 24 inches.)

(b) Free of impervious soils as clays, muck, hard pan, silt, marl, rock or other unsuitable soils to a depth of six feet. (The soil contained hard pan.)

The first three conditions for denying a septic tank permit, therefore, were broken by the health department when it issued the first ten septic tank permits to Orange Blossom Estates. Those permits have multiplied more than ten times over the past twelve years.

When the "temporary" ten septic tank permits were issued, based upon the extension of City of Ft. Pierce sewer mains to the area within "18 months", they were considered an effort to help the developer until such sewage mains were extended into the area of unsatisfactory soil characteristics. That was 12 years ago. No mains have been extended to the area.

At present the city commission makes it mandatory for annexation of any area being promised service by city sewers, and has, according to latest tests of the Indian River, improved the water quality of the Indian River to a great extent through a continuing effort to expand sewer system through the area.

What subject can turn the boudoir into a battlefield?

Money.

Let there be peace

Why can't we manage to enjoy money? Because most of us don't know how to manage money. That's where Master Charge® comes in.

Where did the money go?

Let's start where the problem does. The end of the month. You've used a lot of different charge cards and charge accounts to charge a lot of different things. The bills pour in. You don't know what you've spent where. And just when you think all the bills are in and paid, whom'p two more come in. With different billing dates.

You can eliminate this problem simply. Use Master Charge for all your purchases. At the end of the month, just one bill. One simple budget record of everything you've spent. Instead of writing 4 or 9 or 12 different checks, one check pays everything. And just one stamp to mail it in. Over the year it can save you time and money.

How to meet the unexpected

Another budget dilemma. Your income probably comes in regularly. But there are always unexpected emergencies that knock your budget for a loop. With Master Charge you can take care of that emergency, 'tem now, even though you don't have the money, and pay for it when you do. The same principle applies to buying things on sale or out of season when savings can be substantial. To meet the unexpected, Master Charge offers you a fine extended payment plan.

End the confusion

So today, get rid of all those charge cards, all those monthly bills, all those monthly checks. Get rid of all that confusion. Trade it for the simple life. Master Charge. One monthly bill, one card good in more places in the U.S.A. than any other card. And a Master Charge card is free.

Manage to enjoy your money, with Master Charge.

Now that you're making it, MANAGE IT!

JB -- Miss Nancy Ruth Clifton became the bride of Richard Kenneth Stewart on Saturday, April 2, at St. Andrew Lutheran Church, Port St. Lucie. The Rev. Grotefend officiated at the 4 p.m. double ring ceremony.

The new Mrs. Stewart is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Clifton of 46 S.W. South Drive, Jensen Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stuart of Skyline Drive, Jensen Beach, are parents of the groom.

Two large bouquets of mums, snapdragons and lilies adorned the white altar. Mrs. L. R. Adams of Fort Pierce, organist, accompanied Kraig Johnson of Jensen Beach who sang "O Perfect Love" and "Ich Liebe Dich".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length A-line gown fashioned in nylon organza, trimmed in val lace. Its Empire bodice featured a cluster of simulated pearls, wide banded Dresden sleeves and a high neckline, with a full chapel train attached. Her fingertip illusion veil headpiece was of val lace and simulated pearls. She carried a small white Bible with a large white orchid attached to it.

Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Stewart, sister of the groom, and Miss Jeanie Sprott, both of Jensen Beach. They were attired in floor length A-line gowns in light pink silk-look linen with the skirts falling from an Empire bodice accented with wide bows. The old fashioned look was carried out by high ruffled necklines and sheer bishop sleeves. They carried old fashioned bouquets of pink rosebuds and white daisies.

Miss Pat Clifton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her floor length A-line gown was of aqua silk-look linen. Its skirt fell from an Empire bodice, accented with a wide bow, and the old fashioned look was carried out by high ruffled neckline and sheer bishop sleeves. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of white rosebuds and pink carnations. All head pieces, which matched the dresses, were of large flat bows and illusion veiling.

The flower girl was Miss Laurie Barthis of Stuart who wore an A-line dress of pink nylon chiffon over matching pink taffeta trimmed with white lace and pink ribbon. Her head piece was a small flat bow matching her dress. She carried a small old fashioned bouquet of pink rosebuds and white daisies.

Ring bearer was Master Chris Donley of Tequesta, cousin of the bride. He was dressed in short black pants and white jacket and carried a white bridal pillow.

The bride's mother chose a sleeveless A-line dress of shocking pink, trimmed with gold. She wore a matching hat, gold accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mother of the groom chose an A-line dress of light blue with short sleeves. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of white carnations.

At the reception held at St. Lucie Hilton Country Club, the bride's table was decorated with a centerpiece of white carnations and mums, a three tier wedding cake and silver candelabra.

Best man was Earl Cooper, brother-in-law of the groom, of Stuart. Ushers were Ray Gomes, Indiantown, Gerald Stratton, Jacksonville, cousin of the groom, and Edward Stewart, Jensen Beach, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Karen Joan Donley, Tequesta, cousin of the bride, handled the bride's book.

For her going away outfit the new Mrs. Stewart wore a red pants suit. Following a tour of the state, they are at home at Tropical Acres Trailer Park, Jensen Beach. She is a 1970 graduate of Martin County High School. He graduated from MCHS in 1968.

Strong openings of two in a suit

This bid is forcing to game--both partners are obligated to keep bidding until game is reached. Requirements:

1. The opening hand must be within one trick of game. Nine sure tricks in either major suit, or two sure tricks in either minor suit.

2. The opening bidder will generally either: 25 points and a very good 5 card trump suit, or 23 points and a very good 6 card suit, or 21 points and a very good 7 card suit.

Unless there is an intervening bid by your opponent, the partner of the opening two bidder must keep the bidding alive until game is reached. Examples:

1. S-A 3 2 H-K 9 5 D-A 10 8 C-J 4 3; 2 C-2 D-3 C; 3 H-A 3 D-K Q J 4 3; 4 H.

2. S-void H-A K 10 9 8 7 6 D-K Q J 4 3 C-void; 2 H-3 S-A K Q 8 7 6 H-A 3 D-A 10 9 C-A 6 5; 3 S-4 3 2 H-A K Q 8 7 6 D-A 4 C-A 6 5; 4 H.

Responder should respond 2 no trump with 6 or less points. Should make a positive response with 7-10 points including 1 defensive trick, or 8 or more points and a half a defensive trick. Partner's suit must be supported with 3 cards or at least one of his 4 cards is a picture.

The opening bid is 2 diamonds. You hold:

S-K 9 8 7 6 H-A 10 9 8 4 2 D-4 3 2 C-void; Bid 2 no trump and then spades (if given the opportunity).

2. S-K 9 8 7 6 5 H-4 D-A K Q 5 4 3 2 C-void; bid 2 spades indicating interest in possible slam. Raise diamonds later.

3. S-4 3 2 H-7 6 5 4 3 D-4 2 C-A 9 8 6 5; Bid 2 no trump, if partner bids diamonds bid four trump, permitting partner to pass or continue on to 6 diamonds as he chooses.

Later in the program we will be discussing weak 2 bids which are increasingly being used by our better players, and we will discuss the pros and cons of strong versus weak 2 bids, for the little feeling, that will be strong 2 bids, but be sure that are strong enough.

Dr. Penick joins protest of health enforcement

"Why there hasn't been an epidemic of major proportions is beyond my medical comprehension. . ."

Dr. ... Richard W. Penick, general practitioner in Jensen Beach and past president of the Tri-County Medical Association, protested the failure of the Environmental Health Department to enforce health laws in a letter to The Mirror this week.

In his letter, Penick cited the "unbelievable series of articles exposing the gross inadequacies and flagrant violations of existing statutes as tolerated and seemingly are encouraged by the present officers of the St. Lucie - Okeechobee - Martin County Health Department."

Penick wrote, "I have observed in the health departments' shortcomings and its non-sensible, hypocritic attitude for the past fifteen years, why there hasn't been an epidemic of major proportions is beyond my medical comprehension. . . The only fact that there has been no report of any such in the stories made in the articles mentioned is due to the vigilance of your research and the validity of your conclusions," Penick added. "Please write more."

Penick, a retired railroader, has developed a lake on the property where his office is located, off the SR 707 in South Jensen Beach, where he has created a wildlife preserve for migratory game birds and other wildlife which he has named "Lake Repose". His concern for the protection of the environment is backed by years of personal development of his own "wilderness beauty spot".

The Jensen Beach doctor issued a call for a local health department, saying, "The sight there are citizens of Martin County denied our own health officers and department."

Referring to a recently retired U.S. Army sanitarian with eleven years experience in the field, Penick wrote, "It will qualified officials, (scientific, objective), truthfull, and that read."

"That is the problem," Dael said. "Everyone has them, but they will never get solved by deeding their existance."

The dining opening the annual Chamber installation dinner at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant applauded heartily at the end of Dael's three-minute speech, which climaxed at hour long program.

Installed as officers and directors by County Commissioner Frank Martin, himself a past president of the Chamber (1965), were: John Herbert, vice president, Wilda Talley, secretary, Richard Newton, treasurer, and directors Ken Lauder, Jim Chicky, Faye Gay, Dick Campbell, Hamilton Wade and Walter Noethlich.

Martin called the Chamber of Commerce the repository for the secret hopes of Jensen Beach, and asked that the officers and directors handle their responsibility with care.

Outgoing president Don Wilkie offered his advice to Dael after being presented a plaque as past president. Frank Forsberg, ... past president, also ... past presidents of the Chamber.

Shopping center violations approved by health officials

DRAIN FIELD--Up against the building, in violation of the state sanitary code, is this drain field for effluent from a beauty parlor in the South Jensen Beach Shopping Center. Heavy growth indicates lots of moisture and high nutrient content of the effluent.

(Editor's note: Not only is there lax health law enforcement, but also there are outright violations of Divisions of Health statutes by Tri-County Health Department officials. This is one example.)

By DICK CAMPBELL
Copyright, 1971
The Jensen Beach Mirror

The sump and grease trap is covered loosely with boards, is not fly-tight, and is in direction violation of Chapter 10-D-6,11 - 3 and Chapter 10-D-6,11 - 7 of the State of Florida Division of Health rules.

It was approved by W. A. Richards, Director of sanitation for the Tri-County Health Department, and Richard Starr, regional engineer for the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, as being the best method of disposing of sewage from the South Jensen Beach Shopping Center.

It cost the L & S Corporation, owners of the shopping center, $110 in March and over $1,000 in the past year, to pump out the illegal sump and grease trap, and has been a major problem since it was installed to serve the shopping center over ten years ago.

Alongside the west end of the shopping building, up against the structure, extended about four feet from the wall to the curbing that holds soil back from the private road that channels traffic to Langford Hall Park, is a drain field, lush with high nutrient growth of ground cover plants.

The drain field is in direct violation of Section 10-D-6,06-3 of the State of Florida Division of Health rules, R, too, was approved by Richards and Starr. Drain fields must be five feet from a building, according to law.

"Dick Starr and Bill Richards stood right there and told me that it would be the only answer to handle the shopping center wastes," said Ed Lawrence, general manager of the corporation.

The drain field serves the beauty parlor in the shopping center. Dubious percolation is achieved due to the filled land characteristics. It is up against the building.

The grease trap and sump are something out of a book. The system was originally designed to handle a small restaurant with only a few seats. A septic tank was installed. Under the operation of Alex Milan, the restaurant grew from a few seats to one of the most popular restaurants in the area.

Now sold Milan that a sewage plant was required to handle wastes from as large a restaurant as he had built. The partial system was plagued with problems throughout its operation of the facility.

When L & L Corporation bought the shopping center five years ago, leased the restaurant, and remodeled into Frances Langford's Villa Capri Restaurant, the Martin County Health Department issued another violation permit, causing the reopening of the restaurant with illegal sewage treatment facilities.

Since that time, Lawrence said, "we have had to have the septic tank and grease trap pumped out three or four times a month, at a cost of many dollars for each pumping."

Lawrence didn't know that Florida law specifies that a restaurant with the volume of Villa Capri requires, by law, a sewage treatment plant. He was not informed of the need by the health department, and bought a package of problems in his operation.

Sewage from a restaurant is a difficult waste to handle, according to local sanitarians. Those with state licenses refuse to take maintenance of the shopping center, as they could lose their licenses for operations of the facility if the laws were not enforced properly, Lawrence said he had with additional pumpings of the grease trap and sump, inadequate facilities approved by the Department of Health.

In an effort to help the situation, recently a small complement was installed to aerate the sludge, but it was not effective.

The sump is nothing more than a long hole in the ground, covered with a wooden, tar-papered cover. The grease clogs the sand in the bottom of the hole, there is no percolation of the effluent into the soil, and the pumping is necessary. Cooke Septic Tank Service has the contract to pump out the sump, which violates 10-D-6,11-3, "It is prohibited to drain sewage wastes or septic tank effluent into cesspools or dry wells as a means of disposal", and 10-D-6,11-5, "Any septic tank construction in non-compliance with regulations and septic tank standards set forth in this chapter shall be deemed improper, faulty, unapproved, prohibited and will constitute a violation of the State Sanitary Code."

One experienced sanitarian told The Mirror, "I don't know where the effluent from the health parlor goes, probably into the storm sewers along the highway."

The answer to the problem would be the establishment of a sewage plant that would handle all the waste of the shopping center, and of the cottages in the rear of the shopping center so that human wastes could be added to the sewage, making treatment easier for the plant. Possibly the entire complex of buildings could be tied together, including the near-by motel and bowling alleys, but that would be the organizational job of the health department.

"This shows the crying need for some central sewage system for this area," the sanitarian said.

Lawrence was shocked by revelations of The Mirror investigation and said he planned to seek information on improving the system of sewage treatment from the shopping center.

"I thought that the approval of the health department officials meant that we were handling the sewage properly," Lawrence said. "I just assumed that the pumping out weekly was a part of it. We want to do it right. They should tell us what to do!"

THE SUMP--This long ditch was described as a "long hole in the ground" and is in violation of state health codes. The sump, at the rear of South Jensen Shopping Center, was approved by local health officials.

Plants presented to Jensen School

Two croton plants were presented to Dale Lefty, principal of Jensen Beach School, by the Junior Woman's Club of Stuart recently.

Making the presentation was Mrs. R. E. Aderholdt, club president. The plants were purchased by the conservation department of the club.

The club also presented five new books dealing with ecology to the Julian D. Parker Elementary School.

Health responsibility pinpointed

The finest, most understanding comment in our continuing battle to bring about adequate enforcement of Florida's health laws came last week from Don Reed, minority leader of the Florida House of Representatives.

Reed's praise of our series as "a real contribution toward better government", and comment that the series is "newspaper reporting at its very best and the most responsible" is certainly appreciated. But Reed made a telling point, a point that has been missed by most, in his other comments.

"Individuals and groups often demand laws when our laws are adequate to solve the problem....the real need is for proper implementation and enforcement of our present laws. This is true in so many areas," he wrote.

"The legislative branch has done a pretty credible job of trying to provide good legislation in the past few years. The problem is that the executive branch has not kept pace in enforcing the laws. Good legislation can accomplish nothing if it is neglected," he concluded.

The appraisal of the problem facing this state in enforcement of health laws is deep and telling. It points the finger of responsibility to the executive arm, the administrative branch of government.

That finger of responsibility begins with the Governor of Florida, and works down through the maze of governmental agencies to the local health department.

Others in the House of Representatives take the misunderstanding of our mission. In a letter to The Mirror, David Cone, able to the Committee on Environmental Pollution Control, wrote that the Mirror series had been received, and added, "I believe our committee will find this information helpful in considering pollution control laws which will aid in the protection of our natural resources."

We are not interested in more laws, we are only interested in legislative mandate to the executive branch demanding the enforcement of laws already on the books.

Our hard-working legislators are having problems deciding where the responsibility lies. Rep. Raymond J. Moudry wrote us, praising our efforts, and referred his material to "one of the representatives on the Air and Water Pollution Control Committee, who hopefully he will further see what can be done to correct the problem."

Unfortunately, Air and Water Pollution has no jurisdictive over the Division of Health, and at present there is animosity between the two state organizations.

There is a bill before the legislature that would take the responsibility for septic tanks and sewers from the Division of Health and turn it over to Air and Water Pollution. This might solve an immediate need for enforcement, but it does not recognize the absolute failure of the Division of Health to enforce statutes now on the books, laws passed that were intended to protect the public health, nor does it insure the enforcement of those laws not transferred from Health.

Last week the House passed a bill co-authored by Dave Clark, local representative of Martin and Palm Beach, that would allow citizens to file suits for pollution violations. It is a move in the right direction, unless we recognize that enforcement is a responsibility of the Division of Health, and that there are statutes already on the books allowing such legal action to be taken by the legal agency for enforcement, the Division of Health.

Clark recognized the "under-funded and under-staffed" health departments, but underfunding and understaffing of departments does not have anything to do with the departments giving law-violating septic tank permits to subdivisions with land that does not meet the legal limits for issuing such permits, or departments that allow law-violating outhouses to exist, misleading county officials on their legal status, or any other violations of the law that have been actually induced by the health department as the Tri-County Health Department has done, and as other health departments throughout the state have done.

Don Reed's recognition of the problem, that laws exist to handle health requirements of the people of Florida but are not enforced by the executive branch, reaches the root of what The Mirror series of lax health law enforcement has been about.

Where, then, do we go from here?

We believe that the Florida Cabinet should issue a mandate, backed by appropriate resolutions of the Florida House of Representatives and Florida Senate, demanding proper health law enforcement from the top echelons of government down to the smallest county health unit.

And then, if those responsible do not enforce the laws already on the books, the governor should begin housecleaning, from top to bottom.

Spring ahead behind

LIFE ...and love it

by Dick Campbell

Take one step back and you'll make it. Spring ahead in the Spring and fall back in the Fall. Take a giant step forward...oh, nuts.

I'd like to say that some dumb reporter wrote the daylight savings time article last week in The Mirror, but we don't have a dumb reporter, just me. I did it.

I'll shout it from the rooftops. I did it. I was the dum-dum who wrote the daylight savings time article that seems to have caused everyone to get into so many fights and bets around the countryside.

It all started last Tuesday, when I was talking with Lou Tranowski. He was arguing with me about whether you move the clock forward, or back, when daylight savings time comes.

"Spring up in Spring," I said firmly, "it happens at two in the morning, so you spring the clock up to one o'clock, and that means you move back to get more daylight," I said.

"Oh, no, you're wrong," said Lou, "You move the clock forward."

"We argued for a while, and then Lou said, "You're right. You move it back."

Lou then went away happy in his new-found knowledge, assured that he would do it right.

I went away, firm in my conviction that I had it right. I wrote the story, put it in the paper, went home to sleep, and was pleased that we had an up to date article for our folks, who love us and know that if they read it in the paper it certainly must be right.

Then came Wednesday. The telephones began ringing. People would shout across the street, "Hey, dum-dum. What on you do with your clock when you go to daylight savings time?" Little children snickered as I walked by. Little old ladies bathed their blemished their faith and trust in the "Truth" of The Mirror shaken.

I heard of several fights over the article.

"I held it in my hand, and swore that it couldn't be wrong. We must have argued for an hour," said one. Others looked as though they had been had by The Mirror.

I walked into the First National Bank, and all the tellers lined up to snicker as Jim Anthony shouted across the lobby, "Hey, Campbell...what do you do with the clock for daylight savings time?" I crawled down the length of the lobby, hiding in the area between the floor and the moulding.

Ralph Evinrude called me early Sunday morning. He was getting ready to leave for Milwaukee, and almost missed his plane because he read the paper.

"Hey, don't you know you've got this wrong on daylight savings time?" he said.

"Yes, I know," I mumbled.

"I was just laughing about it with Frances. I wanted to know if you knew..."

"I know," I grumbled.

"Okay, then go back to bed, I'm leaving town."

I wished I could at that time.

What can I say, except, "I blew it". I guess I have said it a hundred times in this past week.

But just wait. This fall I will get it right, wait and see. I'll get it right or know the reason why. All I have to do is remember the easy little saying that everyone uses to know which way to move the clock.

Jump down in the Spring, fall up in the...no, that's not it. Hop out in April, and all the rest have thirty-one. No. Don't shoot til you see the whites of...no. Well, anyway, I'm sure I'll get it right whenever it comes time to move the clock either back or forward this Fall...or at least next Spring.

I was walking out of the Jensen Grill, had just paid my check, when a couple of the fuzzy boys who always hang out there made a few barbles about my bow-tie.

A grizzled old veteran was paying for his coffee, picked up a mint, and said what I should have said all along.

Moola Madness

My favorite banker and I were having a little talk the other day. About the state of my account, the condition of the world, pollution, the state of my account, the horrible thought of the middle east, woman's lib, and the state of my account.

Banker (we'll answer everything except the state of my account, he leaned back in his chair and eyed me suitably.

"Life," he said, "is hard."

"Really," I murmured, gathering up my cancelled checks with the teal stains on them.

"Yes," he said. "But interesting, why, banking is fun these days! Banks are getting modern and competitive. They're giving premiums to attract new customers, and that's good, because it helps us with the times, you know."

He leaned back in his chair, closed his eyes and went to sleep, indicating that our little talk was over.

Of course, he's right, banks these days are competing for the customer's favor just as any other business. And they're giving things away to do it, something that was unheard of just a few short years ago.

After I got back to the office, I thought of a mythical encounter with the mythical friend, Joe Zilch. And the time I saw him with a shiner that would do credit to a Tareyton commercial.

"What happened," I said, really-not-giving-a-darn.

"It's a sordid story," he said, sadly. "Do you really want to hear it?"

"Just the sordid part," I said.

"Well," he said, doing push-ups, "you've seen those ads This Moola Savings Bank has been running in the paper, haven't you?"

"You mean," I yawned, "the one about where they'll give you all kinds of home appliances if you open up an account with them?"

"Yeah, that's the one," he said. "Well, the other day I went over there and opened separate accounts for myself, Suzy, and the three kids. And walked out with five gifts."

"So?" I said.

"So, when I got home, I thought it'd wait until after dinner to tell Suzy. You know, when she was nicely rested from washing, ironing, cleaning house, taking care of the kids, hanging the drapes, waxing the floors, shopping at the store and cooking dinner. Stuff like that."

"How thoughtful," I murmured.

He rubbed his shiner, gingerly. "Yeah," he said. "Well, after she'd served dinner, cleared the table, washed the dishes, put the kids to bed, brought me my brandy and pipe and slippers, polished the silver and paid the bills, I gave her the good news."

"Sweetie-face, I took all our savings out of the bank today," I said.

"You did what?" she said with this little frozen smile.

"Yeah. And that antique set of china your mother left you, and the grandfather clock and Uncle Carl's bear in your family for years?"

"What about them," she sort of whispered with this real funny look on her face.

"Well, I sold them."

"You did what?" she yelled.

"I sold them, baby-doll. So we could get some of those wonderful gifts just by opening savings accounts at the friendly Moola Savings Bank with the friendly officers all over town."

"Atleast you didn't spend it on six-packs," she snarled, getting a little red-faced, I thought.

"No, doll-face, I put it all in the friendly Moola Bank and got you some really wonderful things. Like this Pre'ior six-button blender. Now you can mix me a decent daiquiri instead of that dishwater you've been slopping into my glass. And this Ingraham Timer for turning on the coffee pot and toaster for when you serve me breakfast in bed. And this Thermos three-piece picnic set for when you pack lunch for me and the gang to go fishing. And for when we let you come along you can carry the ice and beer in this Ladies' Tote-Bag, adjustable, with waterproof lining!

So, baby-doll, don't say I shouldn't have. Nothing's too good for my little wife."

"Well, the best thing I know, she suddenly went nuts and hit me with the last gift, a Wood Bound Teflon Frypan. So, I ask, Mumsie, how do you figger 'em? Best thing, then'll be wanting the vote..."

Bitter.

The fire story

It took ten companies and three forest fire services to douse the flames of a gigantic forest fire that took the northern part of Jonathan Dickinson State Park and threatened Hobe Sound and surrounding communities with fire.

The disaster pointed up the power of nature, the extent of the drought, worst in sixty years in South Florida, and the cost of fire fighting in this area.

We have withheld comment on the effort of the county fire chief to consolidate the forest fire service for Martin County until we have all the facts on the service. We do not particularly like the idea of taking what the people have been doing themselves and having government do it because it is there.

We also do not like the idea of the forest service coming into the county with the idea that "this is all you have to pay, and the state pays the rest", forgetting that we are the state.

In addition, we do not like the idea that "if you don't take the money, somebody else will get it". We know that appropriations for such projects are like items that become permanent items in appropriations bills before the Florida Legislature after they are included in master budgets.

We hope that any bill that would be passed on the state forest fire service would be attached to a referendum, so that the people could debate the issue, but we find that there would be no such referendum attached if the Florida Legislature passed the bill this year, and we are opposed to that.

The people should certainly have the right to debate the pros and cons of such legislation. We would insist on that right.

But, again, though we have listed strong questions as to the advisability of the forest fire service, we leave the door open to information establishing the validity of the need for such a service, the resources of the people to such a service, and the service that would be provided by the service if it were taken by the people of Martin County.

The people should know, and have a right to know, what they are buying. Thus far, we are not impressed.

Advertising makes it go

Mrs. Virginia H. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer adviser, is quoted in a news dispatch as telling the advertising industry it will either have to reform itself or be reformed by the government. She says, "As I travel around the country, one question keeps recurring from the housewives I meet. They want to know why so many advertisers women like children, think of them as a certain housewife be treated like a moron? Is the best selling appeal one which insults a person's intelligence..." Unfortunately, in advertising as in any other human undertaking, there are those that Mrs. Knauer terms "...not so decent, not so honorable. There are those who believe integrity is something one can sell or buy for a few dollars."

While paying due heed to the words of the President's consumer adviser, one should not lose sight of the fact that advertising is an indispensable feature of the free market. Millions of reputable firms present through advertising for consumer consideration the goods and services which make life not only pleasant but livable. Informative advertising saves consumers' money and promotes high-volume distribution of luxuries, as well as necessities. It tells the consumer what is available in the marketplace and where.

Mrs. Knauer might have added that those guilty of shoddy, misleading advertising are fooling no one in the long run for the simple reason consumers are far from morons and through the exercise of free choice can reject products that are accompanied by objectionable promotion.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor:

Because we had a drive last December, the people in Martin County are wondering why we are having another one so soon. I would like to explain that as best as I can. The days between Mothers Day and Fathers Day have been designated as multiple sclerosis days. Last year our committee chairman, Mrs. Farney, didn't think she could handle the four counties in our chapter all at one time so St. Lucie and Martin Counties had their drive in December of 1970. This year we are going to join the rest of the country and have the drive in May of 1971, and then we won't be out again until May 1972.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Diane C. Simonsen
Area chairman
Martin County

To the editor:

I appreciate receiving your letter and clippings concerning the laxity in health law enforcement in Martin County.

The efforts of such concerned citizens as you greatly aid in correcting such deficiencies by calling this to the attention of the responsible parties.

I have presented some of the clippings you sent me to one of the Representatives on the Air and Water Pollution Control Committee, and hopefully he will further see what can be done to correct the problem.

With kindest regards,

Very truly yours,
Rep. Raymond J. Moudry
House of Representatives
Tallahassee

To the editor:

Your series on the various health units is a real contribution toward better government. This is newspaper reporting at its very best and its most responsible.

Individuals and groups often fail to demand laws when our laws are adequate to solve the problem....the real need is for proper implementation and enforcement of our present laws. This is true in so many areas.

The legislative branch has done a pretty credible job of trying to provide good legislation in the past few years. The problem is that the executive branch has not kept pace in enforcing the laws. Good legislation can accomplish nothing if it is neglected.

Best personal regards.

Sincerely,
Donald H. Reed, Jr.
Minority Leader
House of Representatives
Tallahassee

To the editor:

Thank you for your letter of April 14 and the articles from The Jensen Beach Mirror on our health law enforcement.

Your continuing investigation into the lack of enforcement in the Tri-County area is fine reporting and a service to the citizens of the three counties.

I am sending the articles you sent me to Dr. Ray for his information, and his investigation.

Keep up the good work and with kindest regards, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
Jerry Thomas
President
The Florida Senate

To the editor:

I have read with interest your editorials about the pollution problems in Stuart parks. I agree with you that something needs to be done at once.

Last week the House passed a bill which, as I understand it, is very inadequate and I strongly urge that it be vetoed. It will allow individuals to bring actions to stop pollution. This right has not yet passed the senate.

I have taken the liberty of sending your editorials to the committee on Environmental Pollution Control and urge them for their support in this matter concerning this bill. There is a bill pending to transfer the duties from the pollution control from the Health Department to the Pollution Control Department.

As you know, the present Health Department is under-funded and under-staffed. I have urged them to do something about the sewage treatment plant in my home town of Palm Beach, and to the best of my knowledge, nothing has been done.

I appreciate your interest in this matter and if I can be of help in the future, please let me know. I would like to receive a copy of your letter to call on me.

With personal regards,

David L. Clark
House of Representatives

To the editor:

While you are on the subject of garbage, I think you should suggest that garbage be processed and returned back into the earth as humus. There's a whole lot of better nutritional value in that than those fertilizers and chemicals that are sold for your lawn.

The processing of garbage could be a big industry and would go far to help us all to reclaim the land that is now in the dump, and return it for use as productive farmland. It would help our health, and would help us to resort to nature.

It would take a processing plant, and I have no idea where that there is one in the country and I don't think that is doing just that. Chinese were growing crops centuries ago and I guess they had still to...

Yours for a cleaner world,

By JAY H. MANS
Strong two bids

Stuart—Standard American opening two bids are not difficult to handle if you stay with the prescribed requirements. A few players will open 2 spades with far less than the required holding and the complaint bitterly when things go wrong. When asked why they opened the auction with a 2 bid they usually say, "I was afraid my partner would pass me out." The simple answer: If your partner has to pass a bidding that he cannot keep your 1 bid open, you will not make game anyway.

The 2 demand bid is forcing to game...neither must keep the bidding open until game is reached for the opponents doubled, or bid competitively. A simple format for requirements: If you open 2 in either major suit, you should have 9 sure tricks. If you open 2 in a minor suit you should hold 10 sure tricks. Your hand will generally count up to 25 points and a good 5 card suit, 23 points and a good 6 card suit, or even 21 points with a good 7 card suit. I follow with a few reasonable examples.

1. ♠-A K Q J 10 9 6, H-A Q J 4, D-x-x, C-A.
2. ♠-void, H-A K Q 9 8 6, D-K Q J 4 3, C-x.
3. ♠- A 4 3 2, H-A K Q J 9 8 7, D-A 4, C-A.

And that is all there is to it. Now for responses to strong opening 2 bids.

1. The responder must bid until game is reached. 2. Respond 2 no trump (a negative bid) with 8 or less points. 3. Make a positive response with 3 or more points including one defensive trick, or 8 or more points and half a defensive trick. Partner's suit may be supported with 3 cards to an honor or any 4 small 4 cards.

For example: The opening bid is 2 diamonds. You hold: ♠-K x 8 7 6 4, H-9 8 4 2, D-4 3 2, C-void. Proper response 2 no trump. Your second bid may be spades. Opening bid is 2 diamonds. You hold: ♠-A x 8 6 5 2, H-4, D-A x 6 5, C-4 3 2. bid 2 spades, your next bid diamonds.

4. Opening bid 2 diamonds. You holds: ♠-4 3 2, H-7 6 5 4, D-4 2, C-x 8 6 5, bid 2 no trump. Second bid: 3 no trump.

A number of players are using weak 2 bids, which invade the use of strong 2 bids. Next issue.

The Mr. and Mrs. Julius Seeman of Pepper Park are entertaining their daughter and her family for a week. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hyde are visiting here with their children, Sara 16 and Luther 11, all from Chicago.

Scouts seek $7000

Stuart—A goal of $7000 has been set for this year's fund raising drive for the Sailfish District of the Boy Scouts of America, according to Dennis Hudson, Jr., chairman of the local committee. He is assisted by Carlton Junker.

Harvey Glascock, district chairman, said the money will be used for activities in this community. The Sailfish District has 386 boys involved in scouting troops, five cub packs and two explorer posts.

The new chapter at Pine Cherry Lane in Martin Highett was recently organized before Boy Scout Strings, using the letter name of Attala Chapter.

Hyde, Orville Highett and Jesse Highett will serve as council president of Jensen Beach.

In 10 out of 10 marriages today, what separates the men from the women?
Money.
Come on, kiss and make up!
Sure, handling money can be a problem. Today, it's more complex than ever. But now, you can get a little help from a friend. Master Charge.
Bills and more bills
How many bills do you get at the end of the month? Chances are you'd rather not answer. Chances are, bills are coming in from all directions. And it's hard to know who, when and where. If you'd like to get to the root of the problem, just add up the number of charge cards and charge accounts in your possession. The answer: too many. You only need one.
One card, one bill
By using Master Charge for all your purchases, you get only one bill at the end of the month. With a complete record of what you've bought everything. This means you write just one check for all items. And it takes just one stamp to mail it in.
Easy? You bet it is. And it works.
Can payments be extended?
Master Charge understands there are times when budgets are tight. That's why we offer even, card holder the privilege of extended payments. If you don't choose to extend your payments, there's no charge at all. What's more, you get your Master Charge card free. No membership fee. No annual dues.
The cure for emergencies
Emergencies have the regard for your income. They test their heads when least expected. Or you can never tell when a store will come up with a sale that can save you a lot of money. It's nice to know your Master Charge can handle either situation.
There's no better time than right now to let your Master Charge card help you budget together, get your bills together, get you together.
Now that you're making it. MANAGE IT!

House delivery is bid

PSL -- Residents in the north section of the City of Port St. Lucie would like the postman to deliver mail right to their door, according to a petition submitted to the PSL City Council recently.

"They are in the city and are entitled to delivery," Mayor Eugene Kavanaugh said at the City Council meeting Tuesday. However, residents must have mail boxes up at the house before the Fort Pierce postmaster will agree to have the mail delivered, Kavanaugh said.

"Lakehurst will be no problem because of the concentration of houses," he said, but the isolated houses might be a problem."

The Council agreed to contact the Fort Pierce postmaster requesting delivery.

Lake Manor News

By CORRINE DAVENPORT

At the April 20 business meeting at the clubhouse it was voted to adjourn until next November.

Ed Jones reported that the new oxygen equipment has been purchased and funds sufficient to cover costs have been collected from park residents.

The alligator, whose appearance on March 1 caused so much interest has not been seen in the lake since Monday evening. It is assumed he must have returned overland to his former home quite possibly in the Savannahs.

Anyhow, after a day or two of watching, the ducks apparently felt free to swim again in the lake.

We agree the effort in reporting that it was lonesome, rather than lack, also maneuvered the alligator underground like alligators from underground to another pond, from the lake.

Bruce Butler of Boswell, Ind. has been visiting his grandparents Susie and Dale Butler. He was accompanied by his friend, Miss Donna Vrazas of Louisville, Ky.

Bruce has been stationed at Fort Knox, for over a year and will leave for Vietnam on May 15.

Bernadette and Ken Dubuque have left to spend the summer at their home in Peru, N.Y.

Ethel and Clair Brewer have returned to their home in Lakewood, Ohio.

We are indeed sorry to learn that Susie and Dale Butler are selling their home in Lake Manor. We hope they still change their minds during the summer.

They left Tuesday for their home in Boswell, Ind.

Round Robin shuffleboard games played on April 15 were: first place: Agnes Moran; second place: Ann Orefice, Clair Brewer, Lee Tucker, and third place: Jac Hollenbacher and Jerry Goeman.

Lake Manor won the contest, a social hour followed, refreshments were served.

Three fields

Langford Park plans expansion, lighting

JB—A major expansion of facilities at Langford Park in Jensen is being accomplished with volunteer labor and the desire for a park that will "do the job" for the citizens of the area, according to Vincent Bocchino, park director.

Installation of six new light poles, sixty feet high, was being completed last week at the park. Lights for Bocchino Field were transferred to the new, taller poles, and in the near future the fence surrounding the outfield of that park will be moved back so that there is a 275 foot minimum for baseball on the field.

The east field and Bocchino Field will have a combole fence in center field, and the present eight-foot fence will be replaced with a sixteen-foot fence, according to Bocchino.

Four volunteers worked on the project Saturday through the day, stopping only for the thunderstorm that passed over Jensen Beach. By early evening they had most of the lights changed to the new poles.

The former poles will be moved to light the tennis courts and the basketball courts, according to County Commissioner Frank Wacha, who, with Bocchino, designed the moves.

A third field is being readied, and is "now in good enough condition to practice on," Wacha said. The new north field will have 275 foot depth on the sidelines, but will be laid for daylight play, with no present plans for providing lighting for night play.

"We'll save that field ready in a week or so, as soon as we can get the volunteers and the equipment to do the job of laying it out," Wacha said.

The new backstop on the field has already been installed.

Heavy play of little league, peanut league, and pony league baseball, slow pitch softball for girls, and slow pitch leagues for men have kept the present two fields at capacity for the past few weeks, and will into the summer.

State-wide tournaments are planned for the three fields as Jensen Beach becomes noted for its facilities among slow-pitch teams in the state. The annual Fitzworks Invitational Slow Pitch Tournament is expected to bring over 40 teams to Jensen Beach in July, and Bocchino said he was planning to invite top pony and Connie league teams to the area to play in other tournaments in the future.

MAKING — Billie Bowers assisted with installation of new power lines and specialty vase and lights for the baseball field at Langford Park last Saturday as the field expansion program got in high gear.

No referendum

Forest Fire Service hearing is slated

JB—A public hearing will be held at the county courthouse on May 18 at 8 a.m., to get the feelings of the public toward the state forest fire service, according to Dr. Bill Rivers, chairman of the county commission.

The meeting is important in that if it is agreed that the county wants the service a bill must be passed in the Florida legislature to begin the service in the the next year, slated for operation in the fall at the end of the legislature session.

County officials have related mixed emotions about the service, but most important, according to Myers, is that the service would not be tied to a public referendum on the subject. If the bill passed the Florida Legislature it would automatically begin such service as an administrative action of the county commission.

Myers made the report and called for the public hearing after he received last Friday that a bill could be passed in this session of the legislature. He advertised the public hearing so that the formal details of the bill's consideration would be met.

The bill was not considered by the legislative delegation of Martin County in public hearings held here last February, at which time the chairman of the delegation said there would be no bills entered in the legislature that were not discussed in public hearings of that time.

The Martin County Fire Chief's Association brought the forest fire service to the attention of the county commission, when the record drought taxed volunteer firemen efforts over the first four months of the year. Volunteer budgets are overspent by more that $30,000 due to the high number of brush fires, a prime responsibility of the state fire service.

Martin County is one of seven counties in the state that is not participate in the forest fire service, and voted down the proposal in 1962 in a freeholder's referendum.

Salvation Army unit planned for county

JB—A service unit for Martin County has been slated by the Salvation Army, according with a local fund drive facing Salvation Army boss May 10-17th.

Heading the new service unit will be Ed Bassett, chairman, with James Crooks, treasurer, Edwin Meninger, Mrs. Harriet Elkins, Glen Sutton, and Mrs. Jo, Chalifoux, John Sound, and Richard Campbell, Jensen Beach.

A letter appeal to local residents for funding of the new service unit is planned during the week, proclaimed by Dr. Bill Myers, chairman of the county commission.

The Salvation Army has been serving the Martin County area, through the Ft. Pierce office, and has been active in family assistance, aiding those who are in need, ill, or needy children with size or dental problems.

The new service unit will make more available the nationwide service of the army, such as maternity care for unwed mothers, rehabilitation centers for men, emergency lodges, camping for children, young men and women and families, a missing persons service, correctional service, emergency disaster service, and "League of Mercy" visitations in hospitals and institutions.

Captain Tom Louis, local Salvation Army leader, announced that the SA will become a part of the Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund in its 1971 drive.

Mrs. Hanson H. Tilton, president of the Jensen-Rio UF, said Monday, "We welcome the Salvation Army to this area. It is one of the most highly respected service institutions in America today, and deserves a fitting place in our community."

CROSSARMS—Chuck Conner, volunteer lineman, put up another crossarm on the new light poles being installed at Bocchino Field in Langford Park, a part of a massive expansion program now under way. Six sixty-foot light poles were installed around the field.

Fire ban continues

Arson plagues fire fighters

JB — The worsening drought is problem enough in Under Dr. Martin and St. Lucie Counties, but arsonists are making the job of fighting fires even worse, according to Jensen Beach Fire Chief Randolph Spinney.

Three cases of suspected arson and arson attempts indicate the problems of the intentionally set fire. In one case a youth between ten and twelve was involved, in two other cases they were teenagers.

The recent brush fire on Hutchinson Island that threatened homes along the beach and caused hours of dangerous fire-fighting to already exhausted local firemen was attributed to arson.

A report of two young men in a pickup truck with 47-license plate (Citrus County) was made by a person who said he saw the truck at the edge of the woods, and the fire spring up soon after. The two boys jumped into the truck and sped away from the scene as the flames rapidly spread in the palmetto scrub.

A young boy, ten to twelve years old, was seen lighting matches and throwing them into dried brush and papers on Ricou Bird., across from the Jensen Beach Post Office on Sunset, April 25, at about 9:45 a.m.

Seeing a lady vacuuming, he climbed on an old bicycle and drove through the Jensen Beach Bank parking lots.

Moments later, the same woman saw the boy lighting matches and throwing them into the bushes alongside the bank fountain. Seeing the woman driving up, the boy again jumped on his bicycle and rode down Commercial Street and south on Indian River Drive.

On Saturday, April 24, local firemen were called to a blaze at Beau Rivage East, arriving on the scene minutes after the call. Two trucks went, and the blaze was extinguished before too much acreage was burned.

"We just called you. How did you get here so fast?" one resident said as firemen drove up. It had taken the man as long to run to the fire with a shovel as it took local firemen to get to the scene.

Local firemen in that fire had just returned from fighting the blaze in Johnathan Dickinson State Park, and were already spent from that battle.

Residents of Beau Rivage East told firemen they had seen a young man on a motorcycle going west down the road at 7 p.m. At 7:04 p.m. the call was received, a fire is suspected in that fire, also.

Chief Spinney said Tuesday that the fire ban, a proclamation of Governor Askew, is still in effect, and urged all to call the fire Senses before burning to learn if the fire ban has been lifted. Laws provide fines from $200 to $1,000 for violations, and up to three years in prison for convicted arsonists.

Local bathing without a permit, banned by the proclamation, brought quick results on the first day of the fire chief to elevators. In one case, a threatened arrest by sheriff's deputies stopped a violation, Spinney said in an earlier deputy fire marshall, has the power of arrest in fire cases.

James Garvey wins governor approval on library board

JB—James A. Garvey, president of Florida Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County holds the distinction of having served under three governors as a member of the Martin County Library Board. Mr. Garvey's appointment to the board was made by Governor Reubin Askew on April 23. He is presently serving as chairman of the library board's qualifying papers are being sent, along with the commission from the governor's office.

The first appointment to the board came from Governor Haydon Burns in 1965. Garvey was reappointed to the library board by Governor Claude Kirk in 1967. He will have served under a Democratic, Republican, and now again a Democratic administration in the library board.

In a personal letter to Garvey, Governor Askew wrote, "It is my pleasure to inform you that based upon your outstanding qualifications and interest in good government, I am requesting you to serve as a member of the Library Board, Martin County."

Garvey said Tuesday, "I am proud to have been reappointed to the board. We have a good board, with well-trained members interested in providing the library service this county deserves in the cultural and educational needs of the people of the county.

"I intend to work hard to justify the confidence of the governor," he said.

Should have been closed

Sandsprit is classic example of lax health law enforcement

(Editor's note: The county is operating parks in violation of Florida Division of Health statutes, the enforcement of which is the basic responsibility of the Martin County Health Department. This is one story of lax enforcement of those laws.)

By DICK CAMPBELL
Copyright, 1971
The Jensen Beach Mirror

The operation of Sandsprit Park by Martin County has been in violation of the Sanitary Code of Florida since February 26, 1971, when the Martin County Health Department declared the park water supply contaminated.

At that time, the health department should have closed the park, a move finally taken by County Commission Chairman Dr. William Myers on April 27, 1971.

In closing the park, Myers said he feared the water was endangering the public, and told his fellow commissioners that some of the campers in the park were using the water despite signs forbidding use for drinking and bathing.

Chapter 10-D-4.15 of the Florida Division of Health rules provides that a public water supply is required for parks to operate. When the Health Department declared the water supply contaminated, it should have closed the park, according to law.

A place that serves the public including the public park at Sandsprit, should have water in compliance with section 10-D-4.01 of the statutes. "A system serving more than 25 persons or otherwise making water available to public groupings of the public in general; including works and auxiliaries for collection, treatment, storage, and distribution of water from a source of supplies to the free-flowing outlet of the ultimate consumer."

When the health department declared the water system unsafe, it was not the first time the system had been below health standards. The fact that the pipes of the system were rusted beyond repair, had clogged and were practically useless was indicated in the health department test that showed fifty colliforms of bacteria in the sample. One colliform is considered the maximum for acceptibility of the sample.

Efforts to chlorinate the system, and its pipes, failed due to the deterioration of the system and its pipes. The water in the park wells is a low quality water, high in mineral content.

No recommendations for the water system were made by the health department, and Myers received assistance from a local consultant, who suggested a completely new piping system before water is installed to serve the campers in the area.

The park is being kept open in daylight hours, again in violation of the law requiring potable water in public places for public use.

Lee Brock, engineer for Stuart Yacht and Country Club, is designing a new water system for the park which would tie into the SYCC water system, insuring a water supply for the park under a county commission funding of $5,000 for the program. The new system should be installed and in operation by the middle of May, according to Myers, who closed the park for two weeks.

County Administrator Jack Noble is now in charge of the county water supply for the park, and was asked to speed work on the water system so that the popular park could be back in use as soon as possible.

The closure of the park raised other problems for the county in the future, if the health department decides to enforce laws that are now on the books.

For example, health law 10-D-5.24 requires that a permit to operate a public bathing place "on any waters of this state" be obtained from the Division of Health. No one in the county office seems to know if there is a license to operate the park, nor were they aware of the need for such a license when called by The Mirror.

Thus, all of the county parks are in violation of the statute.

Also, in the same statute, health laws outline safety considerations for public beaches, most of which are violated by the county, not purposely, but because the county officials do not know that such regulations exist.

Under the required regular inspections that seem to be ignored by the local health departments in three counties, and the leaders of those health departments, Dr. Neill Miller and W. A. Richards, just about all of the provisions of Section 10-D-5.24 (4) are violated.

A check with Martin County Chief Lifeguard Jack Cammack reveals that many required beach protection devices are not present on the lifeguard-manned beaches of the county. Also, lifeguards are required by law on public swimming beaches. There are none at Jensen Causeway bathing beach where there have been several drownings in recent years. There are no lifeguards at Stuart Causeway beaches, where many swim and water ski while picnicking at the public parks.

Also, there are no lifeguards at Sandsprit Park, where campers swim in the dangerous confluence of the Indian River, St. Lucie River and St. Lucie Inlet.

The county taxpayer pays the county health department to make certain that such laws are enforced, but there seems to be no enforcement.

Pollution of Manatee Pocket is so great that citations are being sought against several fish houses and other businesses, as well as the growing number of houseboats that dump raw sewage into the pocket. Air and Water Pollution officials said last week that the pocket is in dangerous condition.

But the Martin County Health Department continues to allow county operation of an illegal park, swimming in a polluted area, and use of water facilities in the park even though they are polluted.

And, on the ocean beaches, the health department negates its responsibility for informing the county of the need for proper safety considerations.

The law requires... "If bathing is permitted beyond a depth of five feet, a square standard boat of ten to twelve feet in length, or a surf boat of not less than sixteen feet long at salt water beaches, equipped with oars and oarlocks and one lifesaving ring with line, should be provided to patrol the outer edges of standing bathers during period of maximum bathing loads. The outer safe limits or boundary of the bathing area should be marked with buoys or other markers visible to bathers and spaced at a maximum of one hundred feet apart."

Such a requirement is not being enforced by the health department, nor is the county aware that such a requirement exists.

Also, it is the health department's responsibility to test the water quality at the public bathing areas as outlined in Statute 10-D-5.24 (2). That AWP officials are concerned and have tested the Manatee Pocket should have indicated to the health department that there was a possibility of pollution at Sandsprit.

DON'T USE—Water pipes at Sandsprit Park in Fort Salerno carried a message to campers telling them not to use the water, but no one told the campers that they were occupying a park that was illegally operated by the county.

FINALLY CLOSED—It was the Martin County Commission, not the county health department, that finally closed Sandsprit Park in Fort Salerno overnight campers. The park should have been closed when the health department belatedly found the park water supply polluted, according to state sanitary codes.

LANDMARK--The front of the Jensen Hardware building is shown last week, victim of the times and a bulldozer, as the new owners of the store took another step forward in modernization of the facility at the foot of Commercial Street in Jensen Beach. The area will become a parking lot for the hardware company.

Students fight fire

JB-- Fifty students from St. Joseph College helped fight the fire at Jonathan Dickinson State Park which threatened many homes and wooded areas two weeks ago.

The students, packed in cars, arrived at the scene and volunteered help to the six fire companies fighting the blaze. They, breaking up into groups of five and six, the students spread out to battle the blaze.

Jeff Harsh, Mike Paszt and Bill Malawsk took their teams and began tackling the fires on the west side of U.S. #1. Other groups went into the woods pushing the fire further away from the road so that it wouldn't spread. Another group contained a higher blaze down the road.

The students were rewarded with sandwiches and cold drinks after fighting the fire for hours along with the fire companies.

Vulnerability is important. When vulnerable I suggest extreme care, you could sustain heavy penalties, should be almost as good as an opening hand. Now for responses to weak opening bids of 2 spades, hearts or diamonds.

1. Two no trump forcing for one round, usually made with a hand interested in game or slam. 2. A response of 3 in the opener's major suit invites game if he holds a maximum opener (10 to 12 points). 3. A bid of game by the responder is normally preemptive, to keep the opponents from finding their best contract. 4. A response of a new suit is forcing; opener should support with a maximum two bid and a fit.

Weak 2 bids are in popular use by many of our better players. You do get a few more opportunities to use it, than waiting for the strong 2 bid, and there is the prime value in this bid, its preemptive value.

422 bags of trash collected

Conservationist speaks to students

BY DENNIS DOYLE

JB--John McQuigg, active in the field of conservation in this area since 1959, spoke to students of St. Joseph College last Tuesday night at a dinner sponsored by the College Science Department.

Following beyond the earlier part of the day participating in an environmental institute program. The co-eds spent the afternoon picking up trash and bottles in the Jensen Beach-Hutchinson Island areas, collecting 422 bags of trash and bottles. Bags were left at designated points for pickup by trucks. McQuigg reminded his audience that he "hoped this wasn't the end of the project for you. When you get together to other colleges, I hope you will actively consider participate in similar community cleanups."

"You all did a great job as most today, but it's a shame that all the trash was there in the first place," he continued.

McQuigg said he had become involved in conservation five years ago when not much was being done about the problem. "People at that time thought of me as a do-gooder or bird watcher. I began to make a study in 1961 on conservation, and it was then I realized how little was written on this subject. There was a need for a more definite study," McQuigg said.

Many things done today under the name of progress aren't so, McQuigg said. "Development can be guided and popular growth must be housed, but basic preparation is needed to protect the land," he said. "There are other ways besides dredge and fill. We're ruining the waterways, and once they're gone, they're gone forever." The South Fork of the St. Lucie River is ruined and will never be clear again, he pointed out as an example. "It's sterile," he said. The marshes and bay bottoms feed and support the fish. "They're vital and must be preserved," McQuigg reported.

In filling the wetlands is continued, it will ruin the habitat of fish, he pointed out. Fishing is one of the most popular sports in the state, bringing tourists to Florida. "The good fishing in Florida is what attracts most people to move or visit here," he said. Real estate people should realize this and help with conservation, he charged.

McQuigg felt there are solutions to the problems at hand. 1. There should be the right of the people over inertia. 2. Educate people on conservation. Sell bottom lands in limited quantities. 3. Demand ecological surveys prior to the sale of land. 4. Discourage dredging. Impose severe engineering restrictions. When bulkheading is necessary, make it mandatory that the bulkhead follow the natural shoreline.

"What a dreary Florida this would be with no fishing," McQuigg continued. "This is a serious business and a serious one for Florida. Conservation isn't for the birds, it's for people."

"There's no clear answer to the problem of trash and pollution," McQuigg said in answer to a student's question. The lecturer said he felt frustrated because the road which had been cleaned last year was full of trash again this year. "We have to keep trying to educate the public that conservation is a claim of life. Things are progressing, though, because we now have laws in favor of conserving the lands," McQuigg concluded.

COMMUNITY CLEAN UP--Students from St. Joseph College partici ted in a community clean up campaign last week. The Environmental Institute Program was sponsored by the College Science Department. Co-eds are, at left, Terry Pierce of Tennes, S.C., and Portia Ogle, Daytona Beach, doing their part in the clean up.

JB--The Martin County Association for Mental Health will meet Thursday, May 13 at 12 noon at the Holiday Inn in Stuart.

Mrs. Edith Stocks will speak.

We wish them all a pleasant journey, and the newlyweds much joy and happiness.

We are still having our Bingos on Tuesday evenings. Last week Bert Jones was on the skin list and Nonie Crooker called the numbers and Thelma Jones called them back. We had lots of fun, and the gals prove that they can take over when the guys are not able.

The center of attraction these last few days has been the big dragline machine that has been cleaning out the canal, making it wider and deeper in the hopes that it will carry off all the excess water when the rainy season comes.

The Jarretts of McKeesport, near Pittsburgh, Pa., have left for the summer.

The Robert Burrows of Elgin, Pa., near Erie, are also leaving this week.

Frank and Verna Moran left for Manchester, Conn. on Friday morning.

Mrs. Esther Gentry was admitted to Martin Memorial Hospital last Thursday evening for minor surgery.

John and Grace Sisterer of N.J., have gone home to enjoy their family and grandchildren for the summer.

I hope you have enjoyed our little column during the winter. I expect to be here three of four weeks yet, then home to Pa. until Sept. 1.

I hope to see the Burrows, the Tates, and also the Joseph Whites of Riverside Village when we visit my brother at Fairview, near Erie, Pa. this summer. Also the Jones of Dayton, Ohio.

If I hear of anything interesting in the folks who are still here at D&M, I'll write to The Mirror. See you next week. M.R.

For a brief time this week, a smaller alligator visited the lake. The ducks once again sought refuge on the banks. After a day or two they were swimming in the water so we assume the alligator had gone back to his home. Where that is still remains a mystery.

Sunrise shrimper

Every morning, as he has done for years, Toby Tobias, 84, moves his boat out into the Indian River for his daily shrimping trip. This misty morning last week he made a quiet river even more pastoral, one of the more wonderful reasons for living in Jensen Beach.

Pavilion named for him

S.L. Gravely is alive and well...and is an admiral

By RUTH BRAHAM

The plaque on the east side of the South Beach pavilion at the ocean at Jensen Beach didn't tell the story. It read, "U.S. Coast Guard Cabana." The unresearched plaque did not indicate that U.S. Coast Guard Vice Adm. Samuel L. Gravely, Jr., would, in April of 1971, be promoted to the rank of rear admiral, becoming the President Richard Nixon for the honor of being the first black admiral in the United States Navy.

It was in late August in Mary Hill brought the suggestion that Mrs. Margaret Shepherd, S. Savanna Road, might remember the event. This reporter tried to call Mrs. Shepherd but was told she was out of town for several weeks, always getting a busy signal. Finally, around the middle of June, a call got through. Mrs. Shepherd explained that her memories had been out of order for a year since that time had been forced to take daily medications for about a month.

"The name I remember in connection with the pavilion dedication was minister to the navy, Chaplain Neal Jack Morgan, who was commander of American Legion Post 176 in Stuart, Bell said.

"The map was installed about four years ago," Mrs. Bell told The Mirror on July 22. "It was here almost two years after the building was dedicated in the first Negro Navy commander," but Morgan could not say that Gravely had been present for the dedication.

"I don't know," he said, until Shepherd, when called, was more enlightened.

offering his cooperation in backing a public ceremony honoring Gravely. But he could give no information about the that whose name was chosen for the pavilion, McHardy said, "He used to be dedicated to a negro who was commander of a liberty ship." He suggested this reporter call his uncle, Nathaniel Green.

Green was contacted and promised to supply the background information of the dedication as he knew it, "pretty get in touch," Green said.

Mr. Hardy's brother, Richard, was also called but could shed no light on the search for information.

Twice Williams stopped in at The Mirror office during July and early August. Calls returned to him were not answered either at school or his home. By August 10 when this reporter reached him by phone, he was busy preparing for the opening of school. "I haven't forgotten," he said, "but I have been quite busy. I'll get the information to you."

Martin County Veterans Administration officer John Keller said, "Yes, I attended a dedication there many years ago. The pavilion was dedicated to Sylvester G. Clark and that's the name you'll find there. I don't know anything about this... what did you say his name is? Gravely?" Keller said several county commissioners were present at the dedication.

"Contact Jack Morgan," he said, "he'll know. In the meantime I'll look through my records and see what I can find on it." A follow-up call during the past week brought no more information. "I have no record of the dedication," Keller said.

Finally, in September, this reporter put aside her paich-work story. During the four months, she had learned unauthenticated facts that Gravely had been a senior officer of the Navy guided missile cruiser, USS Jouett; that his "last tour" was as head of the Telstar Satellite program in The Pentagon; and that he had been promoted to captain, all information received from a new Jensen Beach resident, retired Capt. John Kurk, Skyline Drive, Jensen Beach.

Nobody could say that the mysterious Gravely had been present for the dedication or that he ever knew that a pavilion had been named for him.

Gravely may be retired by the time all the facts of the pavilion dedication in Jensen Beach, Martin County, Florida, are unveiled. Perhaps the new Rear Admiral Samuel L. Gravely, Jr., himself, can help.

But the whereabouts of the 48-year-old Gravely are no longer a secret. The Navy's first black admiral brought the guided missile frigate Jouett into San Diego, California, on Saturday, May 1 after seven months of Vietnam.

Gravely joined the Navy as an enlisted man in 1942, served a three-year hitch, then returned to Virginia Union University where he earned his Bachelor's degree. He earned his commission through officers' candidate school at Columbia University.

Before joining the Navy, Gravely was a railway postal clerk in Richmond, Virginia. He was recalled to active duty in 1948 and was the first negro to command a U.S. warship. He has commanded three ships during his career. Only two other negroes hold the rank of captain, the Navy's equivalent of colonel in the Army and Air Force. Less than one percent of the Navy's officers are black, compared to more than three percent in the other two services. Two other blacks in the armed services hold the rank: Air Force Brig. Gen. Daniel L. James and Army Brig. Gen. Frederick Davidson.

The prospective rear admiral, whose appointment must be confirmed by the U.S. Senate, is married and has three children, Robert 18, David 10 and a daughter, Tracey 6. The family lives in Chula Vista, California.

WHO IS GRAVELY?-- The Mirror tried in vain to gather information about the pavilion at the South Beach in Jensen Beach, with its sign, "U.S. Commander S. L. Gravely Cabana." Gravely was promoted last week to Rear Admiral to be the first black admiral in the United States Navy.

PEACE--Even the walls of a wooden fence, installed for privacy around the rest rooms at the South Beach pavilion, are decorated with messages. This peace sign tells the world "P.T. Love '68." The building was dedicated to Lt. Cdr. S. L. Gravely several years ago. A few months a man recently promoted to the rank of rear admiral in the U.S. Navy.

Over twenty sore in over-30

JB--Over twenty players took part in the first Friday night practice session for the "Over Thirty" slow pitch softball league at Langford Park last Friday night, and the popularity of the league seemed assured, as did sore muscles and stiff arms when the evening ended.

League organizers Dr. Richard Penick and Dick Campbell selected teams Friday with the Penick team emerging victorious, 8-7, in a game that could not be considered as showing the best form of the ball players, but was marked with exciting play.

A triple play, involving two baserunners, with "outs" made at second base, first base and third base, ended up with all players safe.

The league is designed for exercise and recreation for the over-30 group. Four teams are sought, and the organizers expect to attain the four-team strength at the second practice session, this Friday, at 7:30 p.m. at Langford Park. The league will begin play on May 14.

Players voted Friday to outlaw spike shoes, continue 25 cents each week to provide balls to the league, furnish their own gloves, and have neighboring teams furnish umpires to those games.

All men over thirty who desire to play in the league can sign up by calling Dr. Penick's office, 287-2333.

Jeff Austin returned recently from a three-week visit to Lakewood, Calif.

Jeff flew out of Melbourne to visit her 96-year-old mother, Mrs. Lillie Curtain; a brother, two sisters, and a number of other relatives, in the Lakewood and Long Beach area. Fern added an interesting little note when she said while checking her luggage in Melbourne, the sisters half fear she would be routed through Tampa. He then suggested that she spend the 20-minute waiting period looking over the newly completed airport. Fern described it as simply beautiful.

Through Dorothy Lambert, we learned that Mabel Spoerl had been back in the park briefly. Friends of Mabel's will remember she suffered a heart attack while on board the Ariadne, returning to Key West from a Mexican cruise on March 9. Mabel was taken to the hospital in Key West as soon as they docked, and later to the Heart Institute on Miami Beach. At the Institute Mabel had surgery for the installation of a pacemaker.

On April 22, the stitches were removed, and later that same day, Mabel's daughter, Barbara (Mrs. Jerry) Thiel, and Mabel's granddaughter, Jennifer Thiel, started for Jensen Beach with Mabel in her car. After spending one night in the park, the three left April 23 for Barbara's home in Arlington Heights, Ill.

Mabel will be staying with Barbara and family until she is able to return to her summer home in Appleton, Wisc. Friends who saw Mabel during her short time in the park say that except for losing weak from her long ordeal, Mabel has good color, and looks wonderfully well. We are all so happy at Mabel's recovery, and wish her a happy, healthy future.

The Walter Nevas had a recent visit from their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Schnopf and family of Rochester, N.Y., and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Neal Neva, Jr., with their family from Webster, N.Y. Both families were traveling with travel trailers, and had accommodations at Holiday Oak. The visitors enjoyed swimming, and fishing, and had a most successful fishing trip as guests of Harold Bunnell of Hidden Harbor aboard his boat. Of course eating out ranked as their pleasure, but the highlight for the family was having Easter dinner at the canteen for the second consecutive year.

Guy Carter is an enthusiastic golfer. While he was playing on the Martin County Country Club golf course April 12, he was delighted when he made an eagle on a par 4 hole. Nelssens cruise on 'Song of Norway'

OBP--Frank and Elsie Nelsson of Key Lime tell of their week's cruise, April 17 to 24 aboard the "Song of Norway," on the Royal Caribbean Line. The Song of Norway, a relatively new cruise ship, although registered in Oslo, Norway, is Miami based, and has a decidedly international flavor, as 26 nationalities are represented among the crew members.

This story was a joint effort, the first par told mostly by Elsie, and giving a woman's viewpoint, and the latter, mostly the points of interest to both. The mechanically minded, mostly men, will no doubt be most interested in the last few paragraphs.

"The food served throughout the entire cruise was delicious, tempting; arranged and served, and special dishes prepared from recipes of man nations appeared on each day's menu. One day at dinner the dessert specialty was baked Alaska, flaming with burning rum, was held high by the colorfull-clad waiters while marching and singing, followed by the entire orchestra. Such an exciting sight.

"Each day's recreations and entertainments were planned, and programmed, and well known professional folks such as Patrice Munsell, opera singer; Monsieur X with his magic act; and Bingo and his puppet show were among those performing to an appreciative audience.

Frank and Elsie tell, spoke most highly of the crew, the good and polite service given to all passengers, and made special mention of their steward, Juan from Trinidad, who kept a good supply of hot coffee on hand in their cabin.

Leaving Miami, their first port of call was Nassau, where they toured the city in a "surrey with a fringe on top" and had a coastal cruise in a glass bottomed boat.

From Nassau they cruised to Puerto Rico, and after docking took a three-hour city tour of San Juan by bus, visiting a beautiful old church with gold leaf from altar to ceiling.

The church doors were like the old style tavern half doors, and allowed the birds to fly in and out while they and singing. Very beautiful and solemn in its natural simplicity.

Arriving in St. Thomas, and after taking the usual city tour, Elsie decided to shop at the city markets, each specializing in its own type of craft. Shopping was a pleasure, all the clerks were courteous and helpful. If they did not carry what the customer wanted, then they recommended another market which did carry that article.

While Elsie shopped, Frank took the country and mountain tour, where from the highest mountain peak, he could turn completely around and see the Caribbean, Atlantic Ocean, and Isle of St. John, while standing.

One evening they received a ship-to-shore phone call from Elsie's nephew, Dr. Gunz of Rochester, N.Y., and Frank, who took the call, could hear him as clearly as if he were in the next room.

Frank met a lady staff member who graduated from the same high school as he did in Oslo, Norway, so although many years have passed since that time, they found much in common, for she knew many younger members of the families of whose names he spoke.

Frank asked for and obtained permission to tour the bridge. The entire wall of the bridge section held a very detailed map of the entire ship and its eight decks. Should an emergency, such as a fire, occur anywhere on board, a light flashed on the map indicating the danger area. Automatically the air conditioner was shut off, and the fire doors, water tight and (again) automatically controlled, also, sealed off the area.

It was also reassuring to know two to six crew members were on watch for trouble at all times. The number depended on existing conditions. The self-steering helm or wheel also appealed to Frank's eye for efficiency. When the course is determined and wheel set, it did the rest, but should the self-steering device fail, the ship could be operated mechanically or manually. If by any rare chance these all failed, the ship can be steered by its three propellers, two in the stern, and one sideways in the bow. Even such a large ship is equipped can stand it one spot and make an 180 degree turn.

There were a number of compasses on board, but to most valued of these is a radar instrument made in Germany and periodically inspected by an expert sent from Germany to take care of this duty. The officer in charge can, by bending slightly, look down into what appears to be a 6-in. screen, then by adjusting the control buttons, bring in a picture showing the seascape ahead for 50 miles.

Frank had the opportunity to use this delicate instrument, and with careful manipulating, could see the Dominican Coast 48 miles away, and pinpoint any spot along the coast line.

Elsie, who had been afraid of taking the trip because of possible seasickness, was armed with doctor-prescribed pills, but only took one. This they took, was partly due to the calm condition of the seas, but since the ship is equipped with stabilizers made like the side fins of a fish, they keep the ship from rocking, and are also operated by electric impulses.

We are very grateful to these two happy cruisers for this informative story, and are glad to know they had such an enjoyable cruise.

ARTIST--Oil painting is Dorothy Elliott's main hobby. Like many others, she attended art classes under Marguerite Dustin in Clement Hall, but does most of her work at home--in Dorothy's case on her patio.

TREE TRIMMING TIME--Myrt Huntington says, "What happened to the trees?" The corner of Center Street and Seventh Avenue has changed in appearance since the men trimmed the trees. Growth is so rapid in this climate that trees throughout the park have to be severely trimmed occasionally and some of these times is now.

BEACH COMBER--Bess Kendle loves to wander the beaches in search of treasures. She has a wonderful assortment of shells, driftwood and other objects of interest she has picked up on our own beach.

Charlie Weidemann's twins, Mrs. Peggy Shoe, flew down last Friday from Morristown, N.J., and spent the weekend with Charlie. While here they visited Parrot Jungle and Marineland. Mrs. Shoe is evidently quite sport minded for she brought her own surfboard and enjoyed surfing on our beach, as well as playing shuffleboard. Her husband is in Panama on business so she seized this opportunity to spend a weekend in Fla.

Time to look at report

Charges of Mirror ignored, but progress is made in corrections

(Editor's note: This is the tenth in a series of articles revealing the failure of the Tri-County Health Department to enforce laws now on the books of the State of Florida, and the violation of Division of Health rules by action of the health departments of Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee Counties. In this article, we assess what has been written, and, in some cases, actions taken.)

By DICK CAMPBELL

Copyright, 1971
The Jensen Beach Mirror

A sanitarian of the Martin County Health Department walked into the office of The Jensen Beach Mirror and bought a copy of the March 18 issue. He told the society editor that he wanted to send it to Okeechobee County.

"A friend of mine there wants to know what you wrote about the county," he said, and added, "what's behind all this?"

Asked if he would like to talk to the editor, the sanitarian said, "No", and said he didn't want to leave his name, either.

"This is all an effort of Air and Water Pollution to cause trouble," he said, "Dr. Myers (Martin County Commission chairman) is behind this."

The comments of the sanitarian are typical of the attitude of Tri-County Health Department toward documented proof of lax health enforcement in this area. There has been no public comment of either Dr. Neill Miller, head of the health department, or W. A. Richards, director of sanitation for the three counties, to this, the tenth article of The Mirror's series on lax health law enforcement. the problem of such enforcement should be put into perspective by listing violations of health laws as documented in past weeks. The results of the problem that is shown in the weight of evidence in these cases.

However, in doing so, it must be pointed out that some progress has been made in health law enforcement, areas of progress that we know of will be listed along with the original violation.

1. Dairies produce a river of manure. No. 14 listed as specific violations of dairies in Okeechobee County. Dairies designed to manure from milking barns into public waterways. The solution suggested as an answer was keeping all such pollutants on the dairy land through the use of "holding ponds". To date, according to officials of Florida Air and Water Pollution, sixteen dairies in Okeechobee County have signed up to construct such holding ponds where none had before. Others are expected to sign soon.

2. Injection of cows with anti-biotic while in the milking barns, when such regular cows with materials be removed from the herd due to high anti-biotic count of the milk.

3. Unsanitary handling of anti-biotic vaccine and storage of this vaccine.

4. Failure of county health departments to inspect milking barns as regularly as is required.

5. Septic tank dumps raw sewage in Indian River, March 18, cited a violation expanded by the Martin County Health Department as an effluent line for a laundry was extended to the river shore alongside a sewage point of the septic tank. The owner of the property took immediate action to correct the violation.

6. W. B. Richards told The Miami Herald reporter that he knew about the septic tank effluent being dumped into the Indian River "two weeks ago" but had taken no action on the problem until an Air and Water Pollution dye-test proved the pollution.

7. Health Department denied Jupiter Island pollution, March 25, showed how the Martin County Health Department had assured the city manager of Jupiter Island there was no problems with pollution, in January, 1970, and conducted a survey of the island between January 7 and January 23. At that time the Department reported that no problem areas were discovered and all past known problems had been corrected. One year later, the Town of Jupiter Island was embarrassed to find a long list of outfalls sewer violations corrected in the past year and an incomplete list of potential violations made in another survey by the health department. The town has since taken itself to have an independent survey made to solve an unknown area of possible pollution.

8. Monthly reports of sewage plants in the Tri-County Health Department are supposed to be filed in the Division of Health offices in Jacksonville. There is no indication that all operating sewage plants make or make such reports regularly. If they did, many plants would be found actively causing ill health discharge facilities.

9. A cry of foul, Live and Lose It, March 25, pointed to the Market Trace shop of Fort Pierce as an example of the failure of the health department to act. It was the end of April before action was seen at the site, Discharging of oil in ditches is against the law.

10. Okeechobee trailer parks violate health code, April 1, showed that most trailer parks in Okeechobee County trailer parks were lax in enforcement of their legal limit of 10 trailers, and that many did not have health department licenses to operate.

11. Taylor Creek lodge had a permit to handle 100 trailers, and had 144 in the park. The sewage plant could handle only 48 trailers, and the health department permit allows 72 independent trailers to be tied into the sewage system. The sewage plant outfall into Taylor Creek is just 400 ground from residences.

12. Okeechobee condominiums a trailer park in the shores of Lake Okeechobee without a health department permit, and the park violating several state health laws including the fact that the long trailers on the docks, failure to have toilet facilities for boat dwellers and improper sewage disposal by campers, antiquated use of the park without a health permit.

13. Health in the dirt, April 1, editorial, pointed out that the Tri-County Health Department continued to give unqualified temporary permits for septic tanks with no information to the buyer of lots with no knowledge of sewage plants.

14. It took two years for the Martin County Health Department to curtail health law violations in Jensen Beach as described to the Martin County Commission in a presentation the year previously.

15. On February 18, 1970, the Martin County Commission demanded that the health department use the county attorney to prosecute health law violations. To date such service has not been asked by the health department.

16. Health issues septic tank permit to restaurant, April 8, The St. Lucie County Health Department issued a septic tank permit to a new restaurant seating 225 persons, when such a load, by law, would require a sewage treatment plant.

17. Taylor Creek lies in Okeechobee County in a trailer park subdivision built on filled land with 800 lots. The subdivision has been approved for septic tank permits by the health department even though the ground does not qualify for them and even though such a subdivision requires a sewage plant. The septic tanks already installed are on lots that front on canals that lead into Taylor Creek. The filled land does not meet the criteria of the law.

18. The City of Stuart continues to violate outfall restrictions by dumping low treated, highly chlorinated effluent right on the beach in Stuart, into the St. Lucie River. Crab traps abound around the outfall. There were 11,000 cases of hepatitis last year in Florida, most of them caused by polluted shellfish.

19. Written promises of installing a sewer system in Port Salerno Trailer Park when the restaurant went from dumping raw sewage in the total shoreline of the Indian River to a sewage plant (it took two years to get the job done) was ignored by the health department. The owner's estate took a $40,000 tax credit on the trailer park for installation of the sewage system, according to the county attorney, a system never installed.

20. A sewage plant inspection of Pitchford's Camp serves only the cottages there, not the mobile homes. Pitchford's Camp has no health permit for mobile homes, another violation.

21. In February, 1970, A. B. Richards told the Martin County Commission that the county prosecutor, Bill Oughterson, was told that there was no way to stop pollution of the Indian River by Pitchford Camp outside state limits for the well where the pollutant came from, a statement vehemently denied by the county prosecutor.

22. Outhouse law violations permitted, April 15, when the county sought to investigate outhouses in Port Salerno. Richards used a "emergency relief" law, rather than the proper law enforcement to convince the court that it had no power in the matter of outlawing outhouses. Investigation of the outhouses in question revealed that none met the specifications for outhouses in state health law and the outhousers could have been closed down by the health department if it had wished to act. The outhouse investigation revealed six of eight points of the law in violation.

23. Richards urged in a letter to the county that refinements of the outhouses had been made, and had been discussed with the owner and all did not give a date for compliance nor a mandate for correction.

24. Bureaucratic health, April 15, editorial. The long, bureaucratic delay in communications from the office of the Tri-County health department to the Division of Health in the office of Air and Water Pollution were last exercised in an example of ineffectiveness of the so-called "chain of understanding" between the two departments. Letters from Fort Pierce to Jacksonville, to Tallahassee, to Fort Lauderdale to Fort Myers to Fort Pierce.

25. The Bureau of Sanitation Engineering has no effective power in the organization of the health departments, yet is responsible for the supervision of the health departments, creating a situation of irresponsibility, where nothing can be passed with ease.

26. Health wins suit against septic tanks, issue of April 22. The St. Lucie County Health Department won a suit filed by Sussex Inc., to force the new health department to issue septic tank permits. The court ruled that the health department did not have to issue the septic tank permits. In the twelve years that followed, the St. Lucie County Health Department issued 168 septic tank permits in the subdivision, Indian Mission Estates near Fort Pierce.

27. Since the ground quality was far below state health standards, the health department violated the law in issuing the permits to Indian Mission Estates.

28. The Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, Jacksonville, compounded the law violation by allowing ten permits for septic tanks to be installed in substandard soil even before the suit.

29. Health violations statewide, April 22 editorial. W. B. Richards gave in to pressure and gave a septic tank permit to a laundry operating on North U.S. 1 in Fort Pierce. He was stopped at the last minute, and the permit revoked, by Richard Starr, sanitary engineer, who demanded that a sewage system be installed.

30. Dr. Richard Pendick, former president of the Tri-County Medical Association and well known local general practitioner, from Jensen Beach, joined The Mirror protest against lax health law enforcement. He accused the health department of a "do as little as possible" attitude, and was quoted by The Mirror as saying, "Why there hasn't been an epidemic of major proportions is beyond my medical comprehension."

31. Shopping center violations, April 29. Health Department officials W. B. Richards and Richard Starr approved an illegal dump and septic tank for a restaurant and an illegal drainfield for a shopping center owned by L&E Corporation in South Jensen Beach. Told of his violation, the general manager began planning proper sewage treatment for the center. A principal in the corporation owning the shopping center is Ralph Evinrude, who is head of the outdoor recreation sector of President Richard Nixon's environmental quality committee.

32. Sandspirit is classic example of lax enforcement, May 6. The county health department allowed Martin County to continue to operate a campground, Sandspirit Park, when water was found unfit to drink. Health officials just put up a sign that water was not for drinking or washing, in violation of health laws that demand potable water in public places.

33. The county did not know it had to have a health department permit to operate a park. Health officials did not know if such a permit existed.

34. County parks in Martin and St. Lucie Counties on weekends violate sections of the laws of Florida pertaining to "proper safety considerations". Neither have required lifesaving boats or outside buoys, or the proper number of lifeguards as required by law.

35. In the case of Sandspirit Park, the park was finally closed on order of the chairman of the Martin County Commission, Dr. William G. Myers, who said he feared the water was endangering the public.

36. The Manatee Pocket, which empties into the St. Lucie River at Sandspirit Park, has a high pollution rating as tested by Air and Water Pollution staffers. Laws require the county health department to test such waters where there is public bathing.

37. There are no lifeguards for public park bathing beaches operated by the Martin County Commission: Jensen Beach Causeway and Stuart Causeway and Sandspirit Park.

There is hope, however. This list does not contain many of the items in stories that will follow this 10 weeks to come. Each story, it seems, brings evidence of several other areas of concern for lax health law enforcement by the Tri-County Health Department.

The solution, as pointed out by Rep. Don Kent, seems to be executive, rather than legislative. The laws are on the books. Only a strong mandate, and investigation by legislators will convince the executive branch of Florida that health laws are written to be enforced.

That enforcement, now, will be a story for The Mirror readers. As Dr. Richard Pendick wrote recently, "Keep the articles coming. Not all Martin County residents are unconcerned."

The theme for the observance, "Your Hospital Cares--but who loves a hospital" is intended to dramatize the concern hospitals have for the individual and community well-being, according to Guy N. Cromwell, administrator of Martin Memorial Hospital. He added that National Hospital Week is only an attention getter for what happens all year long, seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

D & M Mobile Home Park

MARGUERITE RITENOUR

We had this nice letter from the Fosters Thursday and thought the rest of the folks at D& M would like to see it too!

Boswell, Ind.

"Dear Friends,

"We arrived home O.K. at 4 p.m. Thursday, April 15. We had a lovely trip. The country was beautiful, all along the way. The red-budded trees and dogwood was out in bloom and the trees leafing out made a really beautiful picture. We arrived at our daughter's in Montgomery, Ala. about 5 p.m. on Monday and had a nice but short visit with her and her girls. It is cool here tonight, and windy. Lowell made garden yesterday so we hope for some rain now. It's very dry here too, have'nt had rain for weeks. We are already missing you all at D& M so do let us hear from you. Have a good summer and tell everyone hello! Best wishes, Gertrude and Lowell Foster."

When you leave to go home be sure that you remember that the folks at the park are thinking about you and wondering what kind of trip you had and write and let us know.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Snyder had as their guests, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Barber of Albertson, N.Y., for a week recently.

Al and Sarah Enos of Holland, Mich. have purchased a "Buddy" trailer and have it installed in the park. They are adding a Florida room and landscaping, which is going to be very eye-catching when completed.

Leon and Sally Lusignan of Pittsfield, Mass. have purchased a Kingwood trailer and it is now located in our park. They went on home for the summer but hope to be back here to make their home in November. They have wintered in Jensen Beach the past four years.

Our last Pot Luck dinner for this season was held Wednesday evening with 24 attending. As usual we had lots of good things to eat.

The Hobby meeting was held on Tuesday afternoon at 1 p.m. and the Bingo at 7 p.m. Tuesday evening. Everyone still enjoys the meetings and they will go on as long as there are enough people interested to attend.

Mrs. Esther Gentry is home again after minor surgery in Martin Memorial Hospital last week, and is healing fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duffy have left for their home in Swissvale, Pa., near Pittsburgh, and we were sorry to see them so so soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Showers of Jamesville, Ohio, have returned to their home after spending three weeks with her cousin, Alma Kramer. Caroline was recuperating from foot surgery and getting along nicely.

Friends and neighbors of Alma's all helped entertain them, as we had cookouts, dinner parties, beach and fishing parties, and just plain gab feats while they were here and enjoyed their company very much.

THE SKUNK AND THE POOH--Melodie Faulbee, left, played the skunk and Robin Crary, The Pooh, in last Friday night's production of Winnie the Pooh at Jensen Beach Community Church. The girls were part of the Pine School production, given at the Mother-Daughter Banquet at the church.

PATIENCE GENTLEMEN--From the expression shown on the faces of Keith Carroll and J.D. Murchison, the boys are learning at an early age it just plain takes the women folks a lot longer to get dressed. The boys were taking part in the Pine School production of Winnie the Pooh, which was part of the entertainment provided at the Mother-Daughter Banquet held at the Jensen Beach Community Church last Friday evening.

JBWA will meet May 17

JB- The next regular meeting of the Jensen Beach Women's Association will be held on Monday, May 17 at 1 p.m. at the clubhouse.

At the dessert card party on Monday, May 10, there were 72 women present.

Door prizes were won by: Mildred Jones, Florence Dembroski, Marian Hill, Marie Travers, Elizabeth Mutherstarch, and Karen Margaritis.

Chairman of the hostesses was Doris Taylor, assisted by Ann Bryson, Marian Jarvis, Margaret Pine, Mike Fredricks, Hazel Houghton, Mildred Jones, Genevieve Gahagan, and Olive Donaldson.

Three shows at drive in

At 8:30, Three in the Cellar with West Stern and Joan Collins is featured, at 10:20 Three in the Attic will play with Yvette Mimieux and Christopher Jones, and at 11:55, Three into Two Won't Go is playing, starring Rod Steiger and Claire Bloom.

All three pictures are "R" rated, and will run Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Stuart- The bicycle ride planned by the Stuart Youth Center, for the whole family, will begin at 2:30 p.m. on Flagler Avenue in Stuart this Sunday, May 16.

Children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult. In the event of rain, the ride will be held Sunday, May 23.

County negotiates for beach access

Stuart- Another Park and Ride Park on Hutchinson Island may be in the making, according to an announcement by County Commissioner Frank Wacha at Tuesday's County Commission meeting.

Wacha said he had written Charles Scripps, who owns several parcels of land at Yacht Club Beach on Hutchinson Island, asking if he would be interested in an exchange of county right-of-way for a piece of property owned by Scripps adjacent to a fifty-foot strip of land owned by the City of Stuart. The parcel of land in question is thirty feet wide and would give access to the Indian River.

Replying to Wacha's letter, Scripps explained he expects to build a home on his Yacht Club Beach property in Martin County. "One of the current spots in the county," Scripps wrote, adding, "I think owner-couple planning will keep it [illegible]

"I am willing to consider an exchange for thirty feet of my property and all [illegible] building a road at this point to Evans Clark, Jr., who will represent me in this exchange," Scripps said.

What our Jensen Beach Kindergarten is doing
By RICKY FEATHERSTONE

On May 5 the Kindergarteners made little colored butterflies to send home to their mothers for Mothers Day. Today they are cutting out and coloring birds and then backing them on pieces of colored paper. Yesterday they decorated their room with colored letters with the names of the kids that are in the class.

Joanne Pollard won first place in the Beat the Clock Club, Toby Thomas came in second. In all there were 35 winners. They all received prizes.

We can say that many third and fourth graders know their multiplication facts.

Local help sought

State fire is put out, tabled

Stuart—State forest fire protection for Martin County was put out for "more study" following the public hearing held by the Martin County Commission on the subject Tuesday.

While not exactly refused, the feeling by all present was that the local volunteer companies needed help, and if that help was forthcoming from area interests the state fire protection would not be needed.

County fire committee Frank Wachs and Bill Myers are "studying" the proposal according to action of the commission in tabling the service proposal indefinitely for a report of the committee.

Van Murphy, representing the state service, made a presentation outlining the cost of $5,625 to the county, with state funds to add up to $111,000 in the initial installation.

The cost of the protection, to include three crews, one tower and equipment, would be three cents per acre, Commissioner Bill Owens said there had been discussions in the legislature to raise the amount to five, fifteen and seventeen cents in past years.

Jack Saunderson, representing the Martin County Fire Chiefs' Association, reported their support of the service nine-hundred percent, citing the number of hours volunteers had fought fires over the past year and savings that could accrue to the county in the purchase of fire fighting equipment.

Saunderson was followed by a parade of agriculturalists who opposed the measure. The Martin County Farm Bureau, citrus interests, Martin County Cattlemen's Association, dairy interests, flower growers, vegetable growers and several individuals, including former county agent Levi Johnson, who said he was now a "gentleman farmer", opposed the service as not needed by the county. All praised the volunteer companies.

Fire Chief Randolph Spinney told the commission that the volunteers had "junk to work with," and said their needs were many trucks in good condition, the chief Jensen Beach as an exception since "the people there pay 50% of the cost of our equipment through donations."

In a report that neither favored or opposed the measure, Richard Campbell, president of the Martin County Resources Development Board, reported on a survey of information on the St. Lucie County operation with forest fire service. That county has a budget of paid firemen of $654,199 per year with the service, at present the Martin County budget is $79,000.

Commissioners expressed concern for the firemen, especially during this period of drought, and agriculture interests agreed that they would make an effort to supply help to the volunteers as needed. They plan to meet with the firemen and the county to discuss ways they would help.

Before the tabling action, Chief Spinney told commissioners, "Give us a central fire office and get us out of unofficial defense," referring to the idea for rural service in the Civil Defense network.

Outfall on Indian River begins investigation

By JACK CAMPBELL

JB—The pipe came out of the steep bank of the Indian River, curved downward, ran over the beach sand, and emerged a few feet away, spewing toilet paper, human feces, and other pollutants into the Indian River.

The rusted, dung-laden pipe is an atomatic emergency, with half the...

Small feces grew bright green in the afternoon sunlight as they grew insignificant from the high nutrient values of the effluent that poured regularly from a pipe at 901 Indian River Drive in St. Lucie County.

The issue of Thursday will take a broader historical perspective, bringing raw sewage into the Indian River, in violation of the Division of Health law prohibiting sewage treatment. The State would qualify for a septic tank treatment plant.

How long the 10 inches on the Indian River has been emptying raw sewage into the Indian River on a straight line to the river, without even septic tank treatment, cannot be known.

At one time the Tri-County Health Department said that the outfalls along the Indian River had been shut down or had been reverted to septic tank treatment.

In past years it was a common practice to run pipes from a private home right into the Indian River, with feces and water from toilets carrying whatever garbage and human waste was flushed into the pipe that led to the rivers.

Many years ago, the state legislature decided that such refuse disposal was not adequate with the ever-growing population of the area, and the Health Department was given a mandate to close down such operations. Health laws were passed requiring septic tank treatment qualified plants. The Health Department of the counties in the State were sent to require such treatment.

Second nuclear permit asked

JB—Application for a permit to construct a second unit of the nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island has been made to the Atomic Energy Commission, according to John Law, Jr. of Florida Power and Light Company.

Law told members of the St. Lucie County Commission Monday that application had been made. He also gave a preliminary safety analysis report on Unit #2 at the plant site located in St. Lucie County.

Burning ban has been lifted

JB—The burning ban, imposed during the recent drought, was lifted Tuesday morning.

It is still necessary to obtain a permit to burn from local fire departments, Fire Chief Randolph Spinney reminds the public. To obtain a permit in Jensen Beach, call the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department at 287-2220 and request permission to burn.

Health report termed whitewash

JB—An investigation of articles in The Jensen Beach Mirror on the Tri-County Health Department law enforcement resulted in a report that was termed "a whitewash" by a local sanitarian.

The report was written by William B. Stinger, Jr., regional consultant of the Division of Health, with offices in Miami. A copy of the report was provided to The Mirror by Dr. William T. Sowder, director of the Division of Health.

Dated May 11, the report dealt with articles on Jensen Beach river pollution, Okeechobee County dairy waste, Jupiter Island pollution, the problems concerning Market Truck Stop in Ft. Pierce, Okeechobee County trailer parks, the Hilltop Restaurant, Port Salerno privies, Orange Blossom Estates, the South Jensen Beach Shopping Center and Sandsprit Park.

In concluding his report to Dr. Sowder, the regional consultant wrote, "Dr. Neill Miller, Director of Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee County Health Departments, and his staff deserve commendation, not condemnation for their performance."

Shown the letter, a local sanitarian who refused to allow his name to be used, said, "It's nothing but a damned whitewash."

Dr. Stinger did not contact The Mirror for information relative to the articles during his investigation.

Dr. William G. Myers, chairman of the Martin County Commission, told The Mirror Tuesday that he had not been contacted by Dr. Stinger concerning articles that reflected on county operation of public places, and officials of Jupiter Island had not been contacted in the investigation.

Officials of the Department of Air and Water Pollution had not been contacted in regard to the articles, sewage has been involved in a special meeting of the board of county commissioners of Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee Counties, to discuss "the general overall health picture in Martin County and the associated problems encountered in the health field."

In a letter to Sowder, Myers wrote that "We have felt that the local health department has set back the problems which are encountered in this growth years," he asserted that the meeting was not for an "inquisition," but rather discussion of health in the county, and the discussion of a possible local health department for the county, rather than the Tri-County association that is now in existence.

Monday, John Ross, public relations officer of the Division of Health, arrived for two days of meetings with local officials of the Health Department and with the writer of The Mirror.

The Division of Health director has not yet replied to Myers' letter of May 14, according to the chairman.

Calls Health 'Poll-u-ticians'

Senate asked to make state Health inquiry

JB--A full scale inquiry into the "failure of the Division of Health to require proper health law enforcement" was asked of the Florida Senate Committee on Health, Welfare and Institutions last week by Richard Campbell, editor of The Mirror.

Campbell also asked that the Senate urge the governor to "urge a statewide reevaluation of the job being done by the Division of Health in every strata of state to local governmental organization."

The presentation was made in Tallahassee by the editor at a regular meeting of the Senate committee on Tuesday, May 12. On Wednesday, Damon O. Holmes, special project coordinator of the office of the governor, notified The Mirror he planned to look into the matter for the governor.

Campbell presented copies of articles printed for the past ten weeks in The Mirror including the tenth week article of the series outlining forty charges of lax law enforcement by the health department made in the first nine stories and in editorials and columns on the subject. The eight members of the committee received the file of material.

The editor charged that the Tri-County Health Department had committed "blatant violations of good government conduct," and said, "These documented violations proved not only the laxity of enforcement of laws passed in the public interest by your august body, but also the health department approved violation of those laws."

He called the health officials "poll-u-ticians," saying the health department authorizes "sewer plants that do not meet biological demands of restaurants and subdivisions ... approves plans for sewage disposal that violate statutes" and quoted the condemnation of Dr. Richard Q. Penick of health department practices.

"...we see that our enemy is not those who would pollute," Campbell said, "but those who wear the mantle of public health protection... the poll-u-ticians of the Division of Health..."

The Mirror editor said that the proposed law that would transfer authority for septic tanks and sewers might solve one problem, but "...the remaining jurisdictions of the Division of Health would languish in the same laxity of enforcement."

Campbell said, "The Division of Health, and through it the county health departments, thus takes on an aura of a dictatorship, in which only the leaders of those departments decide which laws shall be enforced, and which laws shall be ignored."

Senators questioned the editor following the ten-minute presentation.

Health officials in the audience of the committee hearing did not comment on The Mirror editor's presentation. When Campbell was introduced to the committee by Senator Kenneth Myers, Dr. Wilbur T. Sowder, one of the top state officials in the Division of Health, got up to leave the meeting. Myers asked Sowder to stay. "...as this will be of interest to you," Sowder stayed.

The Mirror material was also presented to a House health committee by committee member Rep. Dan Hazelton, who represents Martin County.

Prefacing the presentation, that fall, the Martin County commission met in meeting for June with heat from health officials on The Mirror charges. Dr. William G. Myers, commission chairman, said, in calling the meeting, "I know that 50% of the accusations are true."

I don't have information on the other 50% but they lead credence to the problems to be taken care of."

Higgins gets office help

Stuart—Zoning director Joe Higgins explained to the Martin County Commission Tuesday that the workload in his office has increased so much during the past year that he can no longer do it without the services of a secretary.

"I concur," said County administrator Jack Noble, explaining that the one secretary in the office does the work of the board of adjustment, zoning board, park board, and administrator.

Commissioners unanimously agreed to a budget transfer of $5,200 to cover the cost of a secretary for a year.

Gene Lyon named historical director

FP—Gene Lyon, history instructor at Indian River Junior College, has been named director of the Florida Historical Society, a resident of Dellar Bluff for the 13 years, Lyon will serve for a three year term representing a seven county area.

MS FUND DRIVE—Senator Lawton Chiles, right, has been named area campaign chairman of the 1971 Multiple Sclerosis Society Hope Chest Campaign of the East Central Coast area, according to Charles McLeod, Stuart area chairman. The house-to-house canvass will be made by volunteers during the period May 20 through 23 to seek funds to support needed services for multiple sclerosis patients and their families in the area, and professional and public education. It is estimated that 500,000 Americans are afflicted with MS and related neurological diseases. Pictured with Chiles are Mrs. Robert A. Carney, executive director of the four-county area of Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Brevard, and Max Gardner, publicity chairman.

Commissioners nix fishing licenses

Stuart—Salt water was thrown on the fire in the Martin County Commission recently, HB 59 calls for licenses to fish the salt water in the state of Florida for commercial and non-commercial fishermen.

County Commissioner Bill Owens read a resolution in part, prepared in the City of Jacksonville and moved that the local commission adopt the same resolution and present it to the legislature.

Owens pointed out that the annual fee for such a license would be from $1.50 for sport salt water fishing license to $200 for the owner of commercial fishing piers. Revenue would be deposited in the state treasury for a salt water trust fund for acquisition of submerged lands for recreation purposes and other uses.

"Adoption of this bill would discourage salt water fishing in the state," Owens said. "It would be detrimental to the salt water fishing industry and to related businesses," he said.

Commissioners adopted the motion unanimously.

MESSAGE--Telegrams and messages, newspapers and eggs, were among the items delivered to the various legislative offices by Rick Campbell, Jr. during his week of governmental experience in the Florida Legislature as a Senate messenger. His director was Miss Maisey McLain, assistant to the Sargeant-at-arms of the Senate.

'I run a lot'

Senate messenger earns his money

Tallahassee -- The bright and shining faces of young men and women not yet used to the dresses, suits and sport jackets of business life were laden with concern on that Monday morning.

With uncertain steps, the fourteen and fifteen-year-old youths were marched into the office of the Senate Sergeant-at-arms in the Capitol Building at Tallahassee. Rick Campbell, Jr. was one of the new "messengers" to the Senate.

Proud parents, bringing their young ones into the room, were summarily dismissed by Miss Maisey McLain, assistant to the sergeant-at-arms, and the young people immediately became full-time employees of the state senate. Their job was from eight-to-five, and they were treated as adults by the staff.

"I didn't know I would work so hard," said Rick Campbell after the first day. He was tired, and showed the effort of running up and down stairs, to and from offices and meeting rooms of the various legislative serviced and elected officials.

"I made twelve trips to the Holland Building today," he added. That building is a block away from the capitol building.

The packing order of the legislature made him a little queasy.

"I had this big stack of newspapers I had to take over to the Holland Building, and as I walked out the door a messenger who had been there before set another stack of papers on my stack, and an egg on top of all that, and asked me to take that over to another office.

"And, you know, when I took the papers and the egg in the office, the guy ate the egg. I didn't like that," he said.

Jobs in the Florida Legislature as pages and messengers are received through the elected officials who have a certain number they can nominate each year. Rick Campbell received his job through Senator Beth Johnson, 19th District, which includes Martin county.

He applied in January, received his application in March, and was approved in April.

While in Tallahassee, Campbell stayed in the home of Jim Swain, executive director of the Florida Press Association. The Swains have two children, and Rick stayed with fourteen-year-old David Swain.

They would jump into the community pool as soon as Rick came home from work and David completed football practice, swim for an hour, have dinner, and study lessons for an hour. Then they would either go back to the pool for another swim or enjoy each other's company until bedtime.

Rick returned after closing out the weekly session of the Legislature on Friday at noon. He brought the plane from Tallahassee, a special Eastern flight for legislators heading south. Dropped off in West Palm Beach, Rick returned home $74 richer, his first week of full-time work under his belt.

He also returned with a greater understanding of the workings of state government, a knowledge he can impart to his classmates at Stuart Jr.-Sr. Grade School.

Crawfords return from vacation

Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford returned Sunday from a week's automobile trip to New Orleans, La. and Mississippi.

"We just rested," Jane told The Mirror. They spent the first night on the west coast, second night in Pensacola, and the next two nights in New Orleans, she said.

Rod and Grace McQueen spent a long weekend at Highland Hammock State Park near Sebring with other members of the Everglades Chapter of the Good Sam Club. There were ten other recreational vehicles at the monthly meeting, most of which come from around the Ft. Myers area. This was election day and Rod was elected president for the coming year.

I guess I would get in trouble if I didn't tell the world that the Ritenours were the biggest winners at Bingo Tuesday night. I was threatened what would happen if I didn't, as I have been saying others through the winner but we haven't been in this tonight before. I won three games and Butterfield, Mrs. Theiss, James and Mrs. Squires and the rest was evenly divided. Of course we had to wait until the crowd thinned out after the evening out it is nice to win once in a while, anyway.

And so on with the news from the Kaiser's Trailer Manor. Kaiser acquired the Skyline of Manufactured Homes, saying that Kaiser Aetna Realty Corp. and Gulf Life Corp. had combined to form a new company to be known as Kaiser Aetna.

Jensenites enjoy trip to Mallorca

JB—Four Jensen Beach residents returned recently from an eight-day trip to Mallorca, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Weiss, Mrs. Mike Friedricha and Mrs. Hazel Hertage flew to Mallorca with a state Shrine group of about 250 persons.

"Guess where we are... and guess whether or not we're having fun," Mrs. Weiss wrote on a card to The Mirror.

When she returned, she told this reporter that the group had a chance to see the famous Mallorca pearls being made by man, visited the Carthusian Monastary at Valle De Mossa, and toured the wineries and distilleries.

There are about six million olive and almond trees on the island, she said. Many of the olive trees are a thousand years old and were planted by the Romans.

"We brought back lovely hand-crafted items made of the olive wood, also some jewelry," she said.

"The trip gave me the opportunity to use my newly-learned Spanish," Mrs. Weiss said, explaining that she had recently taken a course in Spanish at Martin County High School two nights a week.

Since returning from their flight to Mallorca, the Weisses spent a week at Kirby Knob, N.C., where they have property. "The dogwood was in bloom and is perfectly beautiful!" she said. Violents and strawberries also grow there in profusion.

Senator Beth's office reflects feminine touch

By DICK CAMPBELL

Tallahassee -- The blinding flash of oranges, lemons, pineapples, bananas, cherries, pears and mangoes, in their brilliant colors on a field of black look almost lifelike in the small, ten-by-twelve foot room that is the office of Senator Beth Johnson, District 29, in the State Capitol.

The senator represents Martin and St. Lucie Counties, along with a bunch of others, in the legislature, and the colorful drapes match a colorful senator in a not-so-colorful senate.

Bright yellow roses, a dozen in a vase of green, were the focal point of the small office, almost cluttered with the memorabilia of eight years in office.

There is a sense of humor that prevails, with cartoons, comic sayings, banners of "Peanuts" and a cartoon that depicts a medieval scene of one chopping off the head of another with the caption, "Take reorganization in stride."

The walls are decorated with a giant color photograph of the House of Refuge Museum on Hutchinson Island, autographed color photos of Senator Ed Gurney, former Governor Claude Kirk and former Lieutenant Governor Ray Osborne. There are also autographed pictures of President Richard Nixon and Vice-president Spiro Agnew.

A needlepoint sampler in old type reads, "My cup runneth amuck," setting a humorous tone to the rather serious business of government.

"We clip pictures from newspapers and magazines, and put funny captions on them," said Miss Jeanette Hartman, aide to the senator. "It lightens up the session, and heaven knows there needs to be a few laughs here and there. Sometimes you can feel the tension when the bills get rough, and we've got to keep Beth loose."

Senator Beth praised the efforts of the aides, Jeanette and Pug, to make her smile when she gets too serious.

"I would get a magazine that came in the morning mail and find great big holes through the thing. They already clipped them out. I think I'll make a scrapbook of all of them and keep the book hidden somewhere," she said.

A collector of elephants (oh, yes, Senator Beth is a Republican), there are many around the small office in various poses. Some sit, some stand, some look one way or another...but all except one have their trunks pointed in the air, the happy symbol of victory in Republicanism.

The one that points down is a wicker elephant, a gift of one who didn't know the "trunks-up" story.

With the collection of elephants on a file cabinet and the three shelves of a bookcase above the files are various plaques honoring Senator Beth, a copy of the book, "Up the Organization," a book on Americanism, and small items that have meaning only to the senator or her aides.

The senator's desk is laden with papers, pending bills and messages, notes from one or another asking for this and that, and the ever-present and ringing telephone. Even the chime-tone of the phone is feminine.

Two paperweights are on the desk, one a colorful gold and green turtle and the other a gold frog. An orange lamp shows the use at night of the office, and another lamp, never installed in the ceiling, awaits its place over the desk.

One classic decorative piece is the case of Zanobia pistachio nuts that was a gift of a friend. The shells of the nuts are found everywhere, in ash trays, in the wastepaper baskets, and in the outer office.

Senator Beth gets to the office between 6:30 and 7:30 a.m., and begins work immediately. There are many morning committee meetings, beginning at 7 a.m., and with sessions all day, and evening committee meetings, the legislative day ends about midnight.

"I haven't had time to answer a single personal letter this year," the senator said. "We've been working too hard. The letters will have to wait until we get past the session."

Jeanette and Pug, veterans with the senator, handle as much as possible in the working day, and both go to and from committee meetings and hearings, sometimes substituting for the senator when there are two meetings scheduled at the same time.

But the office remains cheery, a light spot in a difficult day of legislation aimed at making Florida a better state in which to live. The most careless look of decor belies the efficiency of the office, but then, that is needed to offset the "uptight" mood of a straining session of importance.

TROUBLESHOOTER- Jeanette Hartman is the right hand troubleshooter of Sen. Beth Johnson, handling committee research assignments and representing the senator when meetings conflict.

AN AIDE--Mrs. Pug Pichard is the secretarial aide to Senator Beth Johnson and is one of the driving forces in local representation in Tallahassee.

for women

CAPITOL--Center of government in Florida, the capitol building overlooks Tallahassee, and is the focal point of activity during the present legislative session.

ONE CORNER--The busy corner of the office of Senator Beth Johnson is an area of memorabilia, with signs, posters, photos, and a portion of the large collection of elephants owned by the senator. The woman's touch comes in the flowers and ever-present can of pistachio nuts in the bookcase shelf.

Spinney critical in letter

Jensen Volunteer Fire Chief Randolph Spinney protested a recent letter to the editor of another newspaper by Jensen resident writer Charles Shilling.

"We are always backed up with truck and crew," Spinney said. "We never leave our town unprotected."

Spinney's protest was to reassure the people that they have the protection of the fire department in cases such as those cited by Shilling in his letter to the editor. Regarding water hydrant fire protection, Shilling wrote, "When our excellent volunteer fire department is arrived to the seed fighting a brush fire, no one is minding the store at home if your house catches on fire."

Spinney asked that the public be assured that the fire department always has a backup crew on duty when brush fires are fought.

Will answer charges

Top state health officials to attend county inquiry

Dr. Wilbur D. Sawder, director of the Division of Health, Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, and other top state officials will be on hand next Tuesday, June 1, at a special public meeting of the Martin County Commission to answer charges of lax health law enforcement made in a continuing series in The Jensen Beach Mirror.

Sawder notified The Mirror editor, Dick Kuchenmeister, that he would attend in a letter received Tuesday.

The meeting was called by Dr. William G. Myers following a study by representatives of the articles published over the past twelve weeks. In his call, Myers said, "I know that about 70% of the charges are true. I don't have information on the other 30% but the only presence is the publication in the newspaper."

"We'll give them a chance to answer any questions we see fit to ask," Myers said. "We want the whole ball of wax."

Campbell was notified Tuesday to be prepared to substantiate the charges at the June 1 meeting. Myers stated that no firing squad or lynching was necessary to effectively solve the matter.

Myers noted, "It is hoped by Sawder, that the meeting will be helpful for a constructive" one, and avoided the use of the word "public inquisition."

The evening after Myers called the meeting, reporters appeared before the Florida senate committee on health in Tallahassee, and appealed for a statewide investigation into the enforcement of laws governing health. A similar request to that made of Sawder by Myers, substantial evidence and testimony was presented to supply evidence of the charges made in the articles of the Mirror and Stuart News series.

The series is continuing in The Mirror with articles pointing up violations of health laws by residents, health officials and businessmen.

Holiday Out fights to fix sewage plant problems

(Editor's note: This is the twelfth in a series of articles exposing lax health law enforcement by the Tri-County Health Department, and how a private sanitarian was able to close a health department approved outfall into the Indian River, Class Two waters, from the Holiday Out sewage plant.)

By DICK CAMPBELL

Jensen Beach Mirror

JB--Holiday Out operated for years with an illegal outfall from its sewage plant into the Indian River. The outfall took the overload, considered a "considerable amount," with treatment and dumped it into the Indian River in violation of state health laws and the permit which does not allow dumping into the river.

The outfall was closed when the travel trailer resort hired a local sanitarian to service the plant. The sanitarian, Bob Reed, refused to accept the maintenance of the plant until the outfall was closed. He attributed it to the fact that he could lose his license if he was to service such a plant with such an outfall.

Mirror investigation revealed that Holiday Out, under previous ownership, was told to build the outfall by W. R. Richards, director of sanitation for the Tri-County Health Department to handle the overflow from the plant when the drain field plugged up.

Violations of health laws indicated by the installation, approved by the health department, would include the approval of a sewage plant that did not meet the needs of the development, installation of the sewage plant drainfield in non-percolative soils, and dumping sewage effluent into the Indian River, Class Two waters, protected by the state and approved for shellfish harvesting.

The outfall operated until December, 1970, when Reed began maintenance of the plant. At that time Reed asked the new owners to close the outfall, which they did immediately.

Gulf Oil Company has purchased Holiday Out interests, and, of all companies, desires not to be associated with health law violations.

But, recent contact with a former high official of Holiday Out proved that the management of the company was not aware of the violations of health laws in the installation of the plant, or of the subtleties involved.

"Our problem was that we were not allowed to dump our effluent from the sewage plant into the Indian River because it was too pure," he said. "The brackish water of the Indian River was less pure than our effluent, and we would reduce the brackish content if we would dump in the Indian River," the official said.

A local sanitarian told The Mirror that the purity of the effluent of the sewage plant was dealing in "probably 90% biological oxygen demand treatment," saying, "with it overloaded, which it was at the beginning and throughout, there is always a question of how it is being operated."

He stated, "Someone is wrong in this. If he (the former official) knew anything about sewage effluent, he would know that the effluent comes out loaded with nutrients and organic matter.

"If the chlorinator breaks down you stand the chance of very harmful bacteria and virus being loosed in the class-two waters," he added.

That the owners of the camp thought their operation were in full compliance with the state division of health laws cannot be questioned, for all contacted, even those previously associated with the development of what has become the most popular camping resort in the area, believed that they had no problem with the sewage plant or its effluent. None thought that there was anything wrong with dumping nutrient and bacteria-laden effluent into the waters declared open to shellfish harvesting, nor did they realize that the effluent was anything but pure.

"We designed the system to handle the load we had, and we built it to be enlarged as the camp grew. Last December we added size and capacity to the plant and changed to contact stabilization to handle a bigger load properly," the former official said.

The outfall line emptied into a dead-end canal next to the marina at Holiday Out. Owners thought their plant was doing the proper job for the park, and the official said, "We wanted our development to meet higher criteria than that set down by law."

The owner said he even worked on a pilot project to help the health department determine the load for the average travel trailer space so that the information could be used in health law specifications.

A local sanitarian said the plant was "okay," just needed a fence, a proper drain field and a polishing pond. Recently, after several months of overflow from the sewage plant making a lake around the plant, the health department issued a notice that the problem had to be cleaned up.

The owners of the park bulldozed a dike around the sewage plant to hold the effluent in a makeshift polishing pond until one could be constructed, or a drain field completed for the effluent.

The installation, being located on class-two waters, had further problems when electric power to the island recently failed for several days. The plant should have had auxiliary power to it to keep effluent from backing up in the system, but had none. The owners are now planning an auxiliary system of power.

The efforts of the owners to provide the best possible sewage control are noted in their having sewer hookups to all sites, according to the former owner, who said the park was a "pioneer project."

PLANT WORKS--This sewage plant at Holiday Out would work properly once the proper drain field and polishing pond is completed in the changeover from an illegal outfall to the Indian River, that handled overflow from a faulty drain field, to the proper system of disposal of effluent.

MAKESHIFT POND--Dirt piled up around the sewage plant at Holiday Out holds back the overflow of effluent from the plant at rear in this photograph taken several weeks ago. The drain field never properly working, was again stopped up as the park endeavors to solve problems created by the closing of an illegal outfall line to the Indian River, a line approved by the Tri-County Health Department.

Alliance asks for moratoriums

Stuart -- Martin County Commissioners passed a motion Tuesday asking the building department to stop issuing building permits on acreage involving fifteen or more units per acre, and directed the zoning board to hold a public hearing on the subject.

Two moratoriums had been requested by the Martin County Conservation Alliance, through Dr. Walter Stokes, at the meeting.

The Alliance asked a moratorium on all construction in the county which involves over fifteen dwelling housing units per upland acre, and asked that a moratorium be placed on construction of any building over three stories high.

The Alliance also expressed concern over the delay in selecting someone to complete preparation of a long range county beautification plan.

Health investigation refutes series

Editor's note: The following is a copy of a report of the investigative of The Mirror articles on health law enforcement by the Tri-County Health Department. The Mirror editorial judgment of the investigation in our opinion is fair and allow a full representation of the work of the health department. The only editorial comment we can make is that no one other than the Tri-County Health department was contacted by the investigators.)

[illegible] with your recent request, I have attempted to obtain additional information about the environmental health problems described by Mr. Richard K. Campbell, Editor and Publisher of the Jensen Beach Mirror, in a series of weekly articles which began on March 18, 1971. Based on health department records and the testimony of health Department personnel, I submit the following chronological explanation of the situations featured in Mr. Campbell's articles. I believe these statements are true and accurate, and they are presented by our regional engineer and our regional sanitary consultant.

JENSEN BEACH POLLUTION: Two weeks prior to the first article regarding a sewage problem originating at business establishments on Commercial Avenue and North Indian River Drive at Jensen Beach, Mr. W. B. Richards, Director of Environmental Health Services for Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee Counties, contacted the owner, Mr. Tilton, and arrangements were made to make the necessary corrections. Since plans for a package sewage plant to serve the area were being prepared, it was agreed that a subsurface drain bed and an interim measure installation was completed in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 10D-6.03 (4) (a), through (c) and Chapter 10D-6.03 (6). This installation was completed prior to the article being published in the paper, thereby correcting the problem of septic tank effluent on the ground surface.

[illegible] MOBEE DAIRY WASTES: Dairy waste disposal, mentioned in Okeechobee County, is an industrial waste problem as stated in the memorandum of Mr. S. A. [illegible], the Chief of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, dated October 24, 1968. One of the stipulations in this memorandum, which details areas of responsibility for the Division of Air and Water Pollution Control and the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the Division of Health [illegible] activities concerning the treatment and discharge of industrial wastes are the responsibility of the Department of Air and Water Pollution Control. In February 1971, dairies in the county received letters from Mr. Alton G. Cox, Regional Director of the Department of Air and Water Pollution Control, notifying them action must be taken by the dairy waste problem. It is my understanding that members of the local office of the Department of Air and Water Pollution Control are presently working with the dairies in arriving at a workable solution.

ISLAND POLLUTION: The news article of April 1, 1971, regarding a pollution survey made in Jupiter Island indicated that a survey made in 1970 revealed [illegible] stated but that the present survey disclosed [illegible] Island. Home to Howard Ashcroft, Publisher of the Island Reporter, stated that a survey was requested or made in 1970 by the Martin County Health Department. The only information [illegible] Mr. Ivan Traeger Rhodes of Jupiter Island [illegible] Health Department Sanitarian, Mr. Robert [illegible], reported to him on January 6, 7, 9 and 25, 1970. [illegible] stated since no lines from dwellings were [illegible] any septic tanks setting into the river. The survey was completed on February 25, 1971, revealed two [illegible] waste outfall lines in the river. The owners were [illegible] of the lines encouraged certified as requested, and [illegible] some time all lines have been removed and new [illegible] installed in accordance with the requirements of Chapter 10D-6.03 (1) through (3). The swimming pool line [illegible] and in this article is a fault and covered. This is a fill and drain salt water pool that is chlorinated and therefore the quality of the water being discharged [illegible] this is bacteriologically acceptable.

MARKET TRUCK STOP: In the March 25, 1971, issue of the Jensen Beach Mirror, an editorial was written regarding the disposal problem at the Market Truck Stop in Fort Pierce. This condition had been reported to the health department by the Department of Air and Water Pollution [illegible] as to a visit to the rear of the property. When the inspectors investigated, it was found that all the trucks that were being serviced was collected in a 55 gallon tank and sold for salvage. The liquid waste [illegible] was a combination of effluent from the septic tank system interrupted resulting from a failure of the [illegible] drainfield. Mixed with this effluent was industrial [illegible] water generated by a truck wash rack. The health department contacted the owners, and the problem of disposing of the waste effluent was discussed. The engineering consultant and Associates was engaged, and an elevated [illegible] tank was built to code requirements, Chapter 10D-6.03, (6) and (7). It has been certified by the engineer and is now operating. All domestic waste is [illegible] in an approved manner. The waste water from the truck wash continues to flow into the septic [illegible] tank. Alton G. Cox of the southeast Region Subordinate Department of Air and Water Pollution Control was [illegible] this is an industrial waste problem as stated [illegible] previously mentioned in memorandum of October 24, [illegible].

MOBEE TRAILER PARKS: The article of April 1, referred to trailer spaces being occupied beyond the [illegible] allocated on the permit, as well as trailers parked [illegible] owned land where no provision had been made for sewage disposal. The owners in each instance [illegible] previously contacted and notified that the number of [illegible] spaces may not exceed the permitted number.

At the present time, the number of spaces has been greatly reduced to a point where there is no overcrowding. During the last two years, meetings were held on several occasions with the Board of County Commissioners of Okeechobee County. At these meetings, Mr. R. W. Starr, Jr., our regional sanitary engineer, and various representatives of the Central and South Florida Flood Control District have been present. Lengthy discussions were held on solving the problem of trailers parking on government-controlled land. This year the first phase of Okee-Tanle Campsites was completed which will accommodate 360 trailers. These sites are served by a sewage disposal plant and public water supply with the necessary bath houses. In the last meeting with Mr. Robert Padrick, Chairman, Central and South Florida Flood Control District, the health department was assured that all land under their control and formerly used as campsites would be closed and the Okee-Tanle site would be used exclusively.

HILLTOP RESTAURANT: In a news article of April 8, 1971, reference was made to a septic tank permit being issued to serve a two hundred seat restaurant with an estimated sewage flow in excess of two thousand gallons in a twenty-four hour period. When the plans were originally presented to the health department, the proposed seating capacity was one hundred and seventy. However, since the capacity must be at least two hundred seats to qualify for a beverage license, Hilltop revised the plans to include two hundred seats for dining and twenty bar stools. This would increase the sewage flow beyond two thousand gallons, and according to the letter was written to the Division of Hotels and Restaurants stating that all waste must be mechanically treated as required in Chapter 10D-6.03 (2) (f). The health department notified the contractor who would install the system that a package sewage treatment plant would be necessary. There now seems to be no question regarding the type of system required, that is, a package sewage treatment plant.

SALERNO PRIVIES: The health department inspected the privy mentioned in the news article of April 15, 1971, and found that it was fly tight and not creating a sanitary nuisance. The pit is curbed with concrete with no bottom. The riser is a beer type made of concrete and the seat is concrete and a part of the riser. The roof had been previously modified to make the seat fly tight and self-closing, and to screen the vent stack, which he had done. He also sealed cracks in the riser. Although this structure was built a number of years ago prior to existing requirements, it substantially meets the requirements of Chapter 10D-6.04 which allows exceptions for such facilities. On further investigation, it was noted that two other privies on the same property are not in use. The owner has assured the health Department that he intends to renovate this rental property, eliminate the privies and install plumbing in the dwellings. All liquid waste will then be treated in septic tank systems since no municipal system is available.

ORANGE BLOSSOM ESTATES: Septic tank permits mentioned in the news article of April 22, 1971, are issued on a lot by lot basis. Although the Florida Department of Health rules, Chapter 10D-6.07, have been met. The code as now written does not prohibit changing the original [illegible] of the land or constructing drainage systems to control the removal of surface and ground water in order to lower the ground water table elevation. There is nothing in the code to prohibit modification of land which in its natural state would render it unsuitable for use of septic tanks. The soil in this subdivision as was noted, is so great that a central sewage system be utilized wherever possible, if no sewer is available. Septic tanks are used. Since 1969 when the hearing was held before Judge D. L. Scott of the Circuit Court, various changes have taken place including the rewriting of the regulations on individual sewage disposal systems. The health department follows these regulations. In this particular subdivision, the health department requires that the owner to construct positive drainage to control surface water. Under the water table portion is limited to a depth of six feet and add fill to raise the building site elevation. By fill, drainage or a combination of both, thirty-inch water table is below grades between the bottom of the drainfield trench and the water table is maintained during the various rainy seasons. The health department met with the property owners and the board of county Commissioners to discuss the possibilities of installing a central collection system to be connected to the [illegible] Pierce sewage plant. When the property owners were advised that a special tax district would be required to pay for the improvement, they apparently lost interest.

SOUTH JENSEN BEACH SHOPPING CENTER AND VILLA CAPRI RESTAURANT: The restaurant waste problem featured in the April 29, 1971 issue of the Jensen Beach Mirror is one of long standing. When the restaurant was built in 1963, it was much smaller than it is today. At that time, a septic tank and grease interceptor were installed to treat the liquid waste in compliance with the codes existing at that time. Later, the seating capacity was expanded, and trouble started. The regional sanitary engineer was contacted for his recommendation, and the system was revised to adequately treat the kitchen waste. In June of 1966, a meeting was held with Mr. Edward Lawrence to discuss a new construction, including a package sewage treatment plant or revising the existing system. The restaurant had been purchased by the L & E Corporation, and Mr. Lawrence was supervising all new construction for the corporation. Plans were to be prepared and presented to the regional sanitary engineer for approval. Several meetings were held, and the regional sanitary engineer and Mr. Richards discussed a package sewage treatment plant to serve the entire shopping center. Mr. Lawrence explained that negotiations were underway to purchase all adjoining property, and a package sewage plant would be constructed. In the interim, the present system was being used with periodic maintenance. It was an accepted fact by all parties that the existing system was only a temporary expedient. In May of 1969, the regional sanitary engineer discussed with Mr. Lawrence changes in the existing system to include a 1500 gallon tank with sand drain bed with concrete block walls and removable lids and the sand to be replaced in the bed as required; also an old compressor with diffuser pipe to be mounted on the tank to aerate liquid which would aid in coagulation of the grease so it could be removed more readily, thus preventing the sealing of the sand in the drain bed. The restaurant was closed for the summer, and the new system was installed in October of 1969. Since that time periodic inspections have been made by the sanitarians and the regional sanitary engineer. The system has been serviced on a routine schedule and the tanks are pumped twice a month.

EASTPORT TANK: The latest article, May 6, 1971, charges that the health department discovered that the water supply for this county-operated park was apparently unsatisfactory in February, but the park was not closed until April. Basically, this is true, but the Chairman of the Martin County Commission was promptly informed by the health department in February, and provisional arrangements were worked out to drink the water only for cooking. Because sanitary facilities in the park also depend on this supply, and with the great public demand to use it, closure was delayed. In the meantime, arrangements were made to connect to an adjacent satisfactory system. The contemplated system should be operational next week.

As to the park's health department personnel, we very few in number. The Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee County Health Departments have a combined total of nine sanitarians and they have a lot of responsibilities. Nevertheless, they strive to perform their duties in a reasonable and legal manner. In addition to their routine inspections, they attempt to respond to citizen complaints promptly and effectively. However, the protection of the environment has highest priority in the public health program, but everyone knows how expensive and difficult the task can be. We have had the privilege of working closely with the Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee County Health Departments, and his staff deserve commendation, not criticism for their performance.

At a recent legislative hearing in Tallahassee, I understand the subject of pollution in the Lake Worth-Palm Beach area was also raised, and that a university professor from that area was quoted as saying that thousands of cases of infectious hepatitis could be attributed to eating shellfish from those waters. This story was publicly refuted by the official involved. For the record, 161 cases of infectious hepatitis were reported in Palm Beach County in 1970 and 44 to date this year. Each one was investigated by the health department, and none were traced to shellfish. The most frequent common denominator was person-to-person spread, particularly in groups where drug usage is prevalent.

I will continue to maintain surveillance in the matters discussed in this memo and will provide additional information as it develops.

The mobile home of Alma Kramer was really changed last week. There was a carport added with a roof and a utility shed. A roof was added to the patio, which was also screened in. Two air conditioners and aluminum apron were added, flowers were planted, and all this in three days.

Robert Kirker of McKinzald, Pa., near Pittsburgh, will arrive at the West Palm Airport Saturday, May 29 to spend a few days with his grandparents, the Ritenours, and then help them drive to Pittsburgh for a three month vacation.

Word has been received from Herbert and Thelma Jones that they arrived home in Dayton, Ohio, and are enjoying visiting with their family.

Quite a number of residents of D&M had their blood pressure checked at the hall Thursday morning by the Mobile Home Association nurse.

Raymond Battey Week is a kid's fund drive

The "All things are possible if we don't care who gets the credit" spirit ruled the leaders of an organized drive by funds to pay hospital expenses for injured Raymond Battey, and the children of Martin County's seven elementary schools are out to prove it.

This week is "Youth for Raymond Battey Week," and all elementary schools are participating, with six "chargers" from each school leading the drive. Chargers from Jensen Beach Elementary School are Kevin Kinhart, Vicki Chesney, Patti Schmelling, Lorraine Pate, Eugene Hathcoter and David Millan. The youngsters will run errands of local business houses, they plan to do odd jobs Saturday, the end of the week, hold "beg" sales, and anything else that they can do to raise money for the injured Battey.

It was a shock to the community to learn that the children of Raymond were involved in an accident last week, and the drowning has added to the grief of the little ones. On Friday, May 28, at noon, the "chargers" will meet at Jensen Beach Elementary school to count up the funds for deposit in the special hospital Battey account.

Trust Fund at Jensen Beach Bank. Principals of all elementary schools will then hold a party for the "chargers."

Raymond, a sixth grade student at Jensen School, was injured when on Dec. 23 a truck he was riding in struck a utility pole in Stuart and has been hospitalized since that time.

A donation at Bill's has been made to the fund by the Martin County Classroom Teachers Association.

Schnurbusch promises county evaluation in '72

Stuart-- Martin County Tax Assessor Dutch Schnurbusch told the county commission Tuesday that his office now has two professional men working on an evaluation of the tax roll in the county, and promised an updating of the roll this year. "Next year we will have a complete evaluation of the entire county," he said.

The two men were hired at a cost of $40,000, to be paid out of the tax assessor's budget. "An outside appraisal firm couldn't do a better job at $120,000 to $150,000," Schnurbusch said. It takes about six months to complete the roll.

"I believe we will have a substantial increase in the roll this year. It can never stay stable," he said.

Schnurbusch was called upon at the meeting to speak after V. James Navitsky, superintendent of schools, had reported on the problem of the ratio study made by the state.

"The problem is that the state uses county tax rolls for computation of distribution of state funds," he said. Navitsky said HB 990 has had an impact on the school systems and on the county commissions. The schools were injured in a financial way, he claimed, because of the tax rolls. He referred to a 21-page report he had received.

Schnurbusch said the tax assessor's office should not be connected with the school board "nor it with us, Navitsky got $150,000 more than he anticipated last year from the state," he said.

The Auditor General is collecting tax stamp information from the current tax rolls in order to prepare another ratio study to be ready by March, 1972, Navitsky said. "This will be used in the next legislative session to determine fund appropriations for the various counties."

"The Martin County Commission and the school board will be held responsible even though we don't set the tax rolls," he complained.

Chairman Dr. Bill Myers asked Navitsky to turn over the report and studies to the finance committee for study.

OWENS PRESENTS--County Commissioner Bill Owens read a resolution saluting John Law on his service to the community at the special John Law testimonial dinner Monday night at St. Lucie Country Club. Owens made the presentation on behalf of the Martin County commission and its chairman, Dr. Bill Myers, who was ill and could not attend.

SERVICE--A personal letter citing John Law for his dedication to his office as district manager of Florida Power and Light Company, from FPL president R. Fullerton, was read by FPL vice-president Jim Spencer.

SHARE THE RIDE--Phillip Harvey took Joyce DeLancy for a ride on his motorcycle on Skip Day when Martin County High School seniors had a chance to take off and enjoy themselves.

KING AND QUEEN--Sheldon Merritt and Debbie Harper were chosen King and Queen at the 1971 Martin County High School senior prom last Friday night. The prom, held in the high school gym, was set in an "Alice in Wonderland" theme by the junior class for the seniors. After the prom, students attended a luau on the Jensen Beach Causeway, then attended a movie.

Lady golfers are rained out

Stuart -- Tuesday's rain caused postponement of the weekly tournament of the Martin County Ladies Golf Association. However, the members had a good day Friday at Vero Beach when they met with the Upper East Coast Ladies Golf Association.

The eight local winners included Joan Wright, first flight low gross, 82; Olive Barth, third flight low gross 91; fifth flight low gross Helen Pauly, 91, and sixth flight low gross Babe Wiseby, 91.

Ruth Riddle was winner in the seventh flight with a low net 70; eighth flight, Mary Mellick had a low net 72; ninth flight low gross Alice Agresto had a 98 and low putts in the tenth flight was Isabel McPherson, 32.

GRADUATES--Two graduates of the Turn About Charm School in Stuart rehearsed for their graduation last Saturday. They are Tami Bessemer, Jensen Beach, and Kathi Edgar, Fort St. Lucie, Tami graduates from the beginners' course at the charm school, and Kathi is an advanced graduate.

TURTLE WATCH--One of the "must see" events in Jensen Beach is a turtle watch on Hutchinson Island, a thrill for young and old. An organized watch will be held this Saturday, May 29, from 10 p.m. until 12 midnight, sponsored by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce with the cooperation of the Martin County Sheriff's Department and the Conservation Department. The public is invited to meet at the Jensen Beach pavilion at 10 p.m., but is asked to stay off the beach from 9 p.m. on unless directed by the Chamber. Don Wilkie is chairman of the annual event.

Kiwanis golf needs just 9

JB -- The limit of fifty foursomes for the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club annual golf tournament should be reached sometime this week, according to Leonard Smith, chairman. Only nine foursomes are needed to fill out the limit of fifty.

Smith also announced that trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners in the two divisions of handicap and Calloway of the tournament.

The second tournament in the popular annual series is being held at the Yacht and Country Club of Stuart on June 5.

Stuart -- Sandsprit Park may have fresh water by this weekend, county commissioners were told Tuesday by a representative of the Stuart Yacht and Country Club. The club is supplying water to the popular park which was closed recently because of polluted water.

Sowder defends health enforcement to county

Stuart- It was a day of generalities in the explanation of Dr. William T. Sowder, director of the Florida Division of Health, for health law enforcement in Martin County as top state health officials massed in the county commission meeting room to discuss health with the county commission.

Detailed explanations of a health department report on the series of lax health law enforcement articles by The Mirror were distributed at the meeting, in every case defending actions of the Tri-County Health Department, as were Mirror reports to the explanations, but the discussion was general in nature.

Absent the only specifics in the over-thirty charges of The Mirror articles dealt with the beaches, Jupiter Island, Poor Bob's Restaurant and Pitchford's Camp, dairy inspection, polluted shellfish, Sandspur Park and Jensen Beach Causeway.

Sowder did publicly ask for an investigation of the articles in The Mirror by John T. Brennan, state attorney.

In a formal presentation, Sowder outlined the accomplishments of the Tri-County Health Department, emphasizing that the health department "is yours as well as our health department." He dwelt on the funding of the agency, and listed the accomplishments of the agency in the county.

Absent the only specifics in the over-thirty charges

Division of Health figures relate that Martin County had eleven cases of infectious hepatitis in 1970, and six cases up to May 3 of this year, plus no cases of typhoid fever since 1949, no amebic dysentary since 1961, no poliomyelitis since 1958, no case of tetnus since 1965, and no newborn diarrhea since 1966.

The ratings of the Division of Health also place inspections of the health department in high ranking in the state, with those inspections ranging from 70% higher to 5,500% higher than state averages on sanitation controls, 9% to 35% higher than state averages on tuberculosis control, and 43% above the state average on total immunizations.

Sowder said the health department has a pollution control agency, saying its role was "incidental and supportive." He said he had opposed the separation of Health from control over air and water pollution, a new agency established in 1967.

He also said that the local Department had an "excellent record" in the inspection of dairies and dairy farms, though the Health officials "do encounter criticism" from inspecting them due to duplication with the Department of Agriculture.

Sowder said that a bill that would call for annual permits of health departments now being considered, and submitted to the legislature by Sen. Beth Johnson, would give Health greater enforcement powers.

Citing the erroneous figures used by The Mirror in citing cases of hepatitis in Florida, figures obtained from an article in the Palm Beach Post, Sowder said he appreciated The Mirror correcting the information in an editorial, said he had hoped to speak when The Mirror editor had spoken before the Florida Senate committee on health, but was not able to do so.

Commissioners asked Sowder many questions, referring to various incidents both in The Mirror series and in their own problems of dealing with the health department over the years.

Dr. William G. Myers led the discussion, saying he favored a Martin County health department outside the Tri-County Health Department. He said the county had "either been misinformed or misunderstood" by the health department.

Dr. Sowder said, "We need twice the number we have in order to do an acceptable job," He added that "If we are wrong just send a copy to the state's attorney. He has as much right to enforce the law as we do."

SG Berkowitz, health sanitary engineering director, said that only 80 bathing beaches were issued a permit to the state. He added that there are 3,000 miles of beaches in Florida, and the Division of Health had "more important things to do," saying, "We plead guilty...we don't have the people to issue permits."

Commissioner Frank Wacha mentioned that when he asked that water be tested at Jensen Beach Causeway it was done, but no one issued a permit at the park, nor did anyone tell him that [illegible] to be taken, an old tall [illegible] three past, with two young men who looked out their window, flew like the bats [illegible] as the other said a clenched fist agitated. The American Legion honor guard stood in the heating sun.

Few noted the passing.

The massed flags of the veterans organizations picked up a flutter as intermittent breezes offered [illegible] of other times. If not the Spanish American War, through the present conflict in Viet Nam, as mentioned, Cuba, Korea, and noted that "Almost for 100 years the nations of the world have been struggling against each other, and for that time there has been no peace in the world."

Alvarez mentioned the revolution under way in America today, "a revolution concerning ideals which we have allowed to be drowned in the roaring surf of confusion, because we have been to complacent and zealous of material gain and self pleasure."

He asked the questions, "Is there justice and liberty for all Americans? Have Americans forgotten what our responsibilities are to insure the divine rights for all men? Do we want a government of, and for the people, or do we want the government to be a nursemaid?"

Alvarez cited the answers to a better America life in standing up and being counted "...as being on God's side; to be counted as patriotic; to be counted as men and women desirous and willing to labor for all that is good and just."

The forceful speech climaxed memorial prayers by Rev. Neil Gonsalve, and the Pledge of Allegiance led by commander of sponsoring American Legion Post 126, Jensen Beach.

The Legion honor guard fired three volleys that echoed across the hills of south Jensen and Taps, played by Gene Lewis, boy scout bugler, played taps as the ceremony ended.

Rifles and flags were encased by the veterans, and the public address system and podium was removed. Those who gathered to remember, dispersed, and all was again quiet at All Saints Cemetery.

Another breeze sprang from the Indian River to the large American Flag atop the flagpole, and the Episcopal flag beneath it, fluttered. Moments later the small flags that decorated the graves of veterans of many wars responded as the breeze carried through the cemetery, over the hill, and out into the estuarines.

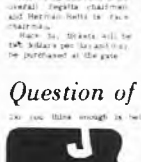
Question of the week

Do you think enough is being done to control pollution?



"No. More people are going to have to work on it. It is everybody's problem so everyone should help."

David Rathgeber.

"There should be more government control over burning, dumping and putting sewage in the river."

Joyce Fletcher

"I do not. The people themselves should not be litter bugs. Why should others clean after sloppy people?"

Mrs. Lewis Brown

Ivia Brown

Students protest regent sex label

By DENNIS DOYLE

Gainesville—Most students at the University of Florida are angry about a recent State Board of Regents' ruling which forbids men and women students from visiting each others' dormitory rooms.

They pull no punches in expressing their anger. "The men in Buckman Hall wouldn't be as destructive to the dormitory if they had women every week," said Day Martin, a Florida student who was one of the first to become involved in the Open House Action Group.

He made his statement to a Mirror reported last week covering the campus trying to learn how the students feel about the dormitories being called "trapsters whorehouses" by Board of Regents' member Elizabeth Kovachevich. The reporter was covering the story for a workshop in newswriting being given by the College of Journalism and Communications at the University of Florida.

Martin said, "The Open House Action Group sent out questionnaires to parents of the 6,000 students who live at the dorms. The questionnaire asked the parents if they thought the dormitories at the University of Florida should have 24 hour open house, limited open house, or no open house at all.

According to Martin, over of the parents replied that they would agree with limited open house." Martin said, "The University finally showed its support toward the students because they (the university) paid for the questionnaires and postage the parents. That's a lot money," Martin said.

The group collected names on a petition and sent it to Governor Reubin Askew.

Channel 20 Television offered to televise our meeting with the governor. I agreed, but the governor refused," said Martin. He added, "The governor has a negative attitude toward the whole idea of meeting." Martin described Askew as having "really crucified, he said, "both the protestors and were just students."

When asked what fears this new rule would do, Martin replied, "There's a lot more violation of the rules. The University would have to hire a full staff to enforce the rules," he added. "I don't think the taxpayers are going to like that."

The girls' dorms only have one rule about open house rules. On the other hand, said Martin, "The men's dorms are a little more lax. I mean a girl won't go around looking door to door to see what's going on. If he sees something going on, he'll do something about it, but what he doesn't see doesn't bother him."

The general reaction was the same from two other freshmen from Buckman Hall, a male dormitory. They felt the open house rules should be left the way they are now. If the rules are changed, they said they would move off campus.

"Everyone will break the rules in their own way," said one student. The second student said, "Open house would be fine, but it's there when you want it."
